

Union Seeks Meeting With City Officials

Mayor Frank Barnhill Tuesday informed city council of a request by Robert Todd, union staff representative, for a meeting with city officials.

Todd represents the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. He claims that 80 of the city's 83 employees have indicated a desire to become affiliated with Local 53 of the union.

Barnhill noted that Todd had requested a meeting 2 p.m. March 10. He said he didn't feel the city should meet with the union representation at this time, but requested a private meeting with council after adjournment to reach a decision.

Barnhill said the city had earlier agreed to a meeting with city employees, but this prior meeting was called off by the employees themselves.

"I feel the finance committee has studied the jobs in the city and made a fair and equitable offer. I think we could sit down with the city employees and work out our differences," he said. He pointed out one of the difficulties the city has is that some of the employees are covered by civil service while others are not.

The mayor pointed out that quite a large sum of money would leave the city each year in the form of annual dues and initiation fees if the city employees became affiliated with a union.

He also urged all members of council to contact state representatives and senators opposing a bill enacting compulsory binding arbitration.

In answer to a statement by the union representative that legal counsel would be consulted about the mayor holding a position in Cleveland and only being in the city one day a week, Barnhill said that he will now be in the city all the time.

City Council authorized the Department of Administrative Services Personnel Division of the Ohio Intergovernmental Personnel Act Program to make a classification study, wage and salary survey and organizational analysis of the city. Mrs. Pat Rose, supervisor of Region IV IPA Service Center, attended Tuesday's meeting to explain the costs to the city ($500 plus matching services), the scope of the plan and when the city could expect to have it completed.

Mrs. Rose indicated that it would be completed this year. She left a sample copy of a survey recently completed for the city of Marysville.

In legislation approved by city council, the safety director was authorized to advertise for bids for a reporting and sound amplification system for municipal court and a resolution to identify and correct the inadequacy of the facilities of Municipal court.

Held for a third reading was the ordinance updating the CATV ordinance so it will comply with FCC regulations and held for a second reading was a resolution requiring prior approval by council before water and sewer lines could be extended beyond the city limits.

Councilman Dixie Watters asked Mayor Barnhill if there was any possibility of getting the city-county justice complex going again. "I cannot answer that although I personally feel this is the way to go," the mayor answered. He noted the project was dropped following the federally funded study by Prindle and Patrick because funds were not available to continue with it. According to Barnhill, county commissioners at that time were opposed to placing a bond levy on the ballot for construction of the complex. A meeting is scheduled 7 p.m. March 9 with Prindle and Patrick, Architects.

Service Director Atwood Jones reported that city street crews were continuing a limited patching program and have also begun street cleaning operations of the downtown areas and main streets.

Jones also reported on a planning and zoning committee meeting last Monday with a consultant concerning securing federal funds to acquire park land.

Robert Kramer, representing the Pickaway County Board of Health, reported the food service and venous program of the board has been approved for another year by the Ohio Department of Health.

A communication was read from Columbia Gas of Ohio announcing the gas rate will increase .71 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet of gas effective with the April 1 billing.

Mayor Barnhill's appointment of Roy Huffer to the civil service commission to replace George Young was approved by council. A communication from Leo Hall concerning the lack of federal funds for construction of a municipal court was read.

Present at Tuesday's council meeting were Council President Joe Bell, clerk Robert Shadley, members David Crawford, Steve Jones, Tom Wells, David Goldschmidt, John Jenkins, Harold Hoffman and Dixie Watters; Mayor Barnhill, Service Director Jones Kramer, Chief of Police Robert Temple.

Social Security Tax Increase Being Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virtually every American is almost certain to get a tax cut this year. But there's a good chance that by next January you'll pay higher payroll taxes to finance Social Security, and the burden may fall more heavily on the poor.

This year's reduction, still being considered by Congress, would mean lower federal income taxes for all but the wealthiest families.

But while there is general agreement in Congress on the need to cut income taxes to stimulate the economy, there is growing concern the Social Security system will go bankrupt unless it is able to keep collecting more taxes than it pays out in benefits.

Although President Carter has not yet offered his own recommendations, the Senate Finance Committee took a first step Tuesday that could mean a hike in the Social Security tax and higher benefits for retirees.

The panel, writing a report on its fiscal 1978 spending and tax plans, agreed the budget should recognize the possibility of the tax increase and the likelihood of a $500 million boost in benefits.

While that tentative decision is not binding, it does indicate strong support in the tax-writing committee for the tax hike.

On the good news side, the panel endorsed phasing out the "earnings test," which costs a recipient $1 in benefits for each $2 of income above $3,000 a year. The panel recommended $500 million to finance a start in the phase-out and other benefit increases.

The panel estimated the already scheduled July 1 cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits will be 5.5 per cent.

President Ford asked Congress in 1976 to raise Social Security taxes. The idea was rejected on both sides of Capitol Hill as unwise in an election year. But there was a general recognition that Social Security taxes would have to be raised soon or regular tax revenues would have to be diverted into the pension system.

Pension experts say the system should have enough money on hand to finance nine months of benefits. By Oct. 1, Finance Committee specialists say, Social Security will have only enough funds for five months. By 1982, unless taxes are raised, the system's assets will be able to finance only 45 days of benefits.

The Finance Committee plan would mean a hike of less than $1 per week if raised by increasing the tax rate and applying it to a higher wage base.

Under current law, an employee pays 5.85 per cent of his first $16,500 annual earnings (a maximum of $965 a year) into Social Security; the sum is matched by the employer. If Congress uses that formula for a tax increase, workers at all income levels would share the burden.

But the Social Security tax is regarded as highly regressive, since it takes a larger proportion of a $5,000-a-year worker's pay than of one earning $20,000. A move is expected to raise taxes by keeping the rate at 5.85 per cent but raising the $16,500 lid.

That would mean no tax hike for those earning $16,500 or less but higher taxes for those making more.

Food Prices Rise Across Nation

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The family grocery bill increased again last month, rising to a level almost 50 per cent higher than it was four years ago, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the findings in the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill went up at the checklist store in seven cities during February, with an average rise of 2.3 per cent. The bill went down at the checklist store in six cities, decreasing an average of 1.9 per cent.

On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store rose an average of just under half a per cent.

Water Shortage Feared

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unless Ohio's spring rainfall is normal or better, most wells in the state will not be restored to their proper levels in time for the dry summer months, according to a geologist with the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

The department said precipitation has been below normal in the state since late October. What rain has fallen, along with the melted snow, has run off instead of being absorbed by the ground, which still is frozen, the department said.

As a result, water levels in the wells are two to five feet below normal statewide, according to natural resources department water inventory geologist Al Walker.

Although he could not say just how much rain would be needed to fill the wells, he said "If we have a normal rainfall this spring, they should come almost up to normal." Above normal rain probably would be needed to return wells to where they should be, he said.

"The time of year water levels are lowest is in the summer, when recharge is less and use is high for crops," Walker said. "If water levels are not improved by then, some areas will be in for problems."

The water inventory section monitors water levels daily through automatic gauges on 122 wells in 63 of Ohio's 88 counties. The wells are

Storm Dumps More Snow On Rockies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A winter storm dumped more snow today on the central Rockies, and heavy snow warnings were posted until dawn for the mountains of Wyoming and through day for the mountains of Colorado.

The storm was expected to produce a band of wintry weather from the central Rockies into the upper Great Lakes region. Winter storm watches were issued earlier from northwestern and north-central Kansas across Nebraska into southern and eastern South Dakota and also over Iowa, Wisconsin and northern and central Illinois.

The watches alert persons of the approach of a winter storm.

Stockmen advisories were posted in eastern Utah and southwestern North Dakota.

Cool northwesterly winds whipped through California. Travelers advisories for high winds and local blowing dust and sand were in effect through Thursday for the mountains and deserts of southern California.

The Pacific Northwest looked for more moisture from at least two more storm systems moving through the Gulf of Alaska.

Snow also lingered in parts of New York and Vermont. There was considerable cloudiness in many sections, except for clear skies from the upper Great Lakes through the Ohio Valley region into the central Appalachians.

It was clear and cold in much of Florida with a frost and freeze warning posted for north-central and northeastern Florida.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from zero at Devils Lake, N.D., to 66 degrees at Brownsville, Texas.

selected to include a broad cross section of the state, Walker said.

"While the northwestern and southwestern counties seem to generally have lower levels than other sections, the overall shortage is statewide," Walker said. His division currently is aware of 32 Ohio communities which he considers "borderline" problem areas.

One of these is Carey, in Wyandot County. The village of 3,500 relies on wells for its water. Last month, two of its four well shafts bent because of a shift in the rock in which they were drilled. The water level is a third well dropped below where it could be pumped out.

The village is drilling two new wells and has dropped the intake pipes deeper into the third. Fire protection, which was doubtful last month, has been restored and village officials say they are holding their own while encouraging conservation.

Areas like Carey do have options, Walker said, but they're expensive. Two alternatives are to put the intake pipes deeper into the well or to drill new wells, as Carey is doing. If these fail, he said, it may mean the source of water is producing all it can. In that case, it could mean going to a surface water source or moving the wells several miles away to untapped underground supplies, Walker said.

Circleville Junior High School Teacher Attends POW Reunion

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

A Circleville woman recently spent a unique and emotional weekend in San Francisco renewing old friendships with people she had not seen for some 32 years.

The occasion was the first reunion since 1945 of over half the occupants of a Japanese-run prisoner of war camp in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

Mrs. Eloise Purdy, 425 S. Washington St., was a nine-year-old daughter of Christian missionaries when armed forces of the empire of Japan took control of the Philippines in mid-December of 1941.

Mrs. Purdy told the Herald in a recent interview that in the months and days before the war started Japanese immigrants to the Philippines warned Americans of Japan's preparations for war in the Pacific.

Mrs. Purdy's father wrote to the U.S. embassy telling of what they had heard. The family was stationed on a base of the Philippine Constabulary.

She had gone to a boarding school at Mindanao along with her brother and sister. When fresh news of the impending war kept coming in, the children were joined by their mother, as were numerous other families. Their father stayed behind to attend to business.

When the Japanese took control of the islands, Mrs. Purdy related that they were stripped of all possessions that could be considered possible weapons, such as knives, guns, scissors, and razors. The group was taken to Camp John Hay, where they stayed until after Easter of 1942. The residents of the camp had to beg to be allowed to have an Easter sunrise service, and even then all the words and songs had to be explained to the Japanese authorities. The Easter service of 1942 was the first religious service that was allowed since the group was put in the concentration camp.

After the Easter holiday the group was moved to Camp Holmes, north of Baguio on the island of Luzon. Before the war the area had been a resort spot for the residents of Manila. The general temperature at Camp Holmes was considerably cooler than the city of Manila, and Mrs. Purdy feels that this fact made things much easier on the older residents in the camp.

At Camp Holmes, the civilian commandant was Rokuro Tomibe. He was invited to the San Francisco gathering by the group of former prisoners.

The inevitable question always immediately follows such a statement: "Why would you invite the commander of your POW camp to a reunion?"

Mrs. Purdy stated that Rokuro Tomibe was a thoughtful and considerate man during their stay at the camp, a complete opposite from the cruel and hard-hearted picture that has been painted of the Japanese during the war.

"He was scared of us at first," stated Mrs. Purdy, but my mother was a good artist and asked permission to paint Mr. Tomibe's portrait. The Japanese are great lovers of art, and this softened Mr. Tomibe, and allowed our camp chairman to be able to speak to him. The reason for Tomibe's apprehensions, we later learned, was that his only impression of Americans was what he had seen in the violent Western and gangster movies of the 1930's."

Tomibe did other things for the residents of Camp Holmes. Upon

FORMER P.O.W. — Mrs. Eloise Purdy, 425 S. Washington St., displays the medal that was presented to her at the recent reunion of 210 former P.O.W.s that were imprisoned in Camp Holmes and Bilbid Prison in the Philippines for three years and three months during World War II. The medals were given to all present at the reunion by the former Japanese commandant of the camp, Rokuro Tomibe. "I hold no grudges," she said, "you can't live with a grudge all your life."

hearing of Red Cross shipments to the Philippines, Tomibe let some of the men in camp have a truck once a month, and they were able to go to Manila and pick up supplies for the camp.

It was Rokuro Tomibe's actions near the end of the war when supplies were growing slim that kept several of the camp's older persons and babies well. He would make sure that the old and weak got enough food, and that the babies in the camp got milk with some degree of regularity.

It was Tomibe who allowed Mrs.

Purdy's father to rejoin his family after a year and six months' separation. Mrs. Purdy's father was taken to a different location when the Japanese took over the islands, because he was still on the constabulary base when the takeover started. He was whisked off to another camp, and his wife and three children were taken from the Mindanao boarding school to Camp John Hay. A year and six months later he had made his way to Manila, and when the monthly supply truck came from

Women Get Chance At Navy Sea Duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a court suit, the Navy is moving to give women wider opportunities for sea duty.

The Navy is circulating word that it has prepared legislation to change current laws that prohibit assignment of women to vessels other than hospital ships and transports.

Navy women have been beached since 1975 when the last hospital ship, the Sanctuary, was retired.

A message from headquarters to fleet and shore stations said: "The proposed change ... will permit the Secretary of the Navy to prescribe a greater variety of shipboard duty to which women members of the naval service may be assigned."

But Navy women still would be barred from serving in combat.

The proposal, which must be approved by Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Congress, marks a victory for Navy women who have been pushing for equality with Navy men.

Pentagon sources acknowledged the new move was spurred by a federal suit filed here by six Navy enlisted women and officers, who claim Navy restrictions infringe their constitutional rights.

The Navy message said the proposed law change would permit assignment of women "to temporary duty on any vessels not engaged in combat missions, and to permanent duty on vessels similar to hospital ships and transports which would not be expected to be assigned combat missions."

Officials refused to elaborate when asked for details on what kinds of ships would be likely to receive women for their crews. The language of the message suggested Navy women might be placed on combat type vessels, as well as various classes of support ships, in peacetime.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, taking off from its best day of 1977, spurred up again today.

In early trading advances outnumbered losers by more than 3-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up almost two points.

Analysts said Tuesday's rising market resulted in part from internal market forces, and others cautioned that investors still needed reassurances about inflation for the market to maintain its upward climb.

Today's early prices included Westinghouse Electric, up 1/4 to 17 1/2; General Motors, up 1/4 at 71 3/4; and Eastman Kodak, up 1/4 to 76 1/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.31 to 944.73, the biggest gain this year and the highest jump since Dec. 27, 1976 when the Dow climbed 10.47.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5-2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 19.48 million shares, up from 16.22 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .45 to 54.68.

Logan Elm Student Traveling To Brazil

JULIE JOHNSON

This summer, Julie Johnson will be enjoying the opportunity of a lifetime by living and learning with a family in Brazil.

Miss Johnson, of 21531 Wintergreen Drive, has been accepted as an exchange student in the Youth For Understanding program, and is eagerly looking forward to the adventure of overseas living. She is presently a sophomore at Logan Elm High School.

Over 6,000 students a year enjoy the excitement and personal fulfillment of living, learning, and maturing in another country through Youth For Understanding.

Youth For Understanding is a non-profit international student exchange organization which has exchanged more than 55,000 students worldwide. Students aged 14 through 18 can participate in the program and live with a local family in one of 23 countries in Europe, Latin America, the Far East, or Africa for a summer or year.

Scholarship monies and other financial aid are still available to qualified students who wish to live and study abroad, according to Youth For Understanding. Full and partial scholarships will be awarded to students with suitable personal and academic qualifications. Low-interest loan funds are also available through the organization.

The experience comes at the unique time of life when students have the curiosity, flexibility, and openness of mind to gain maturity and perspective on another country and their own by participating personally in another culture.

Youth For Understanding students become regular family members in their overseas country, participating in all facets of local life as no tourist can. Typically, students gain an interest which lasts a lifetime, and provides an investment in their future which is unparalleled.

Students or their parents interested in information on this overseas living adventure with Youth For Understanding should contact Mrs. Nan Chezek, 2080 Brookdale, Toledo, Ohio 43606 (419)-535-5770 for more information. Like Miss Johnson, they will be taking the first step toward a journey to a distant country, people, and family to create friendships that span the globe.

Policeman 'Hero' Held In Slaying

WEST COVINA, Calif. (AP) — A policeman first hailed as a hero for shooting his way out of an abduction was held today on suspicion of kidnapping and murdering his alleged captor.

Authorities said Tuesday it appeared that 19-year-old David Dominguez was taken into custody and then shot by San Gabriel police officer Billy Joe McIlvain.

McIlvain, 32, told officers Monday afternoon when he emerged from his home, in which he supposedly was being held hostage, that he had overcome his captor.

But West Covina police discounted his story, and a few hours later he was jailed for investigation of kidnap and murder.

"Things he was saying just didn't look true to us," said West Covina Deputy Police Chief Craig Meacham. In his version, McIlvain told police that two gang members, Dominguez and another youth, forced his car to the side of the road and forced him at gunpoint to drive home.

McIlvain said the youths apparently were seeking revenge for a fellow gang member whom McIlvain had helped send to jail.

When police surrounded McIlvain's house, they were greeted by gunfire. They tried to negotiate with McIlvain's alleged captor, but McIlvain repeatedly got on the phone and said the youth refused to talk to police.

After more gunfire, McIlvain left the house, saying he had caught Dominguez off guard, pulled a handgun hidden in his boot and pumped five bullets into the youth.

But police said the officer's report began to unravel when Dominguez' mother and friends reported that McIlvain had kidnapped the youth.

David Lorenz, a friend of Dominguez', said the bizarre events began while he and Dominguez were chatting outside the home of Dominguez' girlfriend. He said McIlvain came up to them, pulled a badge and told Dominguez to come along or face arrest for carrying a concealed weapon. After hearing Lorenz' story and accounts from others who had witnessed the "arrest" of Dominguez, police issued a statement saying they had "probable cause to retain McIlvain for possible homicide."

9 Miners Said Trapped In Shaft

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Rescuers dredged through splintered timbers and muddy debris today trying to reach nine miners trapped in a flooded-out mine and given little chance of survival.

One miner died and three were injured when a three-foot-high wall of water surged through a tunnel wall at midday Tuesday.

Despite repeated attempts through the night, rescuers working in teams of five could come no closer than a few hundred feet from where the miners were thought to be.

There was no sign of life from within the flooded Porter Tunnel of the Kocher Coal Co. mine in Schuylkill County near here, rescuers said. The mile-long tunnel is under a 400-foot mountain.

"I don't know if we'll find anybody alive in there," said a grime-covered worker who left the damp, black tunnel at change of shift midnight Tuesday.

"We keep shouting, but we don't hear a thing," he said.

About 100 men were working underground at the time of the accident. Three of those who scrambled to safety were hospitalized in guarded condition.

Wives, mothers and relatives kept vigil at the main entrance, gazing tight-lipped at the gaping tunnel. They could only pray the miners had found an air pocket on high ground.

"There's always that possibility, but the probability is very unlikely," said John Shutack, district manager of the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration.

Bottle Law Pushed Again For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers want to reassess Ohio's littering problem before acting on legislation that would ban the snap top can and require deposits on all beer and pop bottles.

Rep. Walter D. McClaskey, R-86 Marion, suggested it may not be as bad as it was two or three years ago—before "pitch in" and other types of educational campaigns became fashionable.

He is a member of the House Energy and Environment Committee which is considering a three-bill package by Reps. Virginia Aveni, D-17 Lyndhurst, and Arthur V. N. Brooks, D-14 Cleveland Heights.

Chairman Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, echoed McClaskey's concern that more information is needed on the littering problem before legislation is enacted that could affect the state's employment situation.

He sent the measures to a subcommittee headed by Mrs. Aveni, and instructed it to confer with the transportation and natural resources departments about the situation along the state's highways and in its parks.

Similar legislation has been defeated in previous sessions of the General Assembly, mainly upon contentions by industry—particularly glass manufacturers in northwest Ohio—that it would cause widespread layoffs of employees.

Mechanics Lien Bill Clears Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill protecting homeowners from having to pay twice for construction or improvements on their property has cleared the House Judiciary Committee without dissent.

Sponsored by Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, the bill repeals Ohio's mechanics lien law, an antiquated statute that sets up double liability for the homeowner in certain situations.

Thompson's measure, sent to the rules committee Tuesday to await assignment to a floor vote, applies only to one and two-unit residential structures.

He said the bill wasn't needed for major housing and apartment complexes because their owners usually have access to attorneys and others who can shield them from possible consequences of the existing statute.

An example of what can happen under existing law is a situation in which a homeowner pays a contractor who in turn does not pay a subcontractor who performed work on a project. The homeowner then can become liable to the subcontractor although he already has paid the contractor for the same work.

The committee, headed by Rep. Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, adopted several amendments to Thompson's bill but left it generally intact.

One amendment requires lending institutions to obtain lien releases from contractors before settling the borrowing homeowners' debt with the contractor.

Thompson won passage of a more complicated mechanics lien repealer in the last legislature, but it was vetoed by Gov. James A. Rhodes as a complicated vehicle which failed to accomplish what was intended.

This time, the Cleveland lawmaker said his bill is relatively simple. In addition, majority Democrats now have the votes to override Rhodes' vetoes.

Prison Population Rises To 13,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's prison population climbed above 13,000 this week for the first time in history.

George F. Denton, director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction said there were 13,008 men and women in the state's seven prisons as of Monday, about 1,200 more than a year ago.

Denton said the number of inmates has increased by 5,300 in three years.

Department spokesman Joe Ashley said overcrowding has been most severe at the Lucasville, Lebanon and Mansfield prisons for men and the Marysville Reformatory for women.

The department is seeking an operating budget of $154.9 million from the Ohio General Assembly for fiscal year 1978-79, about a 30 per cent increase over current spending levels.

Deaf-Mute Facing Additional Charges

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — A 25-year-old deaf mute who was acquitted of murder here last November, faces another charge—aggravated burglary—and authorities are reviewing a five-year-old indictment against him.

That indictment charges James Robert Hunt with burglary and arson at the Elmwood branch of the Pickaway Grain Elevators in 1972.

Hunt was found innocent in the 1974 slaying of Ruth Arledge, 56, a neighbor whose body was found in a nearby state forest.

He appeared Monday in Ross County Common Pleas Court to answer a secret indictment charging him with the Feb. 3 aggravated burglary at the Joseph A. Walsh residence.

Judge J. Donald Ratcliff postponed the arraignment until Friday to give the Hunts an opportunity to obtain an attorney. Hunt remained in jail Tuesday under a $5,000 cash bond.

Investigators said Walsh told them the burglar, who acted like he had a gun, found no money in Walsh's billfold so he took some beer from the refrigerator and left.

Under Ohio law, breaking into the residence itself constitutes aggravated burglary, a felony, regardless of the value of goods taken.

Hunt's trial on the murder charge was delayed for two years by Ratcliff to permit Hunt to learn sign language at a state mental institution so he could assist in his defense.

Meanwhile, Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley said he is reviewing the indictment stemming from the Pickaway Grain Elevators burglary and fire.

The indictments were placed in an inactive file by Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer when Hunt was confined to Orient State Hospital.

Ratcliff said Hunt's mother probably would handle any interpreting necessary at the arraignment, unlike the murder trial when an interpreter had to be appointed to help Hunt with his defense.

However, the judge added, "he can communicate, a lot better. He can almost talk."

Probe Bares Heat Leaks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lewis Research Center ran an infrared scanner over three sections of Cleveland to see which buildings were leaking heat, and a Lewis official says the scanner view of the buildings showed that "nearly all of them leaked."

The infrared survey was part of a city program to get people to get their homes insulated against heat loss to save energy.

Dr. Herman Mark of Lewis, a NASA facility, said Tuesday the scanner data stored on magnetic tape is to be run through a computer, which would print out photo-like images.

The pictures to be delivered to the city in about six weeks, he said. City officials plan to put them on public display so residents of the areas covered can see how badly their houses are leaking heat.

Mayor Ralph Perk's energy watchdog, Harry Volk, said $5 million in federal funds was available for low-interest loans to people in lower-income brackets for insulating homes.

He said six inches of insulation in the attic of a typical house of 1,500 square feet would cost about $250 but would save the owner 20 per cent in fuel consumption.

PUCO Stalls Prospective Gas Probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed $1.2 million investigation of the natural gas problem in Ohio has stalled while public utilities commissioners await word on whether state funding is available.

The commissioners voted 3-0 Monday to send an 18-page staff proposal to Gov. James A. Rhodes and legislative leaders along with a letter asking, in effect, if the state is willing to pay for the study.

John Borrows, director of PUCO's utilities department, outlined the proposal last week, calling for an in-depth effort that would go deeper into the problem than other investigations of the energy shortage.

After a decision on the undertaking was temporarily set aside, a PUCO spokesman noted that the commission has been criticized in the past for using information provided by utilities.

"To gather independent data, we will have to go outside the scope of the commission, and we have to see whether the legislature is willing to provide funding," the spokesman said.

Borrows said the PUCO investigation, if fully funded, would determine the degree of effort made by utilities to purchase natural gas for winter needs and whether allocations were "in the best interest of their Ohio customers."

"We want to know if Ohio distribution companies have been more or less successful than other companies in securing gas from interstate pipelines," he said.

The probe would also explore relationships between Ohio gas companies and their distributors, particularly when they are affiliated, such as Columbia Gas of Ohio and the Columbia Transmission Co.

Investigators would also check conservation efforts, alternate fuel sources, self-help gas programs and intercompany trading he said.

Borrows envisions a seven month study using five PUCO staffers and outside consultants.

U.S., Cuba Eye Talks On Fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has notified Cuba that it is willing to discuss questions arising from the decision of both countries to limit the operation of foreign fishing fleets within 200 miles of their coastlines, administration sources say.

Excluding minor matters, the negotiations would be the first between the two countries since they signed an anti-hijacking agreement more than four years ago.

The officials said the United States responded positively to an inquiry made several weeks ago by the Cubans about the possibility of discussing the implications of the mutual extension of fisheries limits.

The fisheries issue was one of several topics taken up on an unannounced visit here two weeks ago by the Swiss ambassador to Havana, Etienne Serra, who handles U.S. interests in Cuba.

One issue subject to negotiation is the maritime boundary between the two countries, which are about 90 miles apart.

Officials said the United States, as an interim measure, is laying claim over waters up to the half way mark between the Florida southern tip and Cuba's north coast.

They said the setting of the distant boundaries is normal procedure for nations with overlapping jurisdictions.

Cuba also has extensive fishing interests within the new U.S. zone, particularly off the New England coast. According to sources, Cuban operations in these areas presumably will cease for the time being in the absence of a bilateral agreement.

Given Cuba's willingness to negotiate with Washington, officials said they expect Cuba will respect the new U.S. fisheries law.

Couple Moves Back To Ghetto

CHICAGO (AP) — Most blacks who can afford to are moving out of the ghetto. Charles and Inez McCord moved back in.

The retired couple, both in their early 60s, gave up their $390-a-month apartment in a predominantly white neighborhood and moved into a battered black neighborhood on the city's South Side.

For $8,500 McCord bought the house where his family first lived when it moved to Chicago in 1925.

"It takes vision, a minimum of money and guts, but you can go home again," McCord said. "I'm home and I'm happy. Part of the trouble with the black community is that too many people who could help to improve it want to leave."

The McCords sank their life savings into refurbishing the old two-story brick rowhouse on a once-fashionable boulevard now blighted by years of change and decay.

McCord said the decision was chiefly motivated by a need to "come back to our roots. For years I'd been living in highrent, middle-class apartments in areas with mostly whites. I felt I was losing my identity as a black individual."

McCord operated a janitorial service until his retirement last year. His wife was a college library director. He has four grown daughters by a previous marriage.

The couple moved into their new home last December following a nine-month remodeling job that brought their total investment to around $50,000. The house, now almost fully restored, is a neighborhood showpiece.

"It used to be the worst-looking house on the block," McCord said. "I call it a damn good investment now. Where else could you get 12-inch walls and 9½-foot ceilings for $50,000?"

The house sits only about a block south of a mammoth high-rise public housing project plagued by crime, but the couple say they feel less threatened in the ghetto than in their old neighborhood in southwestern Chicago, near the scene of last summer's open housing marches that erupted into bitter racial fighting.

Still, they take precautions. The grillwork over the front windows, for instance, is protective as well as decorative.

The McCords were forced to pay the housing rehabilitation costs out of their own pocket after two financial institutions, including one in which they said they had $10,000 in savings, turned down their loan requests.

Finding contractors to perform the work at a reasonable price also proved difficult.

There were times during the early stages of renovation, especially after a carpenter had an estimated $200 worth of tools stolen, when the McCords despaired over the success of the project.

"But we never gave up our vision," Mrs. McCord said. "We just kept telling ourselves that we would be going home soon, back to our people."

McCord says, "This street will never be the same as it was years ago, but it could still be a beautiful place to live. I've got the kind of beauty and comfort most people want."

Teays Valley Board Reviews School Calendar

If no more days are missed this year by Teays Valley students, the remaining calendar should not change. The consequences of the energy days missed was discussed by Teays Valley board during the meeting Monday evening.

A letter of request was submitted to the state superintendent of Public Instruction dealing with clamity and energy days.

The completion of the school term should fall on June 2 for students and June 3 for teachers. If no more days are missed, according to Superintendent Benis Lutz, students will still have vacations on Good Friday, Easter Monday and March 11, scheduled as a county visitation day for teachers. Teays Valley teachers will attend a workshop at the school.

High school principal Ron Claibourne reported on a number of activities at the high school. Graduation will be May 29, with baccalaureate at 2 p.m. and commencement at 8 p.m. The board is to provide speakers for both events. It is up to the class and staff to determine if the event will be indoor or outdoor.

School students and parents are planning the activities for the Junior-Senior prom scheduled for May 14. The board was informed of the North-Central inspection this week. The board appropriated funds for expenses of the visiting team members Wednesday and Thursday.

Also at the high school underclass registration is scheduled for March 7. Mini classes will be held to give the students the chance to experience how the class will be handled. Several changes were approved by the board for additional classes to replace traditional courses. If enough students sign up, courses such as mass media, public debate and personal finance will be taught next year.

During the registration, seniors will attend career day at the school. They will hear about the various avenues open to them after graduation.

A student trip over the Easter Vacation was approved by the board. Social studies students will go on a historical tour with the American History teacher Phillip Forsythe.

The board approved a field trip for the ecology class at Cape Hatteras, N.C. They will be spending three days with a full agenda studying geology work, touring the beach, mountains and woods and visiting the Wright Brothers Museum. Approximately 20 students will attend along with Mrs. Abagale Robinson and John Karg.

The board of education was contacted by the Franklin County board regarding the future of the Groveport-Madison School District. They were asked if the district was interested in accepting students from the Groveport Madison district. The Teays Valley board returned a letter opposing the idea. Lutz said the move would be of no advantage to the local district because the tax rates were similar.

Course remuneration for five staff members was authorized and the issuance of the supplemental contracts was approved. Professional leave for five staff members was also approved by the board.

Supplemental contracts was given to Thomas Neil as tennis coach and Mrs. Beth Dague as softball coach for the high school.

A letter from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, concerning the landfill was discussed and the consignment sale at Walnut Twp. School was approved. The board sanctioned the skating party by the elementary school on March 11, when students are not in session.

The special election will take place June 7 for the bond issue. The next board meeting is March 28.

A Page Of Opinion

March Is Red Cross Month

Since the first settlement on these shores, Americans have worked together voluntarily to conquer problems and to care for one another in time of adversity. As we celebrated our 200th anniversary, this neighbor - helping - neighbor approach was still with us, exemplified by an organization that has become known as the Good Neighbor - the American Red Cross.

Today, millions of dedicated Red Cross volunteers provide countless services to help their neighbors to cope with everyday problems as well as major emergencies, no matter whether those neighbors live across the street or across the country.

Last year, Red Cross activities were planned, directed, and put into action by 1,371,002 volunteers assisted by a career staff of 14,871. Helping the Red Cross to fulfill its role were the 30,945,344 persons who provided voluntary financial support, the 4,262,356 who contributed blood through the Red Cross Blood Program and cooperating community blood banks, and the 6,191,941 young people participating in Red Cross programs in schools. Across the land, Red Cross volunteers stood ready to provide disaster assistance wherever needed and to give services to members of the armed forces and veterans and their families.

Red Cross volunteers conducted thousands of courses in first aid, water safety, home nursing and preparation for parenthood. They worked in hospitals, clinics, health centers and nursing homes. They served in schools and day-care centers, detention homes and prisons. For many older persons, Red Cross volunteers made the difference between being alone and afraid and feeling in touch and wanted by providing telephone re-assurance programs, friendly visits and transportation to doctors' offices and clinics and to community events. Older persons not only were served; many of them served others as Red Cross volunteers.

A big country like ours has big needs, made up of millions of small needs that the Red Cross answers with voluntary help - neighbor helping neighbor. The Red Cross still lives where you live - wherever you are, wherever you need. This is why it is called the GOOD NEIGHBOR!

Sober As A Duck

By JIM BISHOP

Sweeney was a proper man. He was the mayor. He was the judge. He owned the hardware store. Sweeney wore a tie and never laughed. In church he knew all the hymns.

Pud said, "You're calling these cases too soon. They're still drunk." The mayor reminded Pud that it was he, Sweeney, who was the judge. Pud was only the chief of police. Prisoners were entitled to an expeditious hearing and this was going to be expeditious. The chief was jolly. Pud weighed 315 in his skivvies. When he listened he sounded like a busted organ. What his body did to the left side of a squad car was sheer murder. He covered a mile-and-a-half of the island in one direction and a half-mile in the other.

He liked to brag that he had little crime on the island and no stolen cars. Last night he had picked up Mr. and Mrs. Jason and slammed them into the rubber jail. Drunken driving.

It isn't easy to jug a husband and wife for D.W.I. unless they are driving separate cars. They were. Earl Jason was driving east in his sports car. Doris Jason was heading west in her old Packard.

They sort of caromed. Pud heard of it by party line switchboard. He picked up Earl Jason and a bent fender at the Faraway Bar. He got Doris Jason sleeping in her car at a gas pump.

He put them in separate cells because the whole island knew that there were times when the Jasons were not on speaking terms. They were people of enormous dignity. Earl was tall with a bird's wing of gray at his temples.

He was a concert pianist. Mr. Jason had not played Carnegie Hall but he never permitted the village to forget that he had played an organ next door. Doris was so rich she often dragged a mink behind her in July.

In an unguarded moment she had bought Earl a mammoth organ. At 3 a.m., if Earl couldn't sleep, no one slept. He rapped Brahms loud enough to set the big fire bell to humming.

Sweeney called the case. He noted that the Jasons had a lawyer, probably from the Big Apple. He also noted that Doris and Jason were whispering and giggling. The judge asked Pud to state his case.

The chief said he had an anonymous tip. He found two bent fenders at opposite ends of the island. He also found two slightly bent defendants. "Mr. Earl" was standing in a parking lot alone. He tried to get into his car and walked by it twice.

"Miz Doris" was sleeping in her car at Sullivan's filling station. He had opened the car and "Miz Doris" had fallen out. Her feather boa had blown away on the breeze and her black velvet suit sustained grease stains.

"How do you plead?" Sweeney was wearing his fright scowl. The lawyer stood. "Not guilty for both, your honor." Sweeney hated lawyers. He had never attended law school and he despised words like certiorari and vire dire.

"Do the defendants wish to speak in their behalf?" Earl Jason stood. He had a little rubber duck in his pocket. He squeezed it twice. "My client," the lawyer said gravely, "has lost his voice. That means not guilty."

Sweeney fumed. He asked were you or were you not drunk last night. The duck squeaked. "Make him stop that," Sweeney shouted. Jason grinned and weaved like an apathetic cobra. The judge made the mistake of asking more questions. He got more squeaks.

"In the absence of evidence to the contrary, your honor, I move for a dismissal." "I know, I know," Sweeney shouted. "Okay. We let him off this time." He lost his temper. "The whole island knows he's drunk every night of his life and."

"In the matter of the defendant Jason, Doris, your honor, we not only plead not guilty, but must warn you that we will file suit for damages against the island and."

"File what for what?" Sweeney shouted. "The chief was doing his duty. Mrs. Jason was driving an intoxicated car. I mean, driving while intoxicated."

Doris stood. She lifted herself to her full five feet two. She had a screech like $2 brakes. "Pud testified that I was sitting in my car. Have you ever heard anything more outlandish than 'drunk sitting in a car'? I was sleeping. He opened the door and endangered my life when I fell out. I'm suing him, you and the island."

Sweeney never drank. He drank that day. At noon he was woofled. Pud didn't have the nerve to bag him...

"Thanks very much. I don't know how I can ever repay you."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband is a student. I am early in pregnancy. Because of our finances, I am going to a clinic. I have confidence in my doctors, but I cannot get as much information as I need to satisfy me during this important period. Can you tell me what you consider to be the best advice for a young pregnant woman in terms of diet, vitamins and medication?

Mrs. E. B. R., Mass.

Dear Mrs. R.:
I know the hospital where you are being followed and I want to assure you that it is an excellent one. Most such clinics have booklets specially designed for the new mother. You should ask about this.

Diet during pregnancy is aimed at fulfilling the needs for all nutrients, minerals and vitamins. In most instances, a well-balanced diet supplies all of these factors.

Doctors who are involved with expectant mothers try to avoid excessive weight gains. Similarly, doctors do not allow their patients to be markedly underweight. Both extremes are known to affect the size and well-being of the newborn baby.

Blood studies throughout pregnancy determine the proper balance between protein, fat and carbohydrate that is essential in each individual case. The need for iron, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D, sodium and other nutrients varies from time to time, throughout pregnancy. Adjustments are made, depending on the patient's need.

Generally, physicians avoid ALL drugs throughout pregnancy. Even the "safe" over-the-counter drugs that women may have taken in the past should now be taken ONLY with the doctor's permission.

You will find that there are many groups organized by doctors and nurses for the purpose of directing and helping mothers-to-be. You should inquire about this. I am sure that they exist in your city.

Are X-ray treatments still used for bursitis of the shoulder? I remember I had this done once years ago. It was helpful at the time.

Mr. J.S., Ga.

Dear Mr. S.:
The use of X-ray is still an accepted form of treatment for bursitis. It is probably being used less frequently today than formerly, because cortisone has been found to be so effective when injected into the shoulder joint.

There now are a number of excellent drugs which control the pain of bursitis. These are tried first, before resorting to the use of X-ray.

Governors Unhappy With Carter Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is assuring the nation's governors they will have "a working relationship" with his administration, but there are signs of strain in that arrangement.

Even as Carter was pledging the governors a role in federal policymaking, a handful of governors were complaining that the administration had abruptly canceled water development projects in their states without telling them about it.

Carter did not alter that budget decision, although he did tell the dissatisfied governors the states involved will get a hearing to prove, if they can, that the projects should be reinstated.

The President, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, and members of the Cabinet spent 2½ hours with the governors on Monday. Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, chairman of the National Governors Conference, said they came away delighted with the prospect of an administration more attentive to their views and needs.

The governors are winding up their two-day Washington conference today with a round of meetings with Cabinet officials and congressional leaders. Then it's back to the White House for a black-tie dinner with the President, who didn't have much use for such conferences when he was governor of Georgia.

Askew said the Monday session, at long tables arrayed in the State Dining Room, was the beginning of a dialogue between Washington and the state capitals.

"We discussed the need for collaboration to deal with our economic problems, to overcome our energy shortages, to deal with the cold and the drought and make government work more economically and effectively at all levels," Askew said. "The President concluded by saying that the job will be easier for the federal government if the states meet it halfway."

Askew said the administration already has enlisted the governors to work on welfare reform and on changes in the Medicaid system of care for the needy. They also have been invited to make proposals for the energy policy message Carter has promised by about April 20.

But there were no calls to the governors before Carter announced the cancellation of 19 water resources development projects to cut $288 million from his revised budget. All told, it would take $5.1 billion to complete those projects, located in 14 states.

Dear Editor:

The 1977 Heart Fund residential campaign in Circleville was conducted during the past two weeks by a large number of volunteers who deserve much credit for a very successful fund drive. The city solicitation was carried out by precinct captains Waneta Garner, Carolyn Harper, Norma Lochbaum, Jean Spangler, Mary Menzies, Gloria Greer, Pam Hamilton, Sue McClelland, Madeline Smith, Faye Hill, Pam Wolfe, Jack O'Donnell, Judy Davie, and many other precinct workers.

I wish to thank all of the captains and their helpers for devoting much time and effort to this worthy cause.

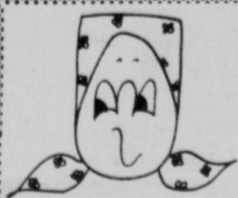

Sincerely,

Meal Appeal

DESSERTS IN MINUTES

Many families feel that a meal is not complete without dessert. Desserts should not be an afterthought, but planned with nutrition in mind. Each day we need four servings of fruits and vegetables, four servings of bread and cereals, three servings of milk or milk products, and two servings of meat. Fruit and milk based desserts can be planned to fit within this daily guide and also influence children's future dessert choices.

Since the busy homemaker cannot always find time to prepare desserts, she needs to keep recipes for quick desserts on file. The following three milk and fruit based desserts require less than 15 minutes preparation time and are ready to serve at the end of the dinner hour.

Quick Pumpkin Pudding

1 cup canned pumpkin or mashed squash or mashed sweet potatoes
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1 tablespoon molasses
1 1/2 cups milk
1 package instant vanilla pudding mix.

Combine pumpkin, salt, spices and molasses. Stir in milk until smooth. Add pudding and beat slowly about one minute until thick. Chill and serve. Makes 6 servings.

Pineapple Lime Fluff

1 carton (9 oz.) prepared whipped topping
1 box (3 oz.) lime flavored gelatin
1 can (20 oz.) drained crushed pineapple
1 carton (16 oz.) small curd cottage cheese
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Fold undissolved gelatin into whipped topping. Add drained pineapple, cottage cheese and nuts. Stir until blended. Chill 30 minutes before serving. Makes 12 servings.

Apple Upside-Down Cake

1 can (22 oz.) apple pie filling
1 box (18 1/2 oz.) yellow or white cake mix
1-3 cups water
2 eggs

Spread pie filling in a 9 x 13 inch baking pan. Prepare cake mix as directed on package and spread evenly over pie filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. For breakfast cake, cut in squares and lift out carefully with wide spatula, turning filling side up. For a dessert, spoon out while warm. Serve with sauce. Makes 16 servings.

Tag-Along Sauce

1 cup brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup water

Combine all but water in a small baking dish. Gradually stir in water. Place in oven with cake. Sauce will thicken without stirring.

Convenient food items helped make these desserts quick and easy but added slightly to the cost. However, when time is a precious element, sometimes it is more economical to buy prepared products rather than have to do the work at home.

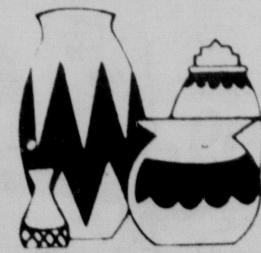

A well stocked cupboard, refrigerator and freezer of convenience items can help you turn out last minute desserts. Canned pie filling can serve as a topping for frozen pound cake, ice cream, or frozen waffles. Canned pudding can be served "as is" or dressed up with marshmallows, nuts, fruit, sour cream, or whipped topping. Frosting mixes can top more than a cake from a mix. How about icing cookies or filling graham crackers? Fresh, canned or frozen fruit can be a dessert by itself, especially for low calorie diets, or accompanied by cheese or yogurt. Yogurt also makes a great topping for gelatin quick set, using frozen fruit instead of ice. Hot spiced tea, hot chocolate or a sweet fruit juice can also be a pleasing climax to a meal.

To help you round out your meal planning with nutritious desserts we have prepared a recipe sheet with directions for Cherry Pudding Cake, Golden Toppers, Fruit Meringue, Baked Custard, Fruit Crisp, Applesauce Dessert, 5 Cup Fruit Cream, and Pineapple Upside-down cake. If you would like a copy call or write the County Extension Service, 137 W. Franklin Street, Circleville, phone 474-7534. It will be sent to you in a packet of recipe sheets offered in this "Meal Appeal" column.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Wednesday March 2, 1977

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Phony Addict: Be A Ham

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for the woman in Kansas who's afflicted with "telephonitis"—especially long-distance calls. (She hides her phone bills so her husband won't know how high they are.)

She should consider becoming a "ham" radio operator. Amateur radio permits long-distance communication all over the world for free except for the initial price of the equipment one needs.

It's a great hobby, but I'm not so sure female hams are kosher. (Ha, Ha!)

IDEA MAN IN N.Y.

DEAR MAN: Great idea! And female hams are indeed kosher. I'm told that there are approximately 12,000 licensed female hams in the U.S.A.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know what the only absolutely foolproof method of birth control is?

OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR OK: Yes. It's "NO!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old married man who is fairly successful. My wife and I raised a son and a daughter—both of whom are now married.

I never qualified as the world's best father—or even close to it. In fact, I was always too busy to be the kind of father I should have been to my son. We never had a really good father-son relationship, but luckily he turned out all right.

Six months ago, I saw an ad for "Big Brothers"—an organization of men who volunteer to take a fatherless boy to a sports event, lunch, supper, or just let him hang around on a Sunday afternoon.

Impulsively, I volunteered my services and lined up an 11-year-old boy from a broken home. I picked him up and brought him to my home, and we spent the afternoon getting acquainted. He was very quiet and shy at first, but later on he opened up. He's a wonderful, sensitive kid who never had the breaks, and he appreciated my attention.

Lukens Pushes 'Golden Age Package'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Donald E. Lukens, R-4 Middletown, announced Tuesday a five-bill "Golden Age package" that includes an expansion of the Homestead property tax exemption and the potential for free legal services to the elderly.

Lukens, a former U.S. congressman, said the legislation was designed to ease "the pressure of senior citizen problems."

"We know they live on the periphery of existence," Lukens said.

Lukens would raise the minimum income level to qualify for a property tax exemption from $10,000 to $15,000 annually for those 62 or older.

He also wants to permit lawyers to deduct for tax purposes from their adjusted gross income the value of legal services performed at no fee for the elderly.

The package, to be introduced later this week, also includes:

—Establishment by the Ohio Commission on Aging of nonprofit corporations to build and operate multipurpose senior citizen centers.

—Appointment of one senior citizen to each of 13 boards and commissions that make decisions directly affecting the elderly.

—A resolution asking the U.S. Congress to repeal the minimum wage law as it applies to the elderly to provide an incentive for hiring.

EMS Makes 67 Runs In February

The Circleville Emergency Medical Service made a total of 67 runs in February. Of the total, 43 were made within the corporation limits, eight to Circleville Twp., one to Jackson Twp., four each to Washington, Pickaway and Wayne Twp. and three to other areas.

Sixteen of the runs were to automobile injury accidents, 13 to other type of injury accidents, 24 in response for illnesses, 10 to cardiac cases, three to fires and one false alarm.

The Circleville Police department was the dispatching agency for 22 of the calls, the county sheriff for 21, fire department for one and Mader Funeral Home for two.

The squad drove 68 miles during the month, an average of 9.7 miles per run. The volunteers worked 1379 regular hours and 832 on electron. Sixty-four volunteers worked during the month.

Sixty times volunteers continued to Columbus with patients in private ambulances.

Bystanders Capture Rape Suspect

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A screaming victim who claimed she was raped and chased a knife-wielding man down a busy San Francisco street was joined by pedestrians who helped disarm and capture the alleged attacker, police said.

Police said William Snyder, 21, was booked for investigation of rape, attempted robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers said he allegedly posed as a smoke alarm salesman to enter the apartment of a 29-year-old woman Monday afternoon. The victim told police he raped her at knifepoint and fled with her wallet in one hand and a kitchen knife in the other.

With the screaming woman on his trail, the man ran down the crowded Union Street shopping area. There he was tackled by Alan Bridges, 34, who was stabbed in the leg in the struggle. The man got up and continued running, with Monique Bertrand, 23, and Terry Neely, a 20-year-old former Marine sergeant, taking up the chase.

Waving the knife, the man darted in and around afternoon shoppers as he fled down the street. Police said Neely led the posse that grew to more than a dozen angry citizens during the two-block sprint.

Neely was the first to catch up with the man. Police said Neely stripped off his wide leather belt and used it to snap the knife from the man's hand, then tackled him.

"He could never have outrun me," Neely said later. "He made a mistake. He could have run five miles and I would still have been there."

Top Volunteer Scout To Speak

The top volunteer leader of the 5.8 million member Boy Scouts of America is coming to Columbus for an appearance at the Annual Appreciation dinner of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America.

President Arch Monson, San Francisco, California, will speak to two thousand volunteer Scouters of the Central Ohio Council, on Saturday evening, March 12, at the Lausche Building, Ohio Exposition Center.

Ceremonies at the council's Annual Appreciation dinner include honoring two women and eleven men by presenting to them Scouting's highest award to local Scout council volunteers, the Silver Beaver award.

Scout Jamboree Meeting To Be Held

Scouts from all over the nation will have the chance to learn new Scout skills and program ideas at the 1977 National Scout Jamboree to be held Aug. 3-9 in Pennsylvania. Besides these techniques, jambo-goers will soak up leadership how-tos. All this learning is designed to strengthen Scouting at the troop, district and council levels when the boys return home. But many skilled youth and adult staff leaders are needed to make this event a top quality experience.

Here's a list of just some of the numerous staff jobs waiting to be filled by qualified Scouts and Scouters: Trading Posts: jobs ranging from sales clerks to warehousemen (youth and adult). Ceremonies and Shows: Jamboree band members to play during opening and closing arena shows and other events (youth). Daily Activities: Staffers are especially needed to supervise the following:

Mysterious Disease Kills 2 Workmen

ATLANTA (AP) — Two employees of the national Center for Disease Control who worked in the laboratory where virus diseases are studied have died of a mysterious ailment, the center said today.

Laboratory tests were under way to try to determine the nature of the ailment from which the warehouseman and maintenance man died. Neither man was involved in actual research on "legionnaires' disease" or other diseases investigated in the building.

Both victims displayed similar symptoms, which the CDC said appear to be related to flu.

Don Berreth, director of the office of information, emphasized that only tests would determine if it was flu. A spokesman said it may take several days to find the cause.

"Clinically, this does not seem to be 'legionnaires' disease," Berreth said, "but we are looking at everything."

"There does not appear to be any unusual illness among the other employees," he added.

Dead are George Flowers, 49, who died in an Atlanta hospital Sunday, and Robert Dubington, 43, a retired military man who died at Ft. McPherson Army hospital in Atlanta about 3 a.m. today.

Both men worked in Building 7, one of 14 that make up the center. It contains the research laboratories used for investigations of diseases such as influenza, smallpox, measles and "legionnaires' disease."

LIKE A LION — March, when only about four hours old, came to Pickaway County like a lion with a three-inch accumulation of snow by 9 a.m. The month will change quickly to a lamb, according to the National Weather Service, which forecasts temperatures in the 50s, spring showers for Thursday and Friday, and fair skies this weekend.

Consumer Counsel Seeks New Funding

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's new consumers' counsel has told his bosses they have until April 1 to get their first report to the legislature and must act promptly to insure funding for continued operation in the next biennium.

William A. Spratley, hired by the Consumers' Counsel Governing Board as its consumer counsel last week, presented a plan of action for the board at its first policy setting session Tuesday.

He reminded the seven members of the nine-member board who attended that their current $750,000 budget will lapse June 30, the end of the current biennium.

"We now have 17 weeks left to establish an office and approve a plan as a starting point," he said. "We're not in the next biennial budget yet."

He suggested board members may need to appear at appropriate legislative committee meetings to insure funding for the agency in the next two years.

He also said the first annual report should cover organizational efforts for the board's first five weeks of operation and must be a prospective document looking to the next biennium.

"Based upon the annual report," he said in the plan, "a $2 million assessment and appropriation should be planned for the Consumers' Counsel during the 1977-79 biennium."

The startup fund and future costs of the office will be assessed against utilities, proportionate to their gross receipts.

Spratley's plan calls for hiring a staff of up to 30 persons by the end of April, locating in permanent office space and establishing contact with state and national agencies and public interest groups by June 30.

Spratley's plan of action stated that too many consumers feel no government agency is responding to their utility problems.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 65th annual convention of the American Hotel-Motel Association held here recently, drew 1,105 members, a record high for the national meeting of people in the hospitality business.

Blanchester Man May Win Freedom

CINCINNATI (AP) — Larry C. Florea, the Blanchester, Ohio, mechanic who was back in uniform after claiming the U.S. Army lost his records for 6½ years "could very well" get an honorable discharge without a court martial, an Army spokesman said.

"The average guy that has been gone 6½ years doesn't have a defense," said Maj. Jerry Gantt, a Fort Knox information officer said by telephone. But, he said, "this man has got a defense. He could very well get an honorable discharge."

Florea, 26, father of three, said he applied for a discharge to be eligible for a Veterans Administration (VA) loan. He was told by the Defense Department to surrender to Wright Patterson AFB last Tuesday where he was arrested, transported to Fort Knox and held as a private on a charge of being absent without leave (AWOL).

Florea spurned a military offer of a discharge other than honorable even though he has since learned he did not have the required 180 days of active duty to be eligible for the VA loan.

Florea, and his lawyer, Jerry Bryant, Wilmington, Ohio, maintain the Army lost Florea's records when he was transferred in 1971 to Fort Eustis, Va. Florea said he was sent home to await further orders and tried for 18 months to clarify his status. Finally, he quit trying, got married and went to work.

Gantt said Florea may be released later this week on leave without pay. He collected no military salary during the 6½ years he was home.

Bryant said he is gathering depositions from people who accompanied Florea when he made several trips to military installations trying to resolve his military status during 1970 and 1971.

The Army spokesman had said Florea had an obligation to resolve the issue long ago.

Ohio Facing Indian Attack

CLEVELAND (AP) — Seneca Indian Chief Beeman Logan says his tribe is considering suing the federal government for damages over loss of an undetermined amount of land in northeastern Ohio, including parts of what is now Cleveland.

He says incomplete research shows the Senecas once lived on the land, which was not part of a reservation.

Logan said Tuesday Seneca chiefs are probing the question and are keeping an eye on suits filed by tribes in Maine and Massachusetts before deciding what to do.

Logan belongs to the Seneca Bird clan in North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"We have a historian studying the history of the area around Cleveland and Akron," he said.

"We will decide when that is complete whether to take it to court."

"If we go to court, we would probably ask for a monetary settlement, rather than trying to repossess the land," he added.

The Vesuvius Furnace, first hot-blast furnace in America, was put in operation in southern Ohio in 1837. AP

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Laymen are apt to have the feeling," a judge observed not long ago, "that a motorcycle does not have the same status on the highways as an automobile."

Rejecting any such feeling, the judge imposed damages on a motorist who had made a sudden left turn in front of an oncoming motorcyclist.

Generally speaking, the courts agree with the judge that motorists must not treat motorcyclists as second-class citizens on the public streets. By the same token, the courts also demand a comparable standard of care on the part of the motorcyclists. Thus:

A motorcyclist saw a truck stopping on the highway some distance ahead. He swerved onto the shoulder of the road, hit a rut, lost control of his machine, and suffered injuries.

Even if the truck driver was wrong in stopping on the highway, said a court later, the victim himself was guilty of negligence. The court said he had plenty of time to halt safely behind the truck, just as a careful motorist would have done.

In case of accident, does it matter if the motorcyclist did not have a license? Not necessarily.

A motorist pulled out of a parking place without giving a warning signal, colliding with an approaching motorcyclist. Injured, the latter filed suit for damages.

At the trial, the motorist argued as follows:

"This fellow had no license to drive a motorcycle in the first place. By rights he had no business on the street at all."

But the court upheld the motorcyclist's claim, pointing out that his lack of a license — even though wrongful — had no causal connection with the accident. He would have suffered exactly the same fate, said the court, whether he had a license or not.

Camp Holmes, it was Tombe who allowed Mrs. Purdy's father to join the rest of the family at Camp Holmes. After he had been invited to the reunion, Tombe decided that it would be proper for him to present each person in attendance with a present. So he had a special medal struck, and at the reunion banquet at the officer's club in the Presidio, he presented the medals to the people that he had been in charge of some 32 years earlier.

While in San Francisco, the members attending the reunion stayed at the Quality Inn that overlooks the Golden Gate Bridge. For Mrs. Purdy,

Woman Weary Of Anastasia Investigation

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Anna Anderson Manahan says she's weary of her 50-year quest to prove she's the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia and isn't interested in new support for her claim.

Moritz Furtmayr, a leading West German forensic expert, reported last week that an anatomical comparison of Mrs. Manahan's right ear with the right ear of the long-lost Anastasia showed 17 identical points, five more than is usually needed for positive identification.

"Of course. How could it be anything else?" the frail, 75-year-old Mrs. Manahan said Monday when told of the findings of Furtmayr.

But Mrs. Manahan, wife of a retired University of Virginia history professor, John Manahan, said she didn't care what Furtmayr might have found.

"I am ill of this dirt," she said in an interview at the Charlottesville home where she has lived since 1968. "I will not read this dirt ... Is my ear so important?"

"... I am ill of the constant, constant questions. Even little children ask me, 'Anastasia, when will you get your jewelry back?'"

Newspaper Wins Suit For Data

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Akron Beacon Journal has won its suit for access to various government records and a judge has agreed to consider the newspaper's challenge to the constitutionality of Ohio's new privacy law.

Summit County Common Pleas Court Judge William Baird ruled Monday that the records in question couldn't be withheld from the public. He also set a hearing date of March 17 on the Beacon Journal's further request that the 1976 privacy act be declared unconstitutional.

The judge granted the Beacon Journal access to birth records in the health department, records of workhouse inmates concerning crimes for which they were sentenced, and records of expenses incurred by city councilmen, such as travel vouchers.

The newspaper's challenge to the law's constitutionality was delayed at the request of the state attorney general's office which said it needed time to prepare briefs on the issues.

The publication has argued that the privacy law is unclear and that city officials don't know what records to withhold or to release. The newspaper also argued that the act conflicts with Ohio's 1963 open records law. The privacy act prevents government agencies from releasing personal information from people's records without the individual's consent.

ERA Nixed By Prayer In South?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A women's prayer chain claims its efforts persuaded the Lord to tip the balance against the Equal Rights Amendment, which the North Carolina Senate defeated 26-24.

They say their prayers worked better than did personal telephone calls on behalf of the ERA from President Carter and First Lady Rosalynn Carter to wavering state senators.

"Our prayer chain did it," said Norma Swanson of Raleigh after the vote Tuesday. "We had women praying all night and all day, women from all walks of life. We asked God that if this thing was not in his plan that he would see that it was defeated."

Mrs. Swanson, of suburban Cary, said no formal organization backed the chain, just herself and a friend and a lot of telephoning.

She called about 50 friends, each of whom called other friends in other cities. She estimated several hundred all over the state were finally involved. A schedule was set up starting at midnight Monday, the eve of Senate action on the ERA, and running through Tuesday.

Women signed up to pray in one-hour time slots, and extra volunteers promised to pray off and on throughout the day.

and her sister and parents who were also in attendance, that view had special significance. As Mrs. Purdy stated, "the bridge was just about the first thing we saw in the United States when we returned on the ship after the war."

Life in a prisoner of war camp can spur all types of visions in a person's mind, but for Mrs. Purdy at least, the three years and three months of imprisonment aren't remembered with total disgust and anguish.

She stated that Camp Holmes, where the large majority of the three years and three months was spent, was unique in that it contained over 500 residents. Because it was so large, a small government was established. A chairman was elected and committees were formed. For the good of the community and to insure the welfare of all persons in that type of situation, all food grown and all property obtained was given to the community. The committee grew nearly all the food consumed by the camp.

"We did things as a community. That is a big reason for us having a reunion. It is probably the only one we'll have though. Quite a few of the older people have died and the younger ones among us wanted to see each other again," said Mrs. Purdy. "We were extremely close, especially us children. We called the adults in the camp 'aunt' and 'uncle.' It's hard to explain, but you really develop strong feelings for each other when you live closely like that for so long."

Of course the Japanese didn't permit items of news in the camp during the war. Things like newspapers, magazines, and radios were forbidden. The camp did have one irregular news source though. One of the men in the camp, an American, had a good knowledge of electronics and radios. The Japanese were aware of his talents, so they had him fix their radio equipment when it malfunctioned. Mrs. Purdy stated that the man would sit at the controls with the headsets on and pretend to be tinkering with the radio, and all the while he would try to pick up an English speaking station. Upon finding one he would listen to the news broadcast, then proceed to fix the radio, always making sure to leave a wire loose or a small piece of equipment out of place to insure a return trip "to fix the radio." Thus the camp picked up bits and pieces from a world at war. Probably the biggest single scoop was news of the death of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

Mrs. Purdy also told of the Japanese use of propaganda. Often times she said that the guards would say things to them like, "Our troops have now made it as far as Colorado, and we are meeting with little resistance." Not many people really believed the guards, according to the former POW. "It was easier on us children," she stated, "but some of the older folks would tend to believe that we would be in that camp for the rest of our lives."

School was also held at the camp for the children. Subjects such as history and geography were forbidden to be studied, but the children studied them anyway. If they were on a forbidden subject, and the guards came in, they just started to talk about another subject. Mrs. Purdy said that one man in the camp was particularly adept at wood working. He made several round balls of wood and gave them to the camp teacher, who in turn covered them with cloth. The students would then paint in different countries on the cloth. This comprised the student's geography lessons.

Every Friday and Saturday night the camp put on a program of some type. Several of the residents of the camp had widely differing talents. One time a scientist might lecture on astronomy, while another time some musicians might stage a concert. The camp had a battered old piano, and Mrs. Purdy stated that it was kept in surprisingly good tune by the only thing they had—the human ear.

Bridge was also a big pastime in the camp, and Mrs. Purdy said that even children nine through 12 were taught to play bridge. Several card tournaments were held. Softball tournaments were held too. All equipment, from cards to bats and balls, was given to one man to keep and it was all treated like gold. "Supplies were hard enough to get in those war years," said Mrs. Purdy, "let alone something like a softball."

People thought they were seeing the beginning of the end when one day in December of 1944 U.S. planes were seen overhead. They wore the U.S. star instead of the rising sun insignia of the Empire of Japan. The planes were bombers, and one of their targets was Lingayen Gulf in the Philippines. Soon fighting was heard in the vicinity, and the residents of Camp Holmes were moved to Bilid Prison in Manila. There Mrs. Purdy can remember seeing Allied P.O.W.'s in the camp beside Bilid Prison.

After the battle was over and the Philippine Islands were liberated, the former POW's were taken to Clark Field, where they proceeded to Leyte by air, for processing back to their respective countries. From Leyte, Mrs. Purdy's family boarded a ship that took them back to the Golden Gate Bridge and the United States.

In reflecting back on her experience, Mrs. Purdy had some interesting thoughts to offer. In commenting on a variety of areas concerning the incident, she said:

"I find it hard to believe that after almost 35 years, some people would still carry a grudge, but there were a few at the reunion who did. They were very few though."

"I would like to go back to the Philippines again and see how much it has changed. I saw some recent pictures of Camp Holmes at the reunion, and all the buildings have been demolished. The foundations and the water tank are all that remain."

"It bothers me to teach school now and see students destroying books and materials the way some of them do. I still don't like to see people waste food either. At the last part of our imprisonment, the food started getting scarce. We had 47 pounds of foodstuffs for each adult person. I can remember on the last few nights that we were prisoners, some of the people in the camp were opening their last cans of food."

"I guess that an experience like that is just something you have to experience; you can tell others about it and tell them to use everything well and be somewhat thrifty, but you really can't push it off on other people. Hopefully we or our children won't have to experience another war."

"For the most part, I really don't think that the German, Italian, or Japanese people wanted war. It was mostly the leaders of those countries that pushed everybody else into it. The Japanese for instance are very family-oriented. You could tell by the way that they watched us children play that they missed their wives and children. On the whole they were good to us. Lots of times, as long as no one had done anything wrong, they would give one of us children a piece of gum or candy if they had any extra."

"Quite an experience" is an understatement. The people of Camp Holmes were in a unique position during the Second World War; that of being able to see the very pages of history being written before them, yet in somewhat of a neutral position and not in direct hostile confrontation with an enemy. The majority of persons would probably agree though, that they would rather not have traded places with Mrs. Purdy or any other of the 500 residents of Camp Holmes.

Mrs. Purdy is the wife of the Rev. Eugene Purdy, pastor of the Calvary and Pleasant View United Methodist Churches. The couple has four sons: Dale, 21, who is a student at Ohio State University; Eric, 16, a student at Circleville High School; Karl, 15, also a student at CHS and a member of the reserve basketball team; and Nathan, who is a seventh grade student at the Circleville Junior High School.

Mrs. Purdy is an English teacher at CJHS. Although she was born in the Philippines, she calls Ohio home, as she has resided in the Buckeye state since 1950.

Ghosts Quiet Down At Columbus Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's a little quieter around a residential neighborhood near here after strange pounding noises from a house kept neighbors awake for several days.

One of them, Don Elkins, said he hasn't heard the sounds for three or four days. The noises, which he described Tuesday as "a wood-to-wood knock," began Jan. 31 in the frame house of the Charles Hunsingers. They occurred only between 1 a.m. and 4 a.m., according to Mrs. Hunsinger. "The last three or four days they haven't heard anything," said Elkins. "They (the Hunsingers) more or less have simmered down now."

Mrs. Hunsinger insists the house isn't haunted, but others aren't so sure. That includes the 41-year-old Elkins and sheriff's Sgt. Sonny Yinger.

"It's no joke. This was quite an experience for me," said Elkins, who joined other neighbors in their unsuccessful search for the source of the noise. "This has got me thinking—what is it? There are no tracks or anything around the house."

"I don't know what to think," said Yinger. "I've never believed in the supernatural, but at this point I don't know what to believe."

The Hunsingers have been unavailable for comment, and Elkins said he thinks they want to remain that way. Their telephone was disconnected after they started getting a flood of calls about the eerie sounds, according to Elkins.

The sounds seem to center around 14-year-old Beth Hunsinger, but Mrs. Hunsinger says her daughter isn't possessed.

American Released In Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — An American tourist jailed for two days by President Idi Amin's police arrived in Nairobi today after being expelled from Uganda, the U.S. Embassy reported. But no exodus of Americans was expected despite Amin's recent behavior and reports of wholesale murder of Ugandans.

An embassy spokesman said the expelled American was named Brian Schwartz, but he could not give his age or U.S. address.

Schwartz reported he was locked up in Kampala, the Ugandan capital, during Amin's four-day ban against Americans leaving his country, but he said he was given no explanation for his detention, the spokesman said.

Schwartz arrived in Kampala last Thursday, the day before Amin ordered all Americans not to leave Uganda, and was taken into custody on Saturday, the embassy spokesman said.

"He was released on Monday night and stayed in a hotel," the spokesman continued. "The next day he was taken to the border with Kenya by car and after crossing caught a bus to Nairobi."

Schwartz said he knew of no other Americans held in jail, the spokesman said.

He was the second American tourist reported to have left Uganda this week. Robert Shinn, 25, of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., said he arrived in Nairobi Tuesday by bus from Kampala and had no trouble crossing the border.

'TRAPPED!' — The musical score of "It's a Scandle! It's an Outrage" being sung by Jim Browning (center) and supported by (left to right) Steve Speakman, Dan Brungs, Ed Herel, and Ed Boulden. "Oklahoma" may be enjoyed beginning tomorrow March 3rd at 8:30 and continuing this week-end with a Sunday matinee on March 6 at 2:30. If you miss it this week-end it will play again March 9-12 at 8:30. Call 474-5856 for reserved seats.

Ohio U Seeks Financial Relief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The president of Ohio University has asked the state to relieve the underpopulated Athens campus of 10 "surplus buildings" through a complex $9.2 million refinancing plan.

A plan for the state to buy the facilities was outlined Tuesday by President Charles J. Ping at a budget hearing before the House Finance Committee's education subsection.

Although a five-year decline in enrollment was reversed last year, Ping said the Ohio U. residence hall system could not "be self-supporting with present and anticipated occupancy level."

In other testimony, Central State University President Lionel H. Newsom requested a $2.3 million increase in the proposed $6.6 million supplemental subsidy to the predominately black institution.

Ping's proposal pre-supposes that the state will grant Ohio U. a special $1 million subsidy to meet debt service on dormitories and dining halls in full use at the 14,000-student southeastern Ohio campus.

In addition, he wants the state to take over the burden of debt during an eight-year period on 10 buildings, two of which will be converted for use by the new College Of Osteopathic Medicine.

"The dormitory capacity would be reduced in carefully planned stages from 8,695 to 6,100 spaces," he said. "Much of the space can be converted to constructive use to serve the people of Ohio."

His plan, calls for the state to issue bonds that would generate interest for debt service of $909,680 in the 1977-1978 biennium and $1.4 million to $1.69 million during the six succeeding years.

In the first two-year period, the state would take on the debt of the Parks, Wilson, James and Howard facilities, according to the plan, in addition to the Grosvenor and Irvine halls which would be used by the Osteopathic school.

"The dormitory and dining system at Ohio University was planned and financed when the state had six rather than 12 universities and when there was a very limited development of two year campuses," Ping said.

The subsequent decline in students at Ohio U. has been reversed Ping said, but "we are faced with the dilemma of a residence hall system built under different assumptions about higher education in Ohio."

Committee members, mulling over budget requests from all state-supported colleges and universities, did not reject the proposal, but gave Ping little encouragement.

After hearing Central State's

Newsom also ask for more money, Chairman Robert W. Jaskulski, D-11 Garfield Heights, muttered: "Someplace the well's got to dry up."

Newsome said the Wilberforce, Ohio, institution was losing minority students to aggressive recruiting programs at larger universities, where he said a "revolving door policy" resulted in many drop-outs after the first year.

Full-time enrollment has declined from 2,319 in 1972 to the present 2,023, he said.

Tigers Gain Sectional Finals Berth

GOOD KNIGHT — John Engelman (44) of Bishop Ready goes high in the air to take a rebound away from Circleville's Frank Merrill (23), Brent Wright (55) and Roy Huffer (11). The Tigers defeated the Silver Knights, 52-44, in Sectional play Tuesday at Teays Valley

Circleville broke on top and never trailed in the ball game as they downed Bishop Ready, 52-44, in their opening game in the Class AA Sectional Tournament Tuesday night at Teays Valley gym.

The win sends the Tigers into the AA Sectional finals 8 p.m. Friday against London who defeated Grandview, 50-32, in the other game played Tuesday night.

The game started on rather a strange note as a Bishop Ready player had dunked the ball in the pre game warm-up and Circleville was awarded a technical foul. The rule allows a player to dunk a shot during the game but not during pre game or halftime warm-ups.

Frank Merrill stepped to the foul line and sank the technical to give Circleville a one point lead and they led all the way.

Ready pulled within one point midway through the third period and cut the gap to two points at the five minute mark of the final canto.

But, the Tigers were up to the challenge and came right back to take control of the contest and gain a victory.

Brent Wright led the Tigers with 16 points, Toren Bensonhaver added 12, Frank Merrill and Roy Huffer each hit seven, Tom Taylor netted six and Eric Pontious had four.

Tony Conti was high for Bishop Ready with 12 markers, John Engelman added nine, Tim Kusan netted seven, Matt Statmiller tallied six, Jim Waldman and Bruce Girard each had four while Jim McAndrew and John Cacchio each had one.

Circleville was 20 of 44 from the field for 48 per cent and converted 12 of 20 from the charity stripe for 60 per cent. The Silver Knights were 17 of 47 from the floor for 36 per cent and hit 10 of 18 from the free throw line for 56 per cent.

Ready won the battle of the boards, 26-20. Wright and Bensonhaver were strong for the Tigers while Statmiller was the big man for the Knights.

In the turnover department, Ready

had 24 while Circleville misplayed the ball 21 times.

"The most important factor in the outcome of the game was our defense," Circleville coach Jim Bailey commented. "Roy Huffer shut off their quarterback and held him to one point while Merrill, Bensonhaver and Wright kept their big men from getting inside. Tom Taylor played a key role as he handled the ball well with only one turnover while shooting 50 per cent from the field.

"Our kids played well in the clutch with Wright and Bensonhaver getting key baskets for us. We didn't handle the ball as well as we would have liked to and this kept them in the ball game.

"We really appreciate our fans support and they certainly helped us with their enthusiasm when things got tight," Bailey stated.

The Tigers hit three buckets and four fouls in the first period to lead 10-6 at the buzzer.

Circleville pulled out to a 13 point lead in the second quarter but Ready countered with a basket and a pair of fouls to cut the gap to 24-17 at halftime.

The Silver Knights battled back in the third period to pull within one point, 26-25, but Wright hit three straight baskets for the Tigers to enable them to pull away and they held a 36-30 lead at the third period buzzer.

Bishop Ready began to nip at the Tigers heels in the final canto and it was 42-40 for the Tigers with 4:57 left in the game.

But, Taylor and Wright hit buckets and Bensonhaver connected on a pair from the floor and two foul shots and the game was out of the reach of Ready.

Circleville is now 12-6 for the season and will battle London 8 p.m. in the Sectional finals Friday at Teays Valley with the winner moving into District play at Ohio Wesleyan 7 p.m. Tuesday against the winner of the Upper Westerville bracket.

The Tigers will also complete regular season play when they host Wilmington Saturday night at Mill St. gym. The doors will open at 6 p.m. with the reserve game getting underway at 6:30 p.m.

Impressive Pitcher Not Joining Reds

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Paul Moskau carries an impressive set of credentials into spring training with the Cincinnati Reds.

Not only has he been a league leader in earned run average during the two years he has been a professional pitcher, but he has also been more than average swinging a bat.

Last season at Three Rivers, he hit .280. The year before, at Eugene, Ore., it was .320, with three homers.

"Hitting," he says, "is easier than pitching."

That is not to say that he has just been getting by on his work at the plate. He had a 1.50 ERA at Eugene with a 10-1 record and was 13-6 with a 1.55 ERA at Three Rivers.

Moskau probably will not be around when the Reds start north to begin the regular season. He is however one of several young pitchers that manager Sparky Anderson is watching to replace Woodie Fryman, 36 years old, and Jack Billingham, 34, some time in the future.

Along with Moskau, there is Mike LaCoss, who was 12-10 with a 2.94

ERA at Three Rivers.

The Reds manager also wants to find out what happened last year to Larry Payne and Tom Hume, who were both considered top prospects, but floundered at Indianapolis.

Payne was 9-9 with a 4.86 ERA, while Hume, was 9-12 with a 4.10 ERA.

"I want to know why those kids had those problems," admitted Anderson. Moskau was originally drafted by the Cleveland Indians, but he decided to go to college instead.

At Arizona State University, he was used exclusively as a first baseman, but he left after a short time.

After sitting out a year, Moskau enrolled at Azusa Community College in California where he played first base and pitched until the Reds drafted him.

At 6-foot-2 and 210 pounds, many observers say he reminds them physically of Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Andy Messersmith.

"Everything he does is like Messersmith, except he doesn't throw as hard," Anderson said.

Tiger Girls Gain Finals In Tourney

Circleville's girl cagers stopped Madison Plains, 62-40, to gain the finals of the Miami Trace Invitational Tournament 8 p.m. Thursday.

The Tigers dominated the game as they led all the way, 23-8, 35-21, 49-28 and 62-40.

"We played extremely well and it was a great turnout for our last outing," Circleville coach Joy O'Brien commented. "Our girls have played well under pressure and seem to get tough in key situations. This is one of the reasons that we have a 12 straight win streak — It's just a great bunch to work with," Joy O'Brien stated.

Natalie Martin led the scoring with 19 points, Sue Radcliff added 14, Sue Stevenson and Sue Frericks each hooped eight, Kathy Fanale tallied six, Mary Wyatt netted four and Brenna Lintner had three. All the Tigers saw action in the contest.

Circleville was 27 of 53 from the floor for 51 per cent and hit eight of 13 at the foul line for 61 per cent.

Madison Plains was 18 of 57 from the field and converted four of eight from the charity stripe.

Circleville won the battle of the boards, 41-18, with Sue Stevenson, Sue Frericks and Wanda Boyd getting the job done.

Braves, Mustangs Hit Tourney Trail

Logan Elm and Westfall, the last two Pickaway County teams to get their feet wet in sectional play, plunge headlong into tournament action tonight at Teays Valley High School.

Butch Kobel sends his Braves onto the court first. They will line up against the number one seed in the Teays Valley sectional, the Hamilton Twp. Rangers.

Some would be quick to write off the Braves against a team like the Rangers. But Kobel's charges pack a lightning offensive punch themselves, and they have the added advantage of having scrimmaged their foes twice this season. Says Kobel, "Our first scrimmage was a pre-season affair which was pretty even. Our second scrimmage took place right after we lost Randy Pontious with his shoulder injury, and we were kind of down and offensively sluggish. They handled us in the first quarter, and then it was pretty even after that."

The first-year Logan Elm coach feels that the Hamilton five will be the top offensive ball club that the Braves will go against this year.

The Rangers like to change defenses in the middle of their opponents' offensive plays. Kovel says the Braves will have to stay alert to take advantage of any breaks that may develop. Tom Motika and Zack Scott are the two Rangers to watch. The Braves' game is set for 7 p.m.

The gym will be cleared after the Logan Elm-Hamilton Twp. contest. Anyone desiring to watch the second game of the evening will have to purchase another ticket.

The 9:15 nightcap will send Mike Eckle's Mustangs against the Golden Eagles from Madison Plains.

"They are a tough ball club. I've seen them play twice this year and they are a lot better than their record indicates," said Eckle when commenting on the opposition for tonight's contest. Eckle feels that the Golden Eagles will run a zone defense against the Mustangs, and that they will match up somewhat with Westfall.

"They are big and they go to the boards well," said Eckle. They run a two guard front and can shoot well from outside, but reports are that they try to get inside to the big men whenever possible.

"We have to be more patient offensively and wait for an opportunity," stated the Mustangs' boss. "We have been throwing the ball away too much. If our kids play well we'll stay with them and it will be a good game."

The winners of tonight's games will play each other Saturday at 8 p.m. in the sectional finals at Teays Valley. The winner of that game will gain a berth in district play at Newark, with action there slated for Tuesday at 9:15 p.m. against the winner of the Newark lower bracket.

Teays Valley Keeps Metro Lead Despite Scare By Falcons

ANOTHER REBOUND — Perri Martin, the heroine in Teays Valley's 32-30 win over Franklin Heights last night, pulls down another key rebound in the final minutes of the contest. Waiting to help out is Shelley Marion (32).

Perri Martin's short jump shot in the final three seconds was the deciding basket as Teays Valley escaped Franklin Heights 32-30 Tuesday night to retain its share of the Metro League lead.

The Falcons battled back from a six-point deficit to knot the score 30-all with a minute and a half remaining in the contest.

Both teams failed to convert important free throws in the final seconds before Rita Slone hauled down a missed FH shot, dribbled to half court and hurled a pass to Martin, who was posted under the basket.

Martin had trouble handling the ball, but went up in the foul lane with a short jumper to win the contest.

The win locks Teays Valley in a tie for first place in the Metro League with Hamilton Twp. The Rangers knocked off West Jefferson Tuesday night, 38-32.

Fight Mars NBA Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Larry O'Brien is not getting his message across. Or maybe it just takes a while to sink in.

Just one day after the National Basketball Association commissioner issued a ringing edict to coaches and players against outbreaks of violence on the court, Sidney Wicks of the Boston Celtics knocked down Golden State's Rick Barry with a looping right and players from both benches joined in the fracas at the Hartford, Conn. Civic Center, where the Warriors beat Boston 101-94 Tuesday night.

The fight broke out with 3:54 to go in the fourth period of the intensely played game.

Saginaw Defeats Dayton Gems, 6-4

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Rick Chinnick scored a hat trick to lead Saginaw to a 6-4 triumph over Dayton in Tuesday night's lone International Hockey League game.

Saginaw, locked in a first place tie with Kalamazoo in the Northern Division, is 31-23-10. The loss dropped Dayton, in second place in the Southern Division, to 29-31-4.

The New York Yankees open their 1977 American League baseball season at home against the Milwaukee Brewers on April 7.

The Vikes can clinch a share of the title Thursday when they host Dublin in the season ender. TV won the first meeting of the teams 79-23 on Feb. 15.

The game was an uphill climb for the Vikings as Franklin Heights opened in a four-corner offense that turned into a stall when the Vikes refused to move out of their 2-3 zone defense. The Falcons took a 4-2 lead into the second period.

Coach Angie Rinehart switched her team to a man-to-man in the second period, but the Falcons countered to up the score to 19-8 at the half.

TV erupted for 18 points in the third quarter to grab a 26-23 as Martin hit for eight points, P.J. Stiles scored six, and Debbie Baxter contributed four.

Martin finished the game with 12 points, 12 rebounds, three steals and two assists. Baxter had 10 points, six rebounds, four steals and three assists.

Stiles, who was limited to two quarters of varsity play because of a stint on the reserve team, had eight points with seven rebounds, a steal, and an assist. And Patty Maciejewski rounded out the scoring with two points and three rebounds.

Rita Slone had nine rebounds, six assists, and four steals; Shelley Marion had five rebounds and a steal; and Carla Reichelderfer had two rebounds and a steal.

Suzy Jones, out of action last week with an injury, returned late in the third period to claim four rebounds, three steals, and an assist. The Vikes played without Florie Mesner, who was ill.

The Vikings had little trouble in the reserve game, rolling to a 23-4 decision. TV held leads of 6-0 after the first period, 15-0 at the half, and 18-2 after three periods.

Erika Stewart paced the win with 11 points, four steals, and two rebounds. P.J. Stiles scored six with eight rebounds and four steals.

Kelly Martin scored two points, had an assist, a steal and 12 rebounds; Chris Adkinson scored two with five rebounds, five steals, and an assist; Lorraine Hill scored two with four rebounds and a steal; and Nancy Kraft had seven rebounds and two steals.

LE Girls Stopped By LU Lions

Logan Elm's girls dropped a 55-48 decision to visiting Liberty Union Tuesday night.

The scoreboard read 12-12, 30-29 and 41-41 with the visitors showing the way except for the first period.

Annette Roof and Debbie Larson each had 13 to lead the Braves, Diane Martin and Patty Larson both tallied eight, Krista Gifford netted three, Diane Weaver added two and Beth Bell had one.

Logan Elm was 34 per cent from the field and 42 per cent from the foul line while Liberty Union was 29 per cent from the floor and 59 per cent at the charity stripe.

Logan Elm is now 2-6 overall and will be at Fisher Catholic 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Loyola Upsets Detroit, 79-71

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Although Detroit stubbed its toe on the final hurdle, Coach Dick Vitale still is hoping for a telephone call from the National Collegiate Athletic Association and a post-season basketball bid.

"I pray the selection committee will judge us on 27 games, not on one night," Vitale said Tuesday after his 19th-ranked Titans were upset by Loyola of Chicago 79-71.

The loss was only Detroit's third against 24 victories. And Vitale has an easy explanation for the defeat.

"They shot it and we didn't," he said.

Detroit, which had been shooting at a 51 per cent clip during the season while averaging 91.7 points per game, hit only 32 per cent of its field goal attempts against Loyola.

"We executed well but we didn't shoot well, and all year that's been our best thing," Vitale said.

Houston Lloyd paced Loyola with 23 points, while Andre Wakefield scored 20. High for Detroit was Terry Tyler with 25 points — 19 in the first half.

"I feel confident that they (the NCAA selection committee) will evaluate us in a fair way," Vitale said about his team's chances for a post-season bid.

In the only other game involving an Associated Press Top 20 team, fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, playing at home, crushed Hawaii 124-84. Eddie Owens had 25 points as six players for the victorious Rebels scored in double figures. Hawaii has not won a road game in two years.

Anthony Roberts, the nation's second leading scorer from Oral Roberts, tallied 50 points in a losing effort. Senior guard Carlton Byrd scored 30 points in his final home game, leading Florida State past Oral Roberts 91-87. Harry Davis and David

Thompson had 24 and 21 points, respectively, for the victorious Seminoles.

Appalachian State, behind Mel Hubbard and Tony Searcy, upset Furman 70-64, while Virginia Military stopped East Carolina 88-77 in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tournament.

Searcy scored 18 points, while Hubbard, who finished with 13, converted a three-point play with 2:47 left, breaking a tie and giving Appalachian the victory. Ron Carter finished with 22 points and Will Bynum 19 for VMI.

Rich Laurel's 35 points led Hofstra over Lehigh 81-72 and Donn Wilber scored 27 points as La Salle stopped Delaware 84-77 in East Coast Conference playoff games, and Tony Hanson's 37 points lifted Connecticut past Fairfield 87-75 and into the ECAC New England playoffs.

No Gum Card For Jackson

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson, who said they'd name a candy bar after him if he ever played in New York, can't even get his picture on a bubble gum card for the time being.

While Jackson quietly reported to the New York Yankees' camp Tuesday for his first workout in pinstripes, Sy Berger, the bubble gum man, was kicked out of the New York Mets' clubhouse.

In fact, the colorful, bombastic Jackson was upstaged in his own clubhouse by center fielder Mickey Rivers, who had angry words for Manager Billy Martin, and in the Pittsburgh Pirates' locker room, where pitcher Larry Demery and utilityman Ed Kirkpatrick came to blows.

Berger, who annually tours the spring training camps signing up players for bubble gum cards, was requested by Mets' General Manager Joe McDonald to vacate the premises when he entered the team's clubhouse.

"It was very embarrassing to Joe, who is a long-time friend of mine," said Berger, "but he was acting on a directive issued by the Major League Promotion Corp."

The promotions group is seeking greater royalties from Berger's outfit — Topps Chewing Gum Co. of Brooklyn, N.Y. — for use of the pictures. Pending the outcome of contract negotiations, Berger is persona non grata in major league clubhouses.

Rivers, however, wasn't barred. The Yankees' speedy center fielder just didn't bother to show up on time.

"I didn't feel like coming out here that early," he griped. "They're giving me a hassle already. I don't need that hassle. They're hassling me on every little thing. If they don't want me, they can trade me."

When Rivers finally appeared, more than an hour in arrears, he found a note from Martin.

"I tore it up," Rivers said. "I really didn't read it, but I think it said I'm going to be fined."

"He's not going to run spring training," Martin said. "Him or nobody else."

Meanwhile, the media largely ignored Jackson, who had to try on three pairs of pants before he found one that fit, popped a button off his uniform shirt, couldn't find a batting helmet his size and finally was plunked in the back by a batting practice serve from Ken Holtzman, his former Oakland and Baltimore teammate.

In the Pirates' camp, tempers flared during some horseplay between Demery and Kirkpatrick. They pushed and shoved each other and threw a few punches before being separated by teammates.

On the signing front, the Philadelphia Phillies reported "definite progress" in talks with third baseman Mike Schmidt, the major league home run champ, while the Mets said there was "some movement, but nothing appreciable" in their efforts to sign slugger Dave Kingman.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants signed shortstop Chris Speier for one year at a reported $90,000 while outfielder Jerry Morales told the Chicago Cubs he wasn't interested in becoming the successor to traded third baseman Bill Madlock.

"I'm an outfielder, not an infielder," he said.

Ted Williams Top MAC Player

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ted Williams, forward from Toledo, was named Mid-American Conference basketball player of the week today after his performance in Rocket victories over Central Michigan and Northern Illinois last week.

Williams, a 6-foot-5, 191-pound junior from Mount Vernon, Ohio, scored 50 points in two starts against the league's co-leaders. He also was cited by Toledo Coach Bob Nichols for his part in the league-leading team defense.

He scored 30 points against Central Michigan and 20 against Northern Illinois and is seventh leading scorer in the MAC with a 17.1 average.

Chip Myers Traded By Cincy Bengals For Draft Choice

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals have traded veteran wide receiver Chip Myers to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

The 32-year-old Myers had been with the Bengals for eight years.

"Chip has been a credit to our organization and has played well for us," said Paul Brown, Bengals Vice President and General Manager. "However, we feel that at this time we will go with our young, green and growing receivers and that his future here is limited."

"He has been traded to a team where there appears to be a real need for his services," Brown added.

The 6-foot-6, 205-pound Myers has totaled 220 receptions in his career so far for 3,092 yards and 12 touchdowns. Before joining the Bengals in 1969, Myers played one season with San Francisco.

"I hate to leave my friends, my teammates and the fans in Cincinnati but I'm glad for the change," said Myers, unhappy about the Bengals use of him last season.

"He caught 17 passes for 267 yards and one touchdown but 12 of the receptions came in the first four games."

"I played a lot in the first three or four games, and I felt good, then all of a sudden, I wasn't playing at all. I started only two games, both against the Pittsburgh Steelers, the best defense in pro football. I don't know what they expected of me."

Myers will join another former Bengals receiver, Charlie Joiner. They caught 73 passes between them for Cincinnati in 1975, sharing the same wide receiving position.

"That's what the Bengals need," said Myers, "a guy who can catch 50-60 passes. A guy who can catch those third-down passes. Charlie and I almost caught 80 passes on that side two years ago. That's why we had such a big year, offensively."

"That was part of our problem this year. We didn't throw enough to the weak side of the zone enough. We tried to throw to Isaac Curtis all the time. As great as Isaac is, it's impossible to catch the ball with two or three guys hanging on him," Myers said.

Joiner bubbled at the thought of Myers coming to the Chargers.

Sloppy Canadiens Trip Islanders, 5-4

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens knew they were not going to fool anybody by saying their 5-4 victory over the New York Islanders was the result of 60 hard-working minutes of hockey.

Quite the opposite. Ken Dryden, the National Hockey League's leading goalie, said, "We played well for about 15 minutes over-all and were kind of sloppy the rest of the time. It was the kind of night we were very glad we got a win."

In the other NHL games Tuesday night, the Boston Bruins bombed the Detroit Red Wings 8-3, the Los Angeles Kings trimmed the Washington Capitals 3-2 and the Philadelphia Flyers topped the Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

Tennis Defector Also Dog Lover

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova came to town to talk about tennis and wound up talking about dogs and football — mostly dogs.

"You should see my puppy," the 20-year-old Czechoslovakian defector said over luncheon at Madison Square Garden. "She was picked up while wandering along a highway outside Dallas. Part poodle, part cocker spaniel, I think — mostly mutt. I've named her 'Racquet.'"

Martina, the season's leading money winner and chief threat to Chris Evert for No. 1 world ranking, has joined the "doggy set" on the ladies' tour. It's the "in" thing.

"A lot of the girls have dogs now," Martina said. "They carry them around to the tournaments. They are wonderful companions. Sure, there are problems."

"Some arenas insist dogs are not allowed. We simply say, 'Okay, if our dogs can't come in, we can't come in ourselves.' Threatened with a pullout of players, the sponsors give in."

When the world's best women players show up at the Garden March 24 for the $150,000 Virginia Slims Championship — climax of the 12-event season — the famed sports palace will have to haul out the kennels from the recent Westminster Dog Show to take care of the added guests.

"Frankie Durr started it," explained Jeanie Brinkman, promotional director of the ladies' tour, referring to the well-known French mademoiselle. "She picked up this airedale in 1972. 'Topspin' — that's the dog's name — became a regular fixture around the circuit, spoiled by all the other players."

"Yeah," said Martina, who has adopted every syllable of American slang. "She trained 'Topspin' to carry her rackets. 'Topspin' marches onto the court alongside Frankie with two rackets clutched in its teeth."

"One night when we were playin

Frankie in doubles, Chris and I walked out with our rackets in our teeth."

Billie Jean King has an old English sheep dog. Rosemary Casals is always accompanied by a Belgian sheep dog. Kathy Kuykendall travels with a chow she calls "Eskin." Jeannie Evert, Chris' sister, has a mammoth Huskie named "Phoenix." Wendy Overton tours the circuit with a mongrel called "Boogie."

The totally Americanized Miss Navratilova has become the main threat to Chris Evert's tennis throne.

She has won four of the seven tournaments played so far, beating Chris at Washington, D. C., for a season's purse total of $110,100. Chris has won four of five events, beating Martina in their last two clashes, for $91,100.

Martina, who defected from her native country in the summer of 1975, has lost 25 pounds, dropping to a svelte 143, and has bought a house in Dallas where she has spent three days so far this year.

"I resent stories about how much I spend," she said. "I have a Mercedes automobile. I shop at Gucci's and I like nice things. I even bought a sweater for my dog at Gucci's."

"But my life is very normal. I have become a real football fan — a Dallas Cowboys fan. I like Roger Staubach but not Coach Tom Landry — he is too much like a computer."

Miracle Run Wins Latonia Feature

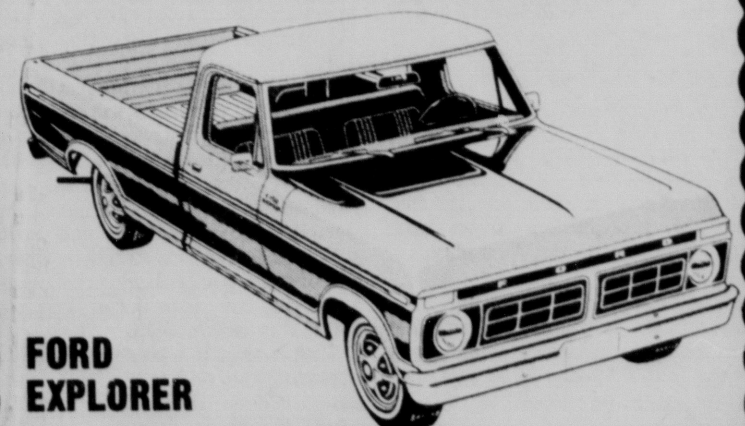

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Miracle Run captured the $3,700 featured eighth race at Latonia by three lengths, covering the 6½ furlongs in 1:22.4 Tuesday night.

The winner paid $5.40, $3.20 and $2.60. Cupid's Helper placed, $3.80 and $3.20 and Carla's Cutie, third, $3.20.

Ginnie Mae combined 1-4 with Doin Just Fine for $80 in the daily double and the crowd of 3,165 bet $364,361.

Strip-Mine Control Hearings Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Henry M. Jackson of the Senate Interior Committee warned coal operators Tuesday that their long opposition to strip mine legislation is futile because "we're not playing any more veto games."

The Washington state Democrat predicted passage this year of a strong strip-mine control bill. He noted that President Carter has already vowed to sign such legislation. Former President Gerald R. Ford twice vetoed the bill.

Jackson commented as an Interior subcommittee took testimony from coal mine operators opposed to the bill. Similar hearings are also underway in the House.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., a subcommittee member, disclosed that he plans to try to attach to the bill legislation that would authorize a coal slurry pipeline.

Such a pipeline would carry ground-up coal, mixed with water, from mine sites in the west to distribution points in the East and Southeast. One major proposed route would run from Wyoming to Arkansas.

Environmentalists have opposed the concept, claiming it would require vast quantities of scarce western water. But Johnston said that coal production is now hampered by the nation's poor coal-distribution system. He said his slurry pipeline proposal would help rectify this.

Some industry officials conceded defeat in their five-year effort to block strip-mine legislation. "It is abundantly clear such legislation will be enacted by the 95th Congress," said Charles F. Schwab, a spokesman for the Kentucky Independent Coal Producers Association.

J. L. Jackson, president of the Falcon Coal Co. of Lexington, Ky., said his company mines on the steep slopes of eastern Kentucky. He said the bill creates unrealistic conditions for mountaintop mining — where operators lop off the entire top of a mountain to get at the underlying coal, leaving a relatively flat surface where once a mountaintop existed.

"Flat land is extremely valuable and desperately needed in many areas of Appalachia," he argued.

Solon Pushes For Recovery Of Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, introduced an emergency bill Monday night that could help in the recovery of about $1 million from a bankrupt money order firm.

Butts said the firm, Universal Money Order Co., apparently sold money orders in Cleveland and other major Ohio cities to about 10,000 Ohioans at an average of $100 apiece.

This bill would empower the attorney general to represent Universal customers whose money orders were not honored when presented for payment.

Universal filed bankruptcy proceedings in federal court in New York last January.

The Cleveland lawmaker said he hopes to move his bill quickly through the legislature so the attorney general can begin to receive claims of the Ohioans who lost funds.

Universal's bonding firm, Aetna Life and Casualty, already has filed an action in U.S. District Court, Southern Ohio division, seeking to recover $200,000 it posted with the state on behalf of the bankrupt firm.

In a news release earlier, the attorney general advised Universal customers to "remember that it all takes time, but our office will work as quickly as possible with Aetna to bring about a prompt settlement."

In other action Monday night as the Senate returned from weekend recess a day ahead of the House, Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, introduced a sweeping measure designed to provide statewide voter registration and make other reforms in Ohio's election laws.

Freshman Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16 Columbus, offered a bill that would require Ohio's utilities to make loans to their customers for home insulation projects, repayable on the installment plan.

Ohio Ending State Meat Inspections

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio will terminate its state-controlled meat and poultry inspection program at the end of the month, opting to save money by switching to federal inspection of processing plants.

Agriculture Director John Stackhouse Monday said the state program will be dropped March 31 in an effort to save an estimated $4 million over the next two years.

Consumers won't notice any difference when federal inspectors assume the regulatory duties April 1, since the present state inspection adheres to federal guidelines, said Walter Jones, agriculture department spokesman.

He also said meat and poultry packers will see no significant change in the federal inspection, which oversees quality, health and sanitary conditions. Meat and poultry inspection was mandated by the federal Wholesome Meat Inspection Act of 1967.

"Cost cutting is the biggest factor" in switching to federal control, Jones said. Packing plants won't notice any change, he added, because they had to meet federal specifications all along.

However, the federal program will permit shipment of meat and poultry products packed or stored in Ohio to out-of-state points. Under the present program, the state inspections were valid only within Ohio.

That change is a potential benefit to supermarket and fast food chains which will be able to ship interstate after a single federal inspection, streamlining shipments to and from Ohio for warehouses and food store outlets.

WHEELS UP FOR SPACE ORBITER — America's Space Shuttle and its piggy-back carrier, a 747 aircraft, run down the runway during taxi tests at Edwards Air Force Base near Palmdale, Calif. The crafts reached a speed of 155 mph, which enabled the nose of the carrier to leave the ground.

Young Gets Hot Spot U.N. Role

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Young became president of the United Nations Security Council for March today, and his fellow blacks from Africa were preparing a test for him and the Carter administration.

Young, after a month as the new chief American delegate to the United Nations, succeeded James Murray of the United Kingdom in the monthly alphabetical rotation of the council presidency among the 15 member nations.

The Africans are planning to seek a council debate starting March 21 or soon after in which they will introduce a resolution calling for a mandatory embargo on arms shipments to South Africa to discourage its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

The United States joined France and Britain in 1975 and in 1976 in vetoing resolutions calling for a binding arms embargo although for years it has observed a council resolution calling for a voluntary ban on arms shipments to South Africa.

Young told a reporter recently that he would recommend that the United States support a mandatory arms embargo. But he said he did not know whether his government would follow his recommendation.

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR THURSDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Certain changes are in order, others are NOT. Don't buck the tied needlessly nor penetrate too deeply into unknown waters before you have the know-how and the facts.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): A day in which it will be important to use your best judgment. If, on second thought, an idea or plan seems impractical, don't waste time trying to MAKE it workable.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If you keep matters in line, you should be able to make some smart, progressive moves now. Look into others' ideas and tactics: you may be able to incorporate some in your own program.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Procrastination in facing a "big" problem or undertaking will pile up complications. Bear this in mind and go about this day emphasizing your more practical and ingenious side.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): "Retreat" is a word not usually found in your vocabulary, but it could be used strategically now to reinforce strength, improve tactics.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Do not hesitate to advance an unusual idea IF you have given it proper thought. But do take into consideration the previous plan of associates — and possible opposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Where the obvious means to progress are skimpy, YOU figure out preferable, more feasible ones. But have patience, be vigilant, precise. Watch trends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Look to revitalized ambition and lofty inspirations to help you put over most ideas and plans now. A good day, under generous Mars influences.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): You have such a big capacity for handling big problems, it would be a shame to let little annoyances "get you down." Stress your innate optimism.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Just "keeping busy" is no guarantee of success. The important thing now is to be selective in your undertakings and waste no time on unproductive ventures. KNOW your goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Some advances indicated, especially in the fields of art, designing. New suggestions may be made to dignity and respect for Negro you. Appraise carefully, noting all factors.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Mixed influences. You as a very earnest, very unmay face some odd situations while traveling, or through history, show-biz lore and on-communications. Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Minstrel Man," a two-hour drama with music, is on CBS tonight. The title may conjure up visions of happy, lively entertainers laughing and singing their way through life.

But expect the opposite. It's actually a sad show about the off-stage pain of black minstrels in the late 1800s, about how their livelihood depended on perpetuating a racist stereotype, playing the foot-shuffling, joke-cracking dorkie for white audiences.

Said stereotype came years earlier, when white Northern song-and-dance men blacked up their faces and masqueraded as black men in a uniquely American entertainment form, the minstrel show.

Tonight's drama starts in the year 1889, in an era when, as a narrator notes, the only time black entertainers could work in show biz was when they put "burnt cork on their black faces and imitated the white man imitating them."

I've heard "Minstrel Man" described as "Roots" in ragtime. It's not quite that. But like "Roots," it's essentially about a quest for black pride, black dignity, in a white world admitting to neither.

The tale unfolds via two young black entertainers, Harry and Rennie Brown, who set out to make their way in show business after their father, also a minstrel man, collapses and dies on stage.

Harry (Glynn Turner) is the gagman, the singer, the dancer, the optimist who while he hates "blackin' up" and pandering to racism, does it in the name of survival, putting on a happy burnt-cork face while singing about "new coons in town."

Rennie (Stanley Clay) is the family pessimist, a brilliant, brooding musical genius who rebels against the traditional blacks-s-buffons stereotype and ultimately pays for it with his life.

The gent through which both sides of the story come together is Charlie Bates (Ted Ross), a sly, cheerful black rogue and minstrel man who becomes partners with Harry in a black min-fine capacity for handling big problems, it would be a shame to let little annoyances "get you down." Stress your innate optimism.

No drama is complete without a love interest, and this comes with Jessamine (Sandra Sharp), a lovely black woman with whom Harry falls in love after hiring her out of church to sing in his show.

Prodged by the conscience called Rennie, the Brown fields of art, designing. New show develops a black goal — suggestions may be made to dignity and respect for Negro you. Appraise carefully, noting all factors.

Alas, the script by Richard PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Mixed influences. You as a very earnest, very unmay face some odd situations while traveling, or through history, show-biz lore and on-communications. Obstacles, the-road woe. It also seemed faced philosophically, could oddly disjointed, its pace only prove interesting as slightly brisker than that of a snail.

Voter Registration Promoted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Alarmed by the closeness of the presidential election, state lawmakers are making another attempt to require all Ohio counties to conduct voter registration. Twenty-two of the state's 88 counties have no voter registration procedures and four others have only partial registration, according to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown. Most are in rural areas.

"When you have two elections in Ohio where a governor and a President lose by less than 3/4 vote (statewide) a precinct, every vote is important," said House Elections Committee Chairman Don S. Maddux, D-90 Lancaster.

Supporters of statewide voter registration say the popular notion that registration is not necessary in sparsely populated areas because of the familiarity of residents is a myth. Instead, they say the absence of registration leaves the door open for fraud.

In fact, the state was sued in federal court here after the November election by the American Civil Liberties Union, which claimed the lack of uniform voting procedures discriminated against some Ohioans. The state won that one.

Brown has agreed to an amendment

Foreign Trade Offices Combined

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Brussels and Dusseldorf foreign trade offices will be combined into one European office effective July 1. James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development said Tuesday.

Duerk said due to anticipated budget restrictions, the European office will be located in Brussels. He said the consolidation will reduce the European staff from seven to four persons. Ohio's international development activities in West Germany will be handled by an employee assigned to that country out of the Brussels office.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DIRECTORS — For the year 1977, the local chamber is led by these 16 people. From the left sitting are Robert Smith, M.D., Dr. Nancy Lu Conrad, President Steve Stevenson, Bonnie Hildenbrand and Walter Garner. Standing are Chaney Vance, Dorwin Hay, Ward Skinner, Vice President James Hill, Bill Stout, George Hritz, Asa Elsea and Larry Plum.

Chamber's Safety Council Sponsoring Awards Banquet

The Safety Council of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce will sponsor its first awards banquet March 23, it was announced at the chamber's monthly directors meeting.

Ed Bohenko said presentations will be made to area businesses and industries for outstanding safety practices. The dinner, which will start at 6:30 p.m. at the Colony House, is open to all chamber members. Reservations may be made at the chamber office.

Also during Tuesday's meeting, it was noted by Bill Bennett that several firms have joined the chamber during 1977. The most recent members are Wright Lumber Company and the Citizen's Bank of Ashville. During January, Washington's Corner, Dumond-Sifford and Associates, Pickaway Gardens, Rozetti's Pizza, King's Department Store, and Linn Communications joined the local chamber.

Tom Tootle, chairman of the Legislative Committee, said the reception Monday with Attorney General William Brown was interesting and educational. Future legislative activities include a meeting with the county commissioners concerning snow removal and street repairs.

Bohenko also reported from the Safety Committee that Red Cross training classes are being scheduled, according to John Leist, county disaster coordinator.

The Federal Register was discussed at length by chamber directors and President Steve Stevenson. During February's meeting, the directors heard a talk by David Simmons and David Brook. They discussed their roles in historic preservation and the Federal Register.

The consequences of belonging to the federal register was discussed during Tuesday's meeting, and directors decided to wait until August for a decision so more facts could be gathered on the subject.

The Ohio Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting and Legislative Conference will be held March 15 and 16 in Columbus. Several sessions are planned and chamber members may attend any or all of the events. Executive director Jean Ankrom said reservations may be made by calling the local chamber office.

VA Guarantees Loans For Mobile Homes

With the passage of Public Law 93-524, new interest seems to be shown by lending institutions in guaranteeing mobile home loans under the G.I. Bill, according to Pickaway County Service Officer Jim Shea.

"All veterans on Active duty since September 16, 1940 are eligible," Shea said. "World War II or the Korean Conflict veterans must have had at least 90 days service, while all others must have served at least 181 days. This includes those currently on active duty." There is no terminal date, the County Service Officer stated, for use of G.I. loan eligibility.

All veterans must have full loan guaranty entitlement of $17,500 available. The VA is authorized to guarantee loans for used mobile homes or to purchase a lot on which to place a mobile home the veteran already owns. The interest rate is 12 per cent for the mobile home and eight per cent for the lot. The amount of guarantee by the VA is 50 per cent of the unpaid balance.

For information concerning the securing of a Certificate of Eligibility for a Loan, and the names of banks who will lend money contact James P. Shea, County Service Officer, at 219 S. Court Street, or phone 474-3650.

Overtime Bill Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Spokesmen for Ohio's employers attacked Tuesday night a controversial bill that would permit employees to refuse overtime.

They also deplored other worker protections in the bill by Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, and said generally that the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee should kill it.

The opposition testimony came from members of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Manufacturers Association, among others. The OMA has 1,500 members who operate about 17,000 plants in Ohio.

Bradley Troxel of Rittman, Ohio, representing the Packaging Corp. of America, said that firm's employees work seven days, or 56 hours, weekly. He said they opted for that schedule after being offered a swing shift arrangement that covered six days.

They receive time and a half for Saturday and double time on Sunday, and average about $340 a week, exclusive of fringe benefits, Troxel said.

Larry Sharp, employee relations manager for Capital City Products Corp., Columbus, said that firm also operates seven days a week and must do so to remain competitive.

He said of the Valiquette proposal "the bottom line says we no longer would be able to schedule and produce goods to compete with companies in surrounding states."

KIWANIS SPEAKER — Larry Toole, President of the Ashville Kiwanis Club, is shown talking to Etha Mae Wolford, Executive Director of the American Red Cross in Pickaway County. Mrs. Wolford spoke to the club Tuesday night on the origin of the Red Cross and the programs of the local chapter. Easter Seal Society Meets

Carolyn Daub, president of the Pickaway County Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, presided over the regular meeting held Tuesday at Society Headquarters, 216½ S. Court Street.

Dick Tootle, 1977 Easter Seal Campaign Chairman, was present for the meeting and stated that 1977 Campaign got under way Tuesday morning when he delivered 10,000 Easter Seal letters to the post office for delivery in Pickaway County. He noted that the letters contain information of the many varied services the local Easter Seal unit provides for children and adults in our community who have a handicap which has been caused by a birth defect, illness or accident. All of these services are paid for by voluntary contributions to Easter Seals. The campaign will continue until April 10.

Tootle also made announcement at the meeting that the Donkey Basketball Game scheduled earlier in the year, which had to be canceled due to severe weather conditions, has been re-scheduled for March 30. He would like to remind those who purchased tickets earlier that they are valid and that more information concerning the game will be forthcoming.

Patty Kirkwood, executive secretary, expressed her appreciation to all the members and friends of the Society who assisted with the mail campaign either by typing labels or working at the office labeling, stuffing and sorting. The 10,000 pieces of mail represents many hours of work and it is greatly appreciated by the Society. She also reported on the February services - which included the following equipment loaned-1 wheelchair, 1 quad cane, 1 pr crutches, 2 walkers, 3 commode chairs; 1 hospital mattress rental and 1 bed lift.

The Borden's "Label of Love" for Easter Seals Project was discussed. Helen McGinnis, Ida Warren, Mary Stein, Dick Tootle, Myrna Sniff, Jane Plum and Carolyn Daub will coordinate plans for community participation.

Other events scheduled during the campaign are Lily Day, Coin Card distribution and Food Sale.

Further information on the Easter Seal Campaign or Easter Seal Services may be obtained by contacting the office at 216½ S. Court Street or by calling 474-8416 or 474-3633.

Union Seeks Meeting With City Officials

Mayor Frank Barnhill Tuesday informed city council of a request by Robert Todd, union staff representative, for a meeting with city officials.

Todd represents the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. He claims that 80 of the city's 83 employees have indicated a desire to become affiliated with Local 53 of the union.

Barnhill noted that Todd had requested a meeting 2 p.m. March 10. He said he didn't feel the city should meet with the union representation at this time, but requested a private meeting with council after adjournment to reach a decision.

Barnhill said the city had earlier agreed to a meeting with city employees, but this prior meeting was called off by the employees themselves.

"I feel the finance committee has studied the jobs in the city and made a fair and equitable offer. I think we could sit down with the city employees and work out our differences," he said. He pointed out one of the difficulties the city has is that some of the employees are covered by civil service while others are not.

The mayor pointed out that quite a large sum of money would leave the city each year in the form of annual dues and initiation fees if the city employees became affiliated with a union.

He also urged all members of council to contact state representatives and senators opposing a bill enacting compulsory binding arbitration.

In answer to a statement by the union representative that legal counsel would be consulted about the mayor holding a position in Cleveland and only being in the city one day a week, Barnhill said that he will now be in the city all the time.

City Council authorized the Department of Administrative Services Personnel Division of the Ohio Intergovernmental Personnel Act Program to make a classification study, wage and salary survey and organizational analysis of the city. Mrs. Pat Rose, supervisor of Region IV IPA Service Center, attended Tuesday's meeting to explain the costs to the city ($500 plus matching services), the scope of the plan and when the city could expect to have it completed.

Mrs. Rose indicated that it would be completed this year. She left a sample copy of a survey recently completed for the city of Marysville.

In legislation approved by city council, the safety director was authorized to advertise for bids for a reporting and sound amplification system for municipal court and a resolution to identify and correct the inadequacy of the facilities of Municipal court.

Held for a third reading was the ordinance updating the CATV ordinance so it will comply with FCC regulations and held for a second reading was a resolution requiring prior approval by council before water and sewer lines could be extended beyond the city limits.

Councilman Dixie Watters asked Mayor Barnhill if there was any possibility of getting the city-county justice complex going again. "I cannot answer that although I personally feel this is the way to go," the mayor answered. He noted the project was dropped following the federally funded study by Prindle and Patrick because funds were not available to continue with it. According to Barnhill, county commissioners at that time were opposed to placing a bond levy on the ballot for construction of the complex. A meeting is scheduled 7 p.m. March 9 with Prindle and Patrick, Architects.

Service Director Atwood Jones reported that city street crews were continuing a limited patching program and have also begun street cleaning operations of the downtown areas and main streets.

Jones also reported on a planning and zoning committee meeting last Monday with a consultant concerning securing federal funds to acquire park land.

Robert Kramer, representing the Pickaway County Board of Health, reported the food service and vending program of the board has been approved for another year by the Ohio Department of Health.

A communication was read from Columbia Gas of Ohio announcing the gas rate will increase .71 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet of gas effective with the April 1 billing.

Mayor Barnhill's appointment of Roy Huffer to the civil service commission to replace George Young was approved by council. A communication from Leo Hall concerning the lack of federal funds for construction of a municipal court was read.

Present at Tuesday's council meeting were Council President Joe Bell, clerk Robert Shadley, members David Crawford, Steve Jones, Tom Wells, David Goldschmidt, John Jenkins, Harold Hoffman and Dixie Watters; Mayor Barnhill, Service Director Jones Kramer, Chief of Police Robert Temple.

Social Security Tax Increase Being Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Virtually every American is almost certain to get a tax cut this year. But there's a good chance that by next January you'll pay higher payroll taxes to finance Social Security, and the burden may fall more heavily on the poor.

This year's reduction, still being considered by Congress, would mean lower federal income taxes for all but the wealthiest families.

But while there is general agreement in Congress on the need to cut income taxes to stimulate the economy, there is growing concern the Social Security system will go bankrupt unless it is able to keep collecting more taxes than it pays out in benefits.

Although President Carter has not yet offered his own recommendations, the Senate Finance Committee took a first step Tuesday that could mean a hike in the Social Security tax and higher benefits for retirees.

The panel, writing a report on its fiscal 1978 spending and tax plans, agreed the budget should recognize the possibility of the tax increase and the likelihood of a $500 million boost in benefits.

While that tentative decision is not binding, it does indicate strong support in the tax-writing committee for the tax hike.

On the good news side, the panel endorsed phasing out the "earnings test," which costs a recipient $1 in benefits for each $2 of income above $3,000 a year. The panel recommended $500 million to finance a start in the phase-out and other benefit increases.

The panel estimated the already scheduled July 1 cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits will be 5.5 per cent.

President Ford asked Congress in 1976 to raise Social Security taxes. The idea was rejected on both sides of Capitol Hill as unwise in an election year. But there was a general recognition that Social Security taxes would have to be raised soon or regular tax revenues would have to be diverted into the pension system.

Pension experts say the system should have enough money on hand to finance nine months of benefits. By Oct. 1, Finance Committee specialists say, Social Security will have only enough funds for five months. By 1982, unless taxes are raised, the system's assets will be able to finance only 45 days of benefits.

The Finance Committee plan would mean a hike of less than $1 per week if raised by increasing the tax rate and applying it to a higher wage base.

Under current law, an employee pays 5.85 per cent of his first $16,500 annual earnings (a maximum of $965 a year) into Social Security; the sum is matched by the employer. If Congress uses that formula for a tax increase, workers at all income levels would share the burden.

But the Social Security tax is regarded as highly regressive, since it takes a larger proportion of a $5,000-a-year worker's pay than of one earning $20,000. A move is expected to raise taxes by keeping the rate at 5.85 per cent but raising the $16,500 lid.

That would mean no tax hike for those earning $16,500 or less but higher taxes for those making more.

Water Shortage Feared

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unless Ohio's spring rainfall is normal or better, most wells in the state will not be restored to their proper levels in time for the dry summer months, according to a geologist with the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

The department said precipitation has been below normal in the state since late October. What rain has fallen, along with the melted snow, has run off instead of being absorbed by the ground, which still is frozen, the department said.

As a result, water levels in the wells are two to five feet below normal statewide, according to natural resources department water inventory geologist Al Walker.

Although he could not say just how much rain would be needed to fill the wells, he said "If we have a normal rainfall this spring, they should come almost up to normal." Above normal rain probably would be needed to return wells to where they should be, he said.

"The time of year water levels are lowest is in the summer, when recharge is less and use is high for crops," Walker said. "If water levels are not improved by then, some areas will be in for problems."

The water inventory section monitors water levels daily through automatic gauges on 122 wells in 63 of Ohio's 88 counties. The wells are

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A winter storm dumped more snow today on the central Rockies, and heavy snow warnings were posted until dawn for the mountains of Wyoming and through day for the mountains of Colorado.

The storm was expected to produce a band of wintry weather from the central Rockies into the upper Great Lakes region. Winter storm watches were issued earlier from northwestern and north-central Kansas across Nebraska into southern and eastern South Dakota and also over Iowa, Wisconsin and northern and central Illinois.

The watches alert persons of the approach of a winter storm.

Stockmen advisories were posted in eastern Utah and southwestern North Dakota.

Cool northwesterly winds whipped through California. Travelers advisories for high winds and local blowing dust and sand were in effect through Thursday for the mountains and deserts of southern California.

The Pacific Northwest looked for more moisture from at least two more storm systems moving through the Gulf of Alaska.

Snow also lingered in parts of New York and Vermont. There was considerable cloudiness in many sections, except for clear skies from the upper Great Lakes through the Ohio Valley region into the central Appalachians.

It was clear and cold in much of Florida with a frost and freeze warning posted for north-central and northeastern Florida.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from zero at Devils Lake, N.D., to 66 degrees at Brownsville, Texas.

selected to include a broad cross section of the state, Walker said.

"While the northwestern and southwestern counties seem to generally have lower levels than other sections, the overall shortage is statewide," Walker said. His division currently is aware of 32 Ohio communities which he considers "borderline" problem areas.

One of these is Carey, in Wyandot County. The village of 3,500 relies on wells for its water. Last month, two of its four well shafts bent because of a shift in the rock in which they were drilled. The water level is a third well dropped below where it could be pumped out.

The village is drilling two new wells and has dropped the intake pipes deeper into the third. Fire protection, which was doubtful last month, has been restored and village officials say they are holding their own while encouraging conservation.

Areas like Carey do have options, Walker said, but they're expensive. Two alternatives are to put the intake pipes deeper into the well or to drill new wells, as Carey is doing. If these fail, he said, it may mean the source of water is producing all it can. In that case, it could mean going to a surface water source or moving the wells several miles away to untapped underground supplies, Walker said.

Circleville Junior High School Teacher Attends POW Reunion

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

A Circleville woman recently spent a unique and emotional weekend in San Francisco renewing old friendships with people she had not seen for some 32 years.

The occasion was the first reunion since 1945 of over half the occupants of a Japanese-run prisoner of war camp in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

Mrs. Eloise Purdy, 425 S. Washington St., was a nine-year-old daughter of Christian missionaries when armed forces of the empire of Japan took control of the Philippines in mid-December of 1941.

Mrs. Purdy told the Herald in a recent interview that in the months and days before the war started Japanese immigrants to the Philippines warned Americans of Japan's preparations for war in the Pacific.

Mrs. Purdy's father wrote to the U.S. embassy telling of what they had heard. The family was stationed on a base of the Philippine Constabulary.

She had gone to a boarding school at Mindanao along with her brother and sister. When fresh news of the impending war kept coming in, the children were joined by their mother, as were numerous other families. Their father stayed behind to attend to business.

When the Japanese took control of the islands, Mrs. Purdy related that they were stripped of all possessions that could be considered possible weapons, such as knives, guns, scissors, and razors. The group was taken to Camp John Hay, where they stayed until after Easter of 1942. The residents of the camp had to beg to be allowed to have an Easter sunrise service, and even then all the words and songs had to be explained to the Japanese authorities. The Easter service of 1942 was the first religious service that was allowed since the group was put in the concentration camp.

After the Easter holiday the group was moved to Camp Holmes, north of Baguio on the island of Luzon. Before the war the area had been a resort spot for the residents of Manila. The general temperature at Camp Holmes was considerably cooler than the city of Manila, and Mrs. Purdy feels that this fact made things much easier on the older residents in the camp.

At Camp Holmes, the civilian commandant was Rokuro Tomibe. He was invited to the San Francisco gathering by the group of former prisoners.

The inevitable question always immediately follows such a statement: "Why would you invite the commander of your POW camp to a reunion?"

Mrs. Purdy stated that Rokuro Tomibe was a thoughtful and considerate man during their stay at the camp, a complete opposite from the cruel and hard-hearted picture that has been painted of the Japanese during the war.

"He was scared of us at first," stated Mrs. Purdy, but my mother was a good artist and asked permission to paint Mr. Tomibe's portrait. The Japanese are great lovers of art, and this softened Mr. Tomibe, and allowed our camp chairman to be able to speak to him. The reason for Tomibe's apprehensions, we later learned, was that his only impression of Americans was what he had seen in the violent Western and gangster movies of the 1930's."

Tomibe did other things for the residents of Camp Holmes. Upon

FORMER P.O.W. — Mrs. Eloise Purdy, 425 S. Washington St., displays the medal that was presented to her at the recent reunion of 210 former P.O.W.s that were imprisoned in Camp Holmes and Bilibid Prison in the Philippines for three years and three months during World War II. The medals were given to all present at the reunion by the former Japanese commandant of the camp, Rokuro Tomibe. "I hold no grudges," she said, "you can't live with a grudge all your life."

hearing of Red Cross shipments to the Philippines, Tomibe let some of the men in camp have a truck once a month, and they were able to go to Manila and pick up supplies for the camp.

It was Rokuro Tomibe's actions near the end of the war when supplies were growing slim that kept several of the camp's older persons and babies well. He would make sure that the old and weak got enough food, and that the babies in the camp got milk with some degree of regularity.

It was Tomibe who allowed Mrs.

Purdy's father to rejoin his family after a year and six months' separation. Mrs. Purdy's father was taken to a different location when the Japanese took over the islands, because he was still on the constabulary base when the takeover started. He was whisked off to another camp, and his wife and three children were taken from the Mindanao boarding school to Camp John Hay. A year and six months later he had made his way to Manila, and when the monthly supply truck came from

Women Get Chance At Navy Sea Duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a court suit, the Navy is moving to give women wider opportunities for sea duty.

The Navy is circulating word that it has prepared legislation to change current laws that prohibit assignment of women to vessels other than hospital ships and transports.

Navy women have been beached since 1975 when the last hospital ship, the Sanctuary, was retired.

A message from headquarters to fleet and shore stations said: "The proposed change ... will permit the Secretary of the Navy to prescribe a greater variety of shipboard duty to which women members of the naval service may be assigned."

But Navy women still would be barred from serving in combat.

The proposal, which must be approved by Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Congress, marks a victory for Navy women who have been pushing for equality with Navy men.

Pentagon sources acknowledged the new move was spurred by a federal suit filed here by six Navy enlisted women and officers, who claim Navy restrictions infringe their constitutional rights.

The Navy message said the proposed law change would permit assignment of women "to temporary duty on any vessels not engaged in combat missions, and to permanent duty on vessels similar to hospital ships and transports which would not be expected to be assigned combat missions."

Officials refused to elaborate when asked for details on what kinds of ships would be likely to receive women for their crews. The language of the message suggested Navy women might be placed on combat type vessels, as well as various classes of support ships, in peacetime.

Food Prices Rise Across Nation

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The family grocery bill increased again last month, rising to a level almost 50 per cent higher than it was four years ago, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the findings in the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill went up at the checklist store in seven cities during February, with an average rise of 2.3 per cent. The bill went down at the checklist store in six cities, decreasing an average of 1.9 per cent. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store rose an average of just under half a per cent.

—A comparison of prices now with those at the start of the survey showed the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in every city, rising an average of 44 per cent. In dollars-and-cents terms, the biggest increases during the past year have come in the price of coffee, now over $3 a pound in four cities and expected to go higher to reflect new boosts in wholesale prices.

—The impact of coffee was clear when prices at the start of this March were compared with those a year earlier. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill, including coffee, was up at the checklist store an average of 11 per cent. When coffee was removed from the list and the 1976 and 1977 totals were compared, the average increase in the bill at the checklist store was only 2 per cent.

—The list of items increasing during February was led by orange juice,

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, taking off from its best day of 1977, spurred up again today.

In early trading advancers outnumbered losers by more than 3-2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up almost two points.

Analysts said Tuesday's rising market resulted in part from internal market forces, and others cautioned that investors still needed reassurances about inflation for the market to maintain its upward climb.

Today's early prices included Westinghouse Electric, up 1/4 to 17 1/2; General Motors, up 1/4 to 71 3/4; and Eastman Kodak, up 1/4 to 76 3/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.31 to 944.73, the biggest gain this year and the highest jump since Dec. 27, 1976 when the Dow climbed 10.47.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5-2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 19.48 million shares, up from 16.22 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .45 to 54.68.

Logan Elm Student Traveling To Brazil

JULIE JOHNSON

This summer, Julie Johnson will be enjoying the opportunity of a lifetime by living and learning with a family in Brazil.

Miss Johnson, of 21531 Wintergreen Drive, has been accepted as an exchange student in the Youth For Understanding program, and is eagerly looking forward to the adventure of overseas living. She is presently a sophomore at Logan Elm High School.

Over 6,000 students a year enjoy the excitement and personal fulfillment of living, learning, and maturing in another country through Youth For Understanding.

Youth For Understanding is a non-profit international student exchange

organization which has exchanged more than 55,000 students worldwide. Students aged 14 through 18 can participate in the program and live with a local family in one of 23 countries in Europe, Latin America, the Far East, or Africa for a summer or year.

Scholarship monies and other financial aid are still available to qualified students who wish to live and study abroad, according to Youth For Understanding. Full and partial scholarships will be awarded to students with suitable personal and academic qualifications. Low-interest loan funds are also available through the organization.

The experience comes at the unique time of life when students have the curiosity, flexibility, and openness of mind to gain maturity and perspective on another country and their own by participating personally in another culture.

Youth For Understanding students become regular family members in their overseas country, participating in all facets of local life as no tourist can. Typically, students gain an interest which lasts a lifetime, and provides an investment in their future which is unparalleled.

Students or their parents interested in information on this overseas living adventure with Youth For Understanding should contact Mrs. Nan Chezek, 2080 Brookdale, Toledo, Ohio 43606 (419)-535-5770 for more information.

Like Miss Johnson, they will be taking the first step toward a journey to a distant country, people, and family to create friendships that span the globe.

Policeman 'Hero' Held In Slaying

WEST COVINA, Calif. (AP) — A policeman first hailed as a hero for shooting his way out of an abduction was held today on suspicion of kidnapping and murdering his alleged captor.

Authorities said Tuesday it appeared that 19-year-old David Dominguez was taken into custody and then shot by San Gabriel police officer Billy Joe McIlvain.

McIlvain, 32, told officers Monday afternoon when he emerged from his home, in which he supposedly was being held hostage, that he had overcome his captor.

But West Covina police discounted his story, and a few hours later he was jailed for investigation of kidnap and murder.

"Things he was saying just didn't look true to us," said West Covina Deputy Police Chief Craig Meacham.

In his version, McIlvain told police that two gang members, Dominguez and another youth, forced his car to the side of the road and forced him at gunpoint to drive home.

McIlvain said the youths apparently were seeking revenge for a fellow gang member whom McIlvain had helped send to jail.

When police surrounded McIlvain's house, they were greeted by gunfire. They tried to negotiate with McIlvain's alleged captor, but McIlvain repeatedly got on the phone and said the youth refused to talk to police.

After more gunfire, McIlvain left the house, saying he had caught Dominguez off guard, pulled a handgun hidden in his boot and pumped five bullets into the youth.

But police said the officer's report began to unravel when Dominguez' mother and friends reported that McIlvain had kidnapped the youth.

David Lorenz, a friend of Dominguez', said the bizarre events began while he and Dominguez were chatting outside the home of Dominguez' girlfriend. He said McIlvain came up to them, pulled a badge and told Dominguez to come along or face arrest for carrying a concealed weapon. After hearing Lorenz' story and accounts from others who had witnessed the "arrest" of Dominguez, police issued a statement saying they had "probable cause to retain McIlvain for possible homicide."

9 Miners Said Trapped In Shaft

TOWER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Rescuers dredged through splintered timbers and muddy debris today trying to reach nine miners trapped in a flooded-out mine and given little chance of survival.

One miner died and three were injured when a three-foot-high wall of water surged through a tunnel wall at midday Tuesday.

Despite repeated attempts through the night, rescuers working in teams of five could come no closer than a few hundred feet from where the miners were thought to be.

There was no sign of life from within the flooded Porter Tunnel of the Kocher Coal Co. mine in Schuylkill County near here, rescuers said. The mile-long tunnel is under a 400-foot mountain.

"I don't know if we'll find anybody alive in there," said a grim-covered worker who left the damp, black tunnel at change of shift midnight Tuesday.

"We keep shouting, but we don't hear a thing," he said.

About 100 men were working underground at the time of the accident. Three of those who scrambled to safety were hospitalized in guarded condition.

Wives, mothers and relatives kept vigil at the main entrance, gazing tight-lipped at the gaping tunnel. They could only pray the miners had found an air pocket on high ground.

"There's always that possibility, but the probability is very unlikely," said John Shutack, district manager of the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration.

Bottle Law Pushed Again For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers want to reassess Ohio's littering problem before acting on legislation that would ban the snap top can and require deposits on all beer and pop bottles.

Rep. Walter D. McClaskey, R-86 Marion, suggested it may not be as bad as it was two or three years ago—before "pitch in" and other types of educational campaigns became fashionable.

He is a member of the House Energy and Environment Committee which is considering a three-bill package by Reps. Virginia Aveni, D-17 Lyndhurst, and Arthur V. N. Brooks, D-14 Cleveland Heights.

Chairman Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, echoed McClaskey's concern that more information is needed on the littering problem before legislation is enacted that could affect the state's employment situation.

He sent the measures to a subcommittee headed by Mrs. Aveni, and instructed it to confer with the transportation and natural resources departments about the situation along the state's highways and in its parks.

Similar legislation has been defeated in previous sessions of the General Assembly, mainly upon contentions by industry—particularly glass manufacturers in northwest Ohio—that it would cause widespread layoffs of employees.

Mechanics Lien Bill Clears Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill protecting homeowners from having to pay twice for construction or improvements on their property has cleared the House Judiciary Committee without dissent.

Sponsored by Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, the bill repeals Ohio's mechanics lien law, an antiquated statute that sets up double liability for the homeowner in certain situations.

Thompson's measure, sent to the rules committee Tuesday to await assignment to a floor vote, applies only to one and two-unit residential structures.

He said the bill wasn't needed for major housing and apartment complexes because their owners usually have access to attorneys and others who can shield them from possible consequences of the existing statute.

An example of what can happen under existing law is a situation in which a homeowner pays a contractor who in turn does not pay a subcontractor who performed work on a project. The homeowner then can become liable to the subcontractor although he already has paid the contractor for the same work.

The committee, headed by Rep. Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, adopted several amendments to Thompson's bill but left it generally intact.

One amendment requires lending institutions to obtain lien releases from contractors before settling the borrowing homeowners' debt with the contractor.

Thompson won passage of a more complicated mechanics lien repealer in the last legislature, but it was vetoed by Gov. James A. Rhodes as a complicated vehicle which failed to accomplish what was intended.

This time, the Cleveland lawmaker said his bill is relatively simple. In addition, majority Democrats now have the votes to override Rhodes' vetoes.

Prison Population Rises To 13,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's prison population climbed above 13,000 this week for the first time in history.

George F. Denton, director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction said there were 13,008 men and women in the state's seven prisons as of Monday, about 1,200 more than a year ago.

Denton said the number of inmates has increased by 5,300 in three years.

Department spokesman Joe Ashley said overcrowding has been most severe at the Lucasville, Lebanon and Mansfield prisons for men and the Marysville Reformatory for women.

The department is seeking an operating budget of $154.9 million from the Ohio General Assembly for fiscal year 1978-79, about a 30 per cent increase over current spending levels.

Deaf-Mute Facing Additional Charges

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — A 25-year-old deaf mute who was acquitted of murder here last November, faces another charge—aggravated burglary—and authorities are reviewing a five-year-old indictment against him.

That indictment charges James Robert Hunt with burglary and arson at the Elmwood branch of the Pickaway Grain Elevators in 1972.

Hunt was found innocent in the 1974 slaying of Ruth Arledge, 56, a neighbor whose body was found in a nearby state forest.

He appeared Monday in Ross County Common Pleas Court to answer a secret indictment charging him with the Feb. 3 aggravated burglary at the Joseph A. Walsh residence.

Judge J. Donald Ratcliff postponed the arraignment until Friday to give the Hunts an opportunity to obtain an attorney. Hunt remained in jail Tuesday under a $5,000 cash bond.

Investigators said Walsh told them the burglar, who acted like he had a gun, found no money in Walsh's billfold so he took some beer from the refrigerator and left.

Under Ohio law, breaking into the residence itself constitutes aggravated burglary, a felony, regardless of the value of goods taken. Hunt's trial on the murder charge was delayed for two years by Ratcliff to permit Hunt to learn sign language at a state mental institution so he could assist in his defense.

Meanwhile, Pickaway County Prosecutor James Kingsley said he is reviewing the indictment stemming from the Pickaway Grain Elevators burglary and fire.

The indictments were placed in an inactive file by Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer when Hunt was confined to Orient State Hospital.

Ratcliff said Hunt's mother probably would handle any interpreting necessary at the arraignment, unlike the murder trial when an interpreter had to be appointed to help Hunt with his defense.

However, the judge added, "he can communicate, a lot better. He can almost talk."

Probe Bares Heat Leaks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lewis Research Center ran an infrared scanner over three sections of Cleveland to see which buildings were leaking heat, and a Lewis official says the scanner view of the buildings showed that "nearly all of them leaked."

The infrared survey was part of a city program to get people to get their homes insulated against heat loss to save energy.

Dr. Herman Mark of Lewis, a NASA facility, said Tuesday the scanner data stored on magnetic tape is to be run through a computer, which would print out photo-like images.

The pictures to be delivered to the city in about six weeks, he said. City officials plan to put them on public display so residents of the areas covered can see how badly their houses are leaking heat.

Mayor Ralph Perk's energy watchdog, Harry Volk, said $5 million in federal funds was available for low-interest loans to people in lower-income brackets for insulating homes.

He said six inches of insulation in the attic of a typical house of 1,500 square feet would cost about $250 but would save the owner 20 per cent in fuel consumption.

PUCO Stalls Prospective Gas Probe

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A proposed $1.2 million investigation of the natural gas problem in Ohio has stalled while public utilities commissioners await word on whether state funding is available.

The commissioners voted 3-0 Monday to send an 18-page staff proposal to Gov. James A. Rhodes and legislative leaders along with a letter asking, in effect, if the state is willing to pay for the study.

John Borrows, director of PUCO's utilities department, outlined the proposal last week, calling for an in-depth effort that would go deeper into the problem than other investigations of the energy shortage.

After a decision on the undertaking was temporarily set aside, a PUCO spokesman noted that the commission has been criticized in the past for using information provided by utilities.

"To gather independent data, we will have to go outside the scope of the commission, and we have to see whether the legislature is willing to provide funding," the spokesman said.

Borrows said the PUCO investigation, if fully funded, would determine the degree of effort made by utilities to purchase natural gas for winter needs and whether allocations were "in the best interest of their Ohio customers."

"We want to know if Ohio distribution companies have been more or less successful than other companies in securing gas from interstate pipelines," he said.

The probe would also explore relationships between Ohio gas companies and their distributors, particularly when they are affiliated, such as Columbia Gas of Ohio and the Columbia Transmission Co.

Investigators would also check conservation efforts, alternate fuel sources, self-help gas programs and intercompany trading he said.

Borrows envisions a seven month study using five PUCO staffers and outside consultants.

U.S., Cuba Eye Talks On Fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has notified Cuba that it is willing to discuss questions arising from the decision of both countries to limit the operation of foreign fishing fleets within 200 miles of their coastlines, administration sources say.

Excluding minor matters, the negotiations would be the first between the two countries since they signed an anti-hijacking agreement more than four years ago.

The officials said the United States responded positively to an inquiry made several weeks ago by the Cubans about the possibility of discussing the implications of the mutual extension of fisheries limits.

The fisheries issue was one of several topics taken up on an unannounced visit here two weeks ago by the Swiss ambassador to Havana, Etienne Serra, who handles U.S. interests in Cuba.

One issue subject to negotiation is the maritime boundary between the two countries, which are about 90 miles apart.

Officials said the United States, as an interim measure, is laying claim over waters up to the half way mark between the Florida southern tip and Cuba's north coast.

They said the setting of the distant boundaries is normal procedure for nations with overlapping jurisdictions.

Cuba also has extensive fishing interests within the new U.S. zone, particularly off the New England coast. According to sources, Cuban operations in these areas presumably will cease for the time being in the absence of a bilateral agreement.

Given Cuba's willingness to negotiate with Washington, officials said they expect Cuba will respect the new U.S. fisheries law.

Couple Moves Back To Ghetto

CHICAGO (AP) — Most blacks who can afford to be moving out of the ghetto. Charles and Inez McCord moved back in.

The retired couple, both in their early 60s, gave up their $390-a-month apartment in a predominantly white neighborhood and moved into a battered black neighborhood on the city's South Side.

For $8,500 McCord bought the house where his family first lived when it moved to Chicago in 1925.

"It takes vision, a minimum of money and guts, but you can go home again," McCord said. "I'm home and I'm happy. Part of the trouble with the black community is that too many people who could help to improve it want to leave."

The McCords sank their life savings into refurbishing the old two-story brick rowhouse on a once-fashionable boulevard now blighted by years of change and decay.

McCord said the decision was chiefly motivated by a need to "come back to our roots. For years I'd been living in highrent, middle-class apartments in areas with mostly whites. I felt I was losing my identity as a black individual."

McCord operated a janitorial service until his retirement last year. His wife was a college library director. He has four grown daughters by a previous marriage.

The couple moved into their new home last December following a nine-month remodeling job that brought their total investment to around $50,000. The house, now almost fully restored, is a neighborhood showpiece.

"It used to be the worst-looking house on the block," McCord said. "I call it a damn good investment now. Where else could you get 12-inch walls and 9½-foot ceilings for $50,000?"

The house sits only about a block south of a mammoth high-rise public housing project plagued by crime, but the couple say they feel less threatened in the ghetto than in their old neighborhood in southwestern Chicago, near the scene of last summer's open housing marches that erupted into bitter racial fighting.

Still, they take precautions. The grillwork over the front windows, for instance, is protective as well as decorative.

The McCords were forced to pay the housing rehabilitation costs out of their own pocket after two financial institutions, including one in which they said they had $10,000 in savings, turned down their loan requests.

Finding contractors to perform the work at a reasonable price also proved difficult.

There were times during the early stages of renovation, especially after a carpenter had an estimated $200 worth of tools stolen, when the McCords despaired over the success of the project.

"But we never gave up our vision," Mrs. McCord said. "We just kept telling ourselves that we would be going home soon, back to our people."

McCord says, "This street will never be the same as it was years ago, but it could still be a beautiful place to live. I've got the kind of beauty and comfort most people want."

Teays Valley Board Reviews School Calendar

If no more days are missed this year by Teays Valley students, the remaining calendar should not change. The consequences of the energy days missed was discussed by Teays Valley board during the meeting Monday evening.

A letter of request was submitted to the state superintendent of Public Instruction dealing with clarity and energy days.

The completion of the school term should fall on June 2 for students and June 3 for teachers. If no more days are missed, according to Superintendent Benis Lutz, students will still have vacations on Good Friday, Easter Monday and March 11, scheduled as a county visitation day for teachers. Teays Valley teachers will attend a workshop at the school.

High school principal Ron Claiborne reported on a number of activities at the high school. Graduation will be May 29, with baccalaureate at 2 p.m. and commencement at 8 p.m. The board is to provide speakers for both events. It is up to the class and staff to determine if the event will be indoor or outdoor.

School students and parents are planning the activities for the Junior-Senior prom scheduled for May 14. The board was informed of the North-Central inspection this week. The board appropriated funds for expenses of the visiting team members Wednesday and Thursday.

Also at the high school underclass registration is scheduled for March 7. Mini classes will be held to give the students the chance to experience how the class will be handled. Several changes were approved by the board for additional classes to replace traditional courses. If enough students sign up, courses such as mass media, public debate and personal finance will be taught next year.

During the registration, seniors will attend career day at the school. They will hear about the various avenues open to them after graduation.

A student trip over the Easter Vacation was approved by the board. Social studies students will go on a historical tour with the American History teacher Phillip Forsythe.

The board approved a field trip for the ecology class at Cape Hatteras, N.C. They will be spending three days with a full agenda studying geology work, touring the beach, mountains and woods and visiting the Wright Brothers Museum. Approximately 20 students will attend along with Mrs. Abagale Robinson and John Karg.

The board of education was contacted by the Franklin County board regarding the future of the Groveport-Madison School District. They were asked if the district was interested in accepting students from the Groveport Madison district. The Teays Valley board returned a letter opposing the idea. Lutz said the move would be of no advantage to the local district because the tax rates were similar.

Course remuneration for five staff members was authorized and the issuance of the supplemental contracts was approved. Professional leave for five staff members was also approved by the board.

Supplemental contracts was given to Thomas Neil as tennis coach and Mrs. Beth Dague as softball coach for the high school.

A letter from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, concerning the landfill was discussed and the consent sale at Walnut Twp. School was approved. The board sanctioned the skating party by the elementary school on March 11, when students are not in session.

The special election will take place June 7 for the bond issue. The next board meeting is March 28.

A Page Of Opinion

March Is Red Cross Month

Since the first settlement on these shores, Americans have worked together voluntarily to conquer problems and to care for one another in time of adversity. As we celebrated our 200th anniversary, this neighbor - helping - neighbor approach was still with us, exemplified by an organization that has become known as the Good Neighbor - the American Red Cross.

Today, millions of dedicated Red Cross volunteers provide countless services to help their neighbors to cope with everyday problems as well as major emergencies, no matter whether those neighbors live across the street or across the country.

Last year, Red Cross activities were planned, directed, and put into action by 1,371,002 volunteers assisted by a career staff of 14,871. Helping the Red Cross to fulfill its role were the 30,945,344 persons who provided voluntary financial support, the 4,262,356 who contributed blood through the Red Cross Blood Program and cooperating community blood banks, and the 6,191,941 young people participating in Red Cross programs in schools. Across the land, Red Cross volunteers stood ready to provide disaster assistance wherever needed and to give services to members of the armed forces and veterans and their families.

Red Cross volunteers conducted thousands of courses in first aid, water safety, home nursing and preparation for parenthood. They worked in hospitals, clinics, health centers and nursing homes. They served in schools and day-care centers, detention homes and prisons. For many older persons, Red Cross volunteers made the difference between being alone and afraid and feeling in touch and wanted by providing telephone re-assurance programs, friendly visits and transportation to doctors' offices and clinics and to community events. Older persons not only were served; many of them served others as Red Cross volunteers.

A big country like ours has big needs, made up of millions of small needs that the Red Cross answers with voluntary help - neighbor helping neighbor. The Red Cross still lives where you live - wherever you are, wherever you need. This is why it is called the GOOD NEIGHBOR!

Sober As A Duck

By JIM BISHOP

Sweeney was a proper man. He was the mayor. He was the judge. He owned the hardware store. Sweeney wore a tie and never laughed. In church he knew all the hymns.

Pud said, "You're calling these cases too soon. They're still drunk." The mayor reminded Pud that it was he, Sweeney, who was the judge. Pud was only the chief of police. Prisoners were entitled to an expeditious hearing and this was going to be expeditious. The chief was jolly. Pud weighed 315 in his skivvies. When he listened he sounded like a busted organ. What his body did to the left side of a squad car was sheer murder. He covered a mile-and-a-half of the island in one direction and a half-mile in the other.

He liked to brag that he had little crime on the island and no stolen cars. Last night he had picked up Mr. and Mrs. Jason and slammed them into the rubber jail. Drunken driving.

It isn't easy to jug a husband and wife for D.W.I. unless they are driving separate cars. They were. Earl Jason was driving east in his sports car. Doris Jason was heading west in her old Packard.

They sort of caromed. Pud heard of it by party line switchboard. He picked up Earl Jason and a bent fender at the Faraway Bar. He got Doris Jason sleeping in her car at a gas pump.

He put them in separate cells because the whole island knew that there were times when the Jasons were not on speaking terms. They were people of enormous dignity. Earl was tall with a bird's wing of gray at his temples.

He was a concert pianist. Mr. Jason had not played Carnegie Hall but he never permitted the village to forget that he had played an organ next door. Doris was so rich she often dragged a mink behind her in July.

In an unguarded moment she had bought Earl a mammoth organ. At 3 a.m., if Earl couldn't sleep, no one slept. He rapped Brahms loud enough to set the big fire bell to humming.

Sweeney called the case. He noted that the Jasons had a lawyer, probably from the Big Apple. He also noted that Doris and Jason were whispering and giggling. The judge asked Pud to state his case.

The chief said he had an anonymous tip. He found two bent fenders at opposite ends of the island. He also found two slightly bent defendants. "Mr. Earl" was standing in a parking lot alone. He tried to get into his car and walked by it twice.

"Miz Doris" was sleeping in her car at Sullivan's filling station. He had opened the car and "Miz Doris" had fallen out. Her feather boa had blown away on the breeze and her black velvet suit sustained grease stains.

"How do you plead?" Sweeney was wearing his fright scowl. The lawyer stood. "Not guilty for both, your honor." Sweeney hated lawyers. He had never attended law school and he despised words like certiorari and vire dire.

"Do the defendants wish to speak in their behalf?" Earl Jason stood. He had a little rubber duck in his pocket. He squeezed it twice. "My client," the lawyer said gravely, "has lost his voice. That means no guilty."

Sweeney frowned. He asked were you or were you not drunk last night. The duck squeaked. "Make him stop that," Sweeney shouted. Jason grinned and weaved like an apathetic cobra. The judge made the mistake of asking more questions. He got more squeaks.

"In the absence of evidence to the contrary, your honor, I move for a dismissal." "I know, I know," Sweeney shouted. "Okay. We let him off this time." He lost his temper. "The whole island knows he's drunk every night of his life and -"

"In the matter of the defendant Jason, Doris, you honor, we not only plead not guilty, but must warn you that we will file suit for damages against the island and -"

"File what for what?" Sweeney shouted. "The chief was doing his duty. Mrs. Jason was driving an intoxicated car. I mean, driving while intoxicated."

Doris stood. She lifted herself to her full five feet two. She had a screech like $2 brakes. "Pud testified that I was sitting in my car. Have you ever heard anything more outlandish than 'drunk sitting in a car'? I was sleeping. He opened the door and endangered my life when I fell out. I'm suing him, you and the island."

Sweeney never drank. He drank that day. At noon he was woozied. Pud didn't have the nerve to bag him...

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Independent economists, many of whom operate from here and Washington and Boston, were as confused as anyone when this winter's weather turned contrary, as it does from time to time.

Remarkably, weather as an economic variable has been almost ignored by some of them in making their forecasts, and yet weather is as much a factor in economics as it is in running a farm or a ski slope.

Weather is meteorology; it is physics, not economics, and so it hasn't been rated as an important input factor in those econometric models that are made up of steel production, housing starts, manhours worked and the like.

But after the winter of 1976-1977, which put on a devilish circus of drought and dust and snow and ice and rain and thaw, leaving a multibillion dollar impact on the economy, nobody henceforth can ever forget the weather factor.

"Conclusion: the obvious one which most people now realize is that this economy may now dance to the tune of the weather more than anyone had realized. It has been inflation-prone, now it is also weather-prone."

That's the verdict of Pierre Rinfret of Rinfret Associates, who somewhat belatedly but still ahead of most economists, has formally embraced weather forecasting as a natural ally of economic forecasting.

In his confidential letter to clients, Rinfret has instituted what is ominously and acronically called WARN, for weather analysis regarding numbers. Along with regular economic indicators, it incorporates temperature and precipitation.

"The first-quarter, 1977 economic results will be largely the results of weather conditions," said Rinfret. Projecting the impact, he advises that "inflation in the balance of 1977 could be largely the result of spring and summer weather conditions."

Rinfret's analyses now will include statistics on heating degree days and precipitation. His first report generally shows pluses for the former, minuses for the latter.

In Atlanta, for example, the number of degree days from January 2 to February 20 totaled 1,740, or 513 above normal. In Chicago the excess was 586, in Columbus, Ohio 771, and in New York, 399.

A degree day is the number of degrees by which the average of the daily highs and lows falls below 65 degrees, and indicates, among other things, the amount of fuel likely to be needed to maintain comfortable indoor temperatures.

Precipitation for the same cities was below normal, especially in Atlanta and New York. But reflecting the abnormal conditions a substantial shortfall also was noted in San Francisco, and a lesser one in December.

Rinfret doesn't say if he will work this information into a mathematical equation, but he is at least committed to using it in subjective determinations.

"Thanks very much. I don't know how I can ever repay you."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband is a student. I am early in pregnancy. Because of our finances, I am going to a clinic. I have confidence in my doctors, but I cannot get as much information as I need to satisfy me during this important period. Can you tell me what you consider to be the best advice for a young pregnant woman in terms of diet, vitamins and medication?

Mrs. E. B. R., Mass.

Dear Mrs. R.:

I know the hospital where you are being followed and I want to assure you that it is an excellent one. Most such clinics have booklets specially designed for the new mother. You should ask about this.

Diet during pregnancy is aimed at fulfilling the needs for all nutrients, minerals and vitamins. In most instances, a well-balanced diet supplies all of these factors.

Doctors who are involved with expectant mothers try to avoid excessive weight gains. Similarly, doctors do not allow their patients to be markedly underweight. Both extremes are known to affect the size and well-being of the newborn baby.

Blood studies throughout pregnancy determine the proper balance between protein, fat and carbohydrate that is essential in each individual case. The need for iron, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D, sodium and other nutrients varies from time to time, throughout pregnancy. Adjustments are made, depending on the patient's need.

Generally, physicians avoid ALL drugs throughout pregnancy. Even the "safe" over-the-counter drugs that women may have taken in the past should now be taken ONLY with the doctor's permission.

You will find that there are many groups organized by doctors and nurses for the purpose of directing and helping mothers-to-be. You should inquire about this. I am sure that they exist in your city.

Are X-ray treatments still used for bursitis of the shoulder? I remember I had this done once years ago. It was helpful at the time.

Mr. J.S., Ga.

Dear Mr. S.:

The use of X-ray is still an accepted form of treatment for bursitis. It is probably being used less frequently today than formerly, because cortisone has been found to be so effective when injected into the shoulder joint.

There now are a number of excellent drugs which control the pain of bursitis. These are tried first, before resorting to the use of X-ray.

Governors Unhappy With Carter Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is assuring the nation's governors they will have "a working relationship" with his administration, but there are signs of strain in that arrangement.

Even as Carter was pledging the governors a role in federal policymaking, a handful of governors were complaining that the administration had abruptly canceled water development projects in their states without telling them about it.

Carter did not alter that budget decision, although he did tell the dissatisfied governors the states involved will get a hearing to prove, if they can, that the projects should be reinstated.

The President, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, and members of the Cabinet spent 2½ hours with the governors on Monday. Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, chairman of the National Governors Conference, said they came away delighted with the prospect of an administration more attentive to their views and needs.

The governors are winding up their two-day Washington conference today with a round of meetings with Cabinet officials and congressional leaders. Then it's back to the White House for a black-tie dinner with the President, who didn't have much use for such conferences when he was governor of Georgia.

Askew said the Monday session, at long tables arrayed in the State Dining Room, was the beginning of a dialogue between Washington and the state capitals.

"We discussed the need for collaboration to deal with our economic problems, to overcome our energy shortages, to deal with the cold and the drought and make government work more economically and effectively at all levels," Askew said. "The President concluded by saying that the job will be easier for the federal government if the states meet it halfway."

Askew said the administration already has enlisted the governors to work on welfare reform and on changes in the Medicaid system of care for the needy. They also have been invited to make proposals for the energy policy message Carter has promised by about April 20.

But there were no calls to the governors before Carter announced the cancellation of 19 water resources development projects to cut $288 million from his revised budget. All told, it would take $5.1 billion to complete those projects, located in 14 states.

Meal Appeal

DESSERTS IN MINUTES

Many families feel that a meal is not complete without dessert. Desserts should not be an afterthought, but planned with nutrition in mind. Each day we need four servings of fruits and vegetables, four servings of bread and cereals, three servings of milk or milk products, and two servings of meat. Fruit and milk based desserts can be planned to fit within this daily guide and also influence children's future dessert choices.

Since the busy homemaker cannot always find time to prepare desserts, she needs to keep recipes for quick desserts on file. The following three milk and fruit based desserts require less than 15 minutes preparation time and are ready to serve at the end of the dinner hour.

Quick Pumpkin Pudding

1 cup canned pumpkin or mashed squash or mashed sweet potatoes
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 tablespoon molasses
1½ cups milk
1 package instant vanilla pudding mix.

Combine pumpkin, salt, spices and molasses. Stir in milk until smooth. Add pudding and beat slowly about one minute until thick. Chill and serve. Makes 6 servings.

Pineapple Lime Fluff

1 carton (9 oz.) prepared whipped topping
1 box (3 oz.) lime flavored gelatin
1 can (20 oz.) drained crushed pineapple
1 carton (16 oz.) small curd cottage cheese
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Fold undissolved gelatin into whipped topping. Add drained pineapple, cottage cheese and nuts. Stir until blended. Chill 30 minutes before serving. Makes 16 servings.

Apple Upside-Down Cake

1 can (22 oz.) apple pie filling
1 box (18½ oz.) yellow or white cake mix
1-3 cups water
2 eggs

Spread pie filling in a 9 x 13 inch baking pan. Prepare cake mix as directed on package and spread evenly over pie filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. For breakfast cake, cut in squares and lift out carefully with wide spatula, turning filling side up. For a dessert, spoon out while warm. Serve with sauce. Makes 16 servings.

Tag-Along Sauce

1 cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup water

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Phony Addict: Be A Ham

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for the woman in Kansas who's afflicted with "telephonitis"—especially long-distance calls. (She hides her phone bills so her husband won't know how high they are.)

She should consider becoming a "ham" radio operator. Amateur radio permits long-distance communication all over the world for free except for the initial price of the equipment one needs.

It's a great hobby, but I'm not so sure female hams are kosher. (Ha, Ha!)

IDEA MAN IN N.Y.

DEAR MAN: Great idea! And female hams are indeed kosher. I'm told that there are approximately 12,000 licensed female hams in the U.S.A.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know what the only absolutely foolproof method of birth control is?

OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR OK: Yes. It's "NO!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old married man who is fairly successful. My wife and I raised a son and a daughter—both of whom are now married.

I never qualified as the world's best father—or even close to it. In fact, I was always too busy to be the kind of father I should have been to my son. We never had a really good father-son relationship, but luckily he turned out all right.

Six months ago, I saw an ad for "Big Brothers"—an organization of men who volunteer to take a fatherless boy to a sports event, lunch, supper, or just let him hang around on a Sunday afternoon.

Impulsively, I volunteered my services and lined up an 11-year-old boy from a broken home. I picked him up and brought him to my home, and we spent the afternoon getting acquainted. He was very quiet and shy at first, but later on he opened up. He's a wonderful, sensitive kid who never had the breaks, and he appreciated my attention.

Lukens Pushes 'Golden Age Package'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Donald E. Lukens, R-4 Middletown, announced Tuesday a five-bill "Golden Age package" that includes an expansion of the Homestead property tax exemption and the potential for free legal services to the elderly.

Lukens, a former U.S. congressman, said the legislation was designed to ease "the pressure of senior citizen problems."

"We know they live on the periphery of existence," Lukens said.

Lukens would raise the minimum income level to qualify for a property tax exemption from $10,000 to $15,000 annually for those 62 or older.

He also wants to permit lawyers to deduct for tax purposes from their adjusted gross income the value of legal services performed at no fee for the elderly.

The package, to be introduced later this week, also includes:

—Establishment by the Ohio Commission on Aging of nonprofit corporations to build and operate multipurpose senior citizen centers.

—Appointment of one senior citizen to each of 13 boards and commissions that make decisions directly affecting the elderly.

—A resolution asking the U.S. Congress to repeal the minimum wage law as it applies to the elderly to provide an incentive for hiring.

EMS Makes 67 Runs In February

The Circleville Emergency Medical Service made a total of 67 runs in February. Of the total, 43 were made within the corporation limits, eight to Circleville Twp., one to Jackson Twp., four each to Washington, Pickaway and Wayne Twps. and three to other areas.

Sixteen of the runs were to automobile injury accidents, 13 to other type of injury accidents, 24 in response for illnesses, 10 to cardiac cases, three to fires and one false alarm.

The Circleville Police department was the dispatching agency for 22 of the calls, the county sheriff for 21, fire department for one and Mader Funeral Home for two.

The squad drove 68 miles during the month, an average of 9.7 miles per run. The volunteers worked 1379 regular hours and 832 on plectron. Sixty-four volunteers worked during the month.

Sixty times volunteers continued to Columbus with patients in private ambulances.

Bystanders Capture Rape Suspect

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A screaming victim who claimed she was raped and chased a knife-wielding man down a busy San Francisco street was joined by pedestrians who helped disarm and capture the alleged attacker, police said.

Police said William Snyder, 21, was booked for investigation of rape, attempted robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers said he allegedly posed as a smoke alarm salesman to enter the apartment of a 29-year-old woman Monday afternoon. The victim told police he raped her at knifepoint and fled with her wallet in one hand and a kitchen knife in the other.

With the screaming woman on his trail, the man ran down the crowded Union Street shopping area. There he was tackled by Alan Bridges, 34, who was stabbed in the leg in the struggle. The man got up and continued running, with Monique Bertrand, 23, and Terry Neely, a 20-year-old former Marine sergeant, taking up the chase.

Waving the knife, the man darted in and around afternoon shoppers as he fled down the street. Police said Neely led the posse that grew to more than a dozen angry citizens during the two-block sprint.

Neely was the first to catch up with the man. Police said Neely stripped off his wide leather belt and used it to snap the knife from the man's hand, then tackled him.

"He could never have outrun me," Neely said later. "He made a mistake. He could have run five miles and I would still have been there."

Top Volunteer Scout To Speak

The top volunteer leader of the 5.8 million member Boy Scouts of America is coming to Columbus for an appearance at the Annual Appreciation dinner of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America.

President Arch Monson, San Francisco, California, will speak to two thousand volunteer Scouters of the Central Ohio Council, on Saturday evening, March 12, at the Lausche Building, Ohio Exposition Center.

Ceremonies at the council's Annual Appreciation dinner include honoring two women and eleven men by presenting to them Scouting's highest award to local Scout council volunteers, the Silver Beaver award.

Scout Jamboree Meeting To Be Held

Scouts from all over the nation will have the chance to learn new Scout skills and program ideas at the 1977 National Scout Jamboree to be held Aug. 3-9 in Pennsylvania. Besides these techniques, jambo-goers will soak up leadership how-tos. All this learning is designed to strengthen Scouting at the troop, district and council levels when the boys return home. But many skilled youth and adult staff leaders are needed to make this event a top quality experience.

Here's a list of just some of the numerous staff jobs waiting to be filled by qualified Scouts and Scouters: Trading Posts: jobs ranging from sales clerks to warehousemen (youth and adult). Ceremonies and Shows: Jamboree band members to play during opening and closing arena shows and other events (youth). Daily Activities: Staffers are especially needed to supervise the following:

Mysterious Disease Kills 2 Workmen

ATLANTA (AP) — Two employees of the national Center for Disease Control who worked in the laboratory where virus diseases are studied have died of a mysterious ailment, the center said today.

Laboratory tests were under way to try to determine the nature of the ailment from which the warehouseman and maintenance man died. Neither man was involved in actual research on "legionnaires' disease" or other diseases investigated in the building.

Both victims displayed similar symptoms, which the CDC said appear to be related to flu.

Don Berreth, director of the office of information, emphasized that only tests would determine if it was flu. A spokesman said it may take several days to find the cause.

"Clinically, this does not seem to be 'legionnaires' disease," Berreth said, "but we are looking at everything."

"There does not appear to be any unusual illness among the other employees," he added.

Dead are George Flowers, 49, who died in an Atlanta hospital Sunday, and Robert Dubington, 43, a retired military man who died at Ft. McPherson Army hospital in Atlanta about 3 a.m. today.

Both men worked in Building 7, one of 14 that make up the center. It contains the research laboratories used for investigations of diseases such as influenza, smallpox, measles and "legionnaires' disease."

LIKE A LION — March, when only about four hours old, came to Pickaway County like a lion with a three-inch accumulation of snow by 9 a.m. The month will change quickly to a lamb, according to the National Weather Service, which forecasts temperatures in the 50s, spring showers for Thursday and Friday, and fair skies this weekend.

Consumer Counsel Seeks New Funding

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's new consumers' counsel has told his bosses they have until April 1 to get their first report to the legislature and must act promptly to insure funding for continued operation in the next biennium.

William A. Spratley, hired by the Consumers' Counsel Governing Board as its consumer counsel last week, presented a plan of action for the board at its first policy setting session Tuesday.

He reminded the seven members of the nine-member board who attended that their current $750,000 budget will lapse June 30, the end of the current biennium.

"We now have 17 weeks left to establish an office and approve a plan as a starting point," he said. "We're not in the next biennial budget yet."

He suggested board members may need to appear at appropriate legislative committee meetings to insure funding for the agency in the next two years.

He also said the first annual report should cover organizational efforts for the board's first five weeks of operation and must be a prospective document looking to the next biennium.

"Based upon the annual report," he said in the plan, "a $2 million assessment and appropriation should be planned for the Consumers' Counsel during the 1977-79 biennium."

The startup fund and future costs of the office will be assessed against utilities, proportionate to their gross receipts.

Spratley's plan calls for hiring a staff of up to 30 persons by the end of April, locating in permanent office space and establishing contact with state and national agencies and public interest groups by June 30.

Spratley's plan of action stated that too many consumers feel no government agency is responding to their utility problems.

Blanchester Man May Win Freedom

CINCINNATI (AP) — Larry C. Florea, the Blanchester, Ohio, mechanic who was back in uniform after claiming the U.S. Army lost his records for 6½ years "could very well" get an honorable discharge without a court martial, an Army spokesman said.

"The average guy that has been gone 6½ years doesn't have a defense," said Maj. Jerry Gantt, a Fort Knox information officer said by telephone. But, he said, "this man has got a defense. He could very well get an honorable discharge."

Florea, 26, father of three, said he applied for a discharge to be eligible for a Veterans Administration (VA) loan. He was told by the Defense Department to surrender to Wright Patterson AFB last Tuesday where he was arrested, transported to Fort Knox and held as a private on a charge of being absent without leave (AWOL).

Florea spurned a military offer of a discharge other than honorable even though he has since learned he did not have the required 180 days of active duty to be eligible for the VA loan.

Florea, and his lawyer, Jerry Bryant, Wilmington, Ohio, maintain the Army lost Florea's records when he was transferred in 1971 to Fort Eustis, Va. Florea said he was sent home to await further orders and tried for 18 months to clarify his status. Finally, he quit trying, got married and went to work.

Gantt said Florea may be released later this week on leave without pay. He collected no military salary during the 6½ years he was home.

Bryant said he is gathering depositions from people who accompanied Florea when he made several trips to military installations trying to resolve his military status during 1970 and 1971.

The Army spokesman had said Florea had an obligation to resolve the issue long ago.

Ohio Facing Indian Attack

CLEVELAND (AP) — Seneca Indian Chief Beeman Logan says his tribe is considering suing the federal government for damages over loss of an undetermined amount of land in northeastern Ohio, including parts of what is now Cleveland.

He says incomplete research shows the Senecas once lived on the land, which was not part of a reservation.

Logan said Tuesday Seneca chiefs are probing the question and are keeping an eye on suits filed by tribes in Maine and Massachusetts before deciding what to do.

Logan belongs to the Seneca Bird clan in North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"We have a historian studying the history of the area around Cleveland and Akron," he said.

"We will decide when that is complete whether to take it to court."

"If we go to court, we would probably ask for a monetary settlement, rather than trying to repossess the land," he added.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Laymen are apt to have the feeling," a judge observed not long ago, "that a motorcycle does not have the same status on the highways as an automobile."

Rejecting any such feeling, the judge imposed damages on a motorist who had made a sudden left turn in front of an oncoming motorcyclist.

Generally speaking, the courts agree with the judge that motorists must not treat motorcyclists as second-class citizens on the public streets. By the same token, the courts also demand a comparable standard of care on the part of the motorcyclists. Thus:

A motorcyclist saw a truck stopping on the highway some distance ahead. He swerved onto the shoulder of the road, hit a rut, lost control of his machine, and suffered injuries.

Even if the truck driver was wrong in stopping on the highway, said a court later, the victim himself was guilty of negligence. The court said he had plenty of time to halt safely behind the truck, just as a careful motorist would have done.

In case of accident, does it matter if the motorcyclist did not have a license? Not necessarily.

A motorist pulled out of a parking place without giving a warning signal, colliding with an approaching motorcyclist. Injured, the latter filed suit for damages.

At the trial, the motorist argued as follows:

"This fellow had no license to drive a motorcycle in the first place. By rights he had no business on the street at all."

But the court upheld the motorcyclist's claim, pointing out that his lack of a license — even though wrongful — had no causal connection with the accident. He would have suffered exactly the same fate, said the court, whether he had a license or not.

Camp Holmes, it was Tombe who allowed Mrs. Purdy's father to join the rest of the family at Camp Holmes.

After he had been invited to the reunion, Tombe decided that it would be proper for him to present each person in attendance with a present. So he had a special medal struck, and at the reunion banquet at the officer's club in the Presidio, he presented the medals to the people that he had been in charge of some 32 years earlier.

While in San Francisco, the members attending the reunion stayed at the Quality Inn that overlooks the Golden Gate Bridge. For Mrs. Purdy,

Woman Weary Of Anastasia Investigation

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Anna Anderson Manahan says she's weary of her 50-year quest to prove she's the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia and isn't interested in new support for her claim.

Moritz Furtmayr, a leading West German forensic expert, reported last week that an anatomical comparison of Mrs. Manahan's right ear with the right ear of the long-lost Anastasia showed 17 identical points, five more than is usually needed for positive identification.

"Of course. How could it be anything else?" the frail, 75-year-old Mrs. Manahan said Monday when told of the findings of Furtmayr.

But Mrs. Manahan, wife of a retired University of Virginia history professor, John Manahan, said she didn't care what Furtmayr might have found.

"I am ill of this dirt," she said in an interview at the Charlottesville home where she has lived since 1968. "I will not read this dirt ... Is my ear so important?"

"... I am ill of the constant, constant questions. Even little children ask me, 'Anastasia, when will you get your jewelry back?'"

Newspaper Wins Suit For Data

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Akron Beacon Journal has won its suit for access to various government records and a judge has agreed to consider the newspaper's challenge to the constitutionality of Ohio's new privacy law.

Summit County Common Pleas Court Judge William Baird ruled Monday that the records in question couldn't be withheld from the public. He also set a hearing date of March 17 on the Beacon Journal's further request that the 1976 privacy act be declared unconstitutional.

The judge granted the Beacon Journal access to birth records in the health department, records of workhouse inmates concerning crimes for which they were sentenced, and records of expenses incurred by city councilmen, such as travel vouchers.

The newspaper's challenge to the law's constitutionality was delayed at the request of the state attorney general's office which said it needed time to prepare briefs on the issues.

The publication has argued that the privacy law is unclear and that city officials don't know what records to withhold or to release. The newspaper also argued that the act conflicts with Ohio's 1963 open records law. The privacy act prevents government agencies from releasing personal information from people's records without the individual's consent.

ERA Nixed By Prayer In South?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A women's prayer chain claims its efforts persuaded the Lord to tip the balance against the Equal Rights Amendment, which the North Carolina Senate defeated 26-24.

They say their prayers worked better than did personal telephone calls on behalf of the ERA from President Carter and First Lady Rosalynn Carter to wavering state senators.

"Our prayer chain did it," said Norma Swanson of Raleigh after the vote Tuesday. "We had women praying all night and all day, women from all walks of life. We asked God that if this thing was not in his plan that he would see that it was defeated."

Mrs. Swanson, of suburban Cary, said no formal organization backed the chain, just herself and a friend and a lot of telephoning.

She called about 50 friends, each of whom called other friends in other cities. She estimated several hundred all over the state were finally involved.

A schedule was set up starting at midnight Monday, the eve of Senate action on the ERA, and running through Tuesday.

Women signed up to pray in one-hour time slots, and extra volunteers promised to pray off and on throughout the day.

and her sister and parents who were also in attendance, that view had special significance. As Mrs. Purdy stated, "the bridge was just about the first thing we saw in the United States when we returned on the ship after the war."

Life in a prisoner of war camp can spur all types of visions in a person's mind, but for Mrs. Purdy at least, the three years and three months of imprisonment aren't remembered with total disgust and anguish.

She stated that Camp Holmes, where the large majority of the three years and three months was spent, was unique in that it contained over 500 residents. Because it was so large, a small government was established. A chairman was elected and committees were formed. For the good of the community and to insure the welfare of all persons in that type of situation, all food grown and all property obtained was given to the community. The committee grew nearly all the food consumed by the camp.

"We did things as a community. That is a big reason for us having a reunion. It is probably the only one we'll have though. Quite a few of the older people have died and the younger ones among us wanted to see each other again," said Mrs. Purdy. "We were extremely close, especially us children. We called the adults in the camp 'aunt' and 'uncle.' It's hard to explain, but you really develop strong feelings for each other when you live closely like that for so long."

Of course the Japanese didn't permit items of news in the camp during the war. Things like newspapers, magazines, and radios were forbidden. The camp did have one irregular news source though. One of the men in the camp, an American, had a good knowledge of electronics and radios. The Japanese were aware of his talents, so they had him fix their radio equipment when it malfunctioned. Mrs. Purdy stated that the man would sit at the controls with the headphones on and pretend to be tinkering with the radio, and all the while he would try to pick up an English speaking station. Upon finding one he would listen to the news broadcast, then proceed to fix the radio, always making sure to leave a wire loose or a small piece of equipment out of place to insure a return trip "to fix the radio." Thus the camp picked up bits and pieces from a world at war. Probably the biggest single scoop was news of the death of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

Mrs. Purdy also told of the Japanese use of propaganda. Often times she said that the guards would say things to them like, "Our troops have now made it as far as Colorado, and we are meeting with little resistance." Not many people really believed the guards, according to the former POW. "It was easier on us children," she stated, "but some of the older folks would tend to believe that we would be in that camp for the rest of our lives."

School was also held at the camp for the children. Subjects such as history and geography were forbidden to be studied, but the children studied them anyway. If they were on a forbidden subject, and the guards came in, they just started to talk about another subject. Mrs. Purdy said that one man in the camp was particularly adept at wood working. He made several round balls of wood and gave them to the camp teacher, who in turn covered them with cloth. The students would then paint in different countries on the cloth. This comprised the student's geography lessons.

Every Friday and Saturday night the camp put on a program of some type. Several of the residents of the camp had widely differing talents. One time a scientist might lecture on astronomy, while another time some musicians might stage a concert. The camp had a battered old piano, and Mrs. Purdy stated that it was kept in surprisingly good tune by the only thing they had—the human ear.

Bridge was also a big pastime in the camp, and Mrs. Purdy said that even children nine through 12 were taught to play bridge. Several card tournaments were held. Softball tournaments were held too. All equipment, from cards to bats and balls, was given to one man to keep and it was all treated like gold.

"Supplies were hard enough to get in those war years," said Mrs. Purdy, "let alone something like a softball." People thought they were seeing the beginning of the end when one day in December of 1944 U.S. planes were seen overhead. They wore the U.S. star instead of the rising sun insignia of the Empire of Japan. The planes were bombers, and one of their targets was Lingayen Gulf in the Philippines. Soon fighting was heard in the vicinity, and the residents of Camp Holmes were moved to Bilibid Prison in Manila. There Mrs. Purdy can remember seeing Allied P.O.W.'s in the camp beside Bilibid Prison.

Mrs. Purdy stated that she remembers the third day of February in 1945. She was on the second floor of a building in the prison, when she looked out and saw a column of dust rising in the air. It was eight U.S. tanks, she later learned. And later in the day she heard American voices outside the compound. It was the start of the battle for Manila, and she remembers watching and listening to the ebb and flow of the battle from within the prison walls. "We took shrapnel from artillery shells inside the walls of the prison," she said, "I can remember my sister picking up a piece of shrapnel from a phosphorus shell, and it burned her hand."

After the battle was over and the Philippine Islands were liberated, the former POW's were taken to Clark Field, where they proceeded to Leyete by air, for processing back to their respective countries. From Leyete, Mrs. Purdy's family boarded a ship that took them back to the Golden Gate Bridge and the United States.

In reflecting back on her experience, Mrs. Purdy had some interesting thoughts to offer. In commenting on a variety of areas concerning the incident, she said:

"I find it hard to believe that after almost 35 years, some people would still carry a grudge, but there were a few at the reunion who did. They were very few though."

"I would like to go back to the Philippines again and see how much it has changed. I saw some recent pictures of Camp Holmes at the reunion, and all the buildings have been demolished. The foundations and the water tank are all that remain."

"It bothers me to teach school now and see students destroying books and materials the way some of them do. I still don't like to see people waste food either. At the last part of our imprisonment, the food started getting scarce. We had 47 pounds of foodstuffs for each adult person. I can remember on the last few nights that we were prisoners, some of the people in the camp were opening their last cans of food."

"I guess that an experience like that is just something you have to experience; you can tell others about it and tell them to use everything well and be somewhat thrifty, but you really can't push it off on other people. Hopefully we or our children won't have to experience another war."

"For the most part, I really don't think that the German, Italian, or Japanese people wanted war. It was mostly the leaders of those countries that pushed everybody else into it. The Japanese for instance are very family-oriented. You could tell by the way that they watched us children play that they missed their wives and children. On the whole they were good to us. Lots of times, as long as no one had done anything wrong, they would give one of us children a piece of gum or candy if they had any extra."

"Quite an experience" is an understatement. The people of Camp Holmes were in a unique position during the Second World War; that of being able to see the very pages of history being written before them, yet in somewhat of a neutral position and not in direct hostile confrontation with an enemy. The majority of persons would probably agree though, that they would rather not have traded places with Mrs. Purdy or any other of the 500 residents of Camp Holmes.

Mrs. Purdy is the wife of the Rev. Eugene Purdy, pastor of the Calvary and Pleasant View United Methodist Churches. The couple has four sons: Dale, 21, who is a student at Ohio State University; Eric, 16, a student at Circleville High School; Karl, 15, also a student at CHS and a member of the reserve basketball team; and Nathan, who is a seventh grade student at the Circleville Junior High School.

Mrs. Purdy is an English teacher at CJHS. Although she was born in the Philippines, she calls Ohio home, as she has resided in the Buckeye state since 1950.

Ghosts Quiet Down At Columbus Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's a little quieter around a residential neighborhood near here after strange pounding noises from a house kept neighbors awake for several days.

One of them, Don Elkins, said he hasn't heard the sounds for three or four days. The noises, which he described Tuesday as "a wood-to-wood knock," began Jan. 31 in the frame house of the Charles Hunsingers. They occurred only between 1 a.m. and 4 a.m., according to Mrs. Hunsinger.

"The last three or four days they haven't heard anything," said Elkins. "They (the Hunsingers) more or less have simmered down now."

Mrs. Hunsinger insists the house isn't haunted, but others aren't so sure.

That includes the 41-year-old Elkins and sheriff's Sgt. Sonny Yinger.

"It's no joke. This was quite an experience for me," said Elkins, who joined other neighbors in their unsuccessful search for the source of the noise. "This has got me thinking—what is it? There are no tracks or anything around the house."

"I don't know what to think," said Yinger. "I've never believed in the supernatural, but at this point I don't know what to believe."

The Hunsingers have been unavailable for comment, and Elkins said he thinks they want to remain that way. Their telephone was disconnected after they started getting a flood of calls about the eerie sounds, according to Elkins.

The sounds seem to center around 14-year-old Beth Hunsinger, but Mrs. Hunsinger says her daughter isn't possessed.

American Released In Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — An American tourist jailed for two days by President Idi Amin's police arrived in Nairobi today after being expelled from Uganda, the U.S. Embassy reported. But no exodus of Americans was expected despite Amin's recent behavior and reports of wholesale murder of Ugandans.

An embassy spokesman said the expelled American was named Brian Schwartz, but he could not give his age or U.S. address.

Schwartz reported he was locked up in Kampala, the Ugandan capital, during Amin's four-day ban against Americans leaving his country, but he said he was given no explanation for his detention, the spokesman said.

Schwartz arrived in Kampala last Thursday, the day before Amin ordered all Americans not to leave Uganda, and was taken into custody on Saturday, the embassy spokesman said.

"He was released on Monday night and stayed in a hotel," the spokesman continued. "The next day he was taken to the border with Kenya by car and after crossing caught a bus to Nairobi."

Schwartz said he knew of no other Americans held in jail, the spokesman said.

He was the second American tourist reported to have left Uganda this week. Robert Shinn, 25, of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., said he arrived in Nairobi Tuesday by bus from Kampala and had no trouble crossing the border.

Ohio U Seeks Financial Relief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The president of Ohio University has asked the state to relieve the underpopulated Athens campus of 10 "surplus buildings" through a complex $9.2 million refinancing plan.

A plan for the state to buy the facilities was outlined Tuesday by President Charles J. Ping at a budget hearing before the House Finance Committee's education subsection.

Although a five-year decline in enrollment was reversed last year, Ping said the Ohio U. residence hall system could not "be self-supporting with present and anticipated occupancy level."

In other testimony, Central State University President Lionel H. Newsom requested a $2.3 million increase in the proposed $6.6 million supplemental subsidy to the predominately black institution.

Ping's proposal pre-supposes that the state will grant Ohio U. a special $1 million subsidy to meet debt service on dormitories and dining halls in full use at the 14,000-student southeastern Ohio campus.

In addition, he wants the state to take over the burden of debt during an eight-year period on 10 buildings, two of which will be converted for use by the new College Of Osteopathic Medicine.

"The dormitory capacity would be reduced in carefully planned stages from 8,695 to 6,100 spaces," he said. "Much of the space can be converted to constructive use to serve the people of Ohio."

His plan, calls for the state to issue bonds that would generate interest for debt service of $909,680 in the 1977-1978 biennium and $1.4 million to $1.69 million during the six succeeding years.

In the first two-year period, the state would take on the debt of the Parks, Wilson, James and Howard facilities, according to the plan, in addition to the Grosvenor and Irvine halls which would be used by the Osteopathic school.

"The dormitory and dining system at Ohio University was planned and financed when the state had six rather than 12 universities and when there was a very limited development of two year campuses," Ping said.

The subsequent decline in students at Ohio U. has been reversed Ping said, but "we are faced with the dilemma of a residence hall system built under different assumptions about higher education in Ohio."

Committee members, mulling over budget requests from all state-supported colleges and universities, did not reject the proposal, but gave Ping little encouragement.

After hearing Central State's

Newsom also ask for more money, Chairman Robert W. Jaskulski, D-11 Garfield Heights, muttered: "Someplace the well's got to dry up."

Newsome said the Wilberforce, Ohio, institution was losing minority students to aggressive recruiting programs at larger universities, where he said a "revolving door policy" resulted in many drop-outs after the first year.

Full-time enrollment has declined from 2,319 in 1972 to the present 2,023, he said.

Tigers Gain Sectional Finals Berth

By BILL MCGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Circleville broke on top and never trailed in the ball game as they downed Bishop Ready, 52-44, in their opening game in the Class AA Sectional Tournament Tuesday night at Teays Valley gym.

The win sends the Tigers into the AA Sectional finals 8 p.m. Friday against London who defeated Grandview, 50-32, in the other game played Tuesday night.

The game started on rather a strange note as a Bishop Ready player had dunked the ball in the pre game warm-up and Circleville was awarded a technical foul. The rule allows a player to dunk a shot during the game but not during pre game or halftime warm-ups.

Frank Merrill stepped to the foul line and sank the technical to give Circleville a one point lead and they led all the way.

Ready pulled within one point midway through the third period and cut the gap to two points at the five minute mark of the final canto.

But, the Tigers were up to the challenge and came right back to take control of the contest and gain a victory.

Brent Wright led the Tigers with 16 points, Toren Bensonhaver added 12, Frank Merrill and Roy Huffer each hit seven, Tom Taylor netted six and Eric Pontious had four.

Tony Conti was high for Bishop Ready with 12 markers, John Engelman added nine, Tim Kusan netted seven, Matt Statmiller tallied six, Jim Waldman and Bruce Girard each had four while Jim McAndrew and John Cacchio each had one.

Circleville was 20 of 44 from the field for 48 per cent and converted 12 of 20

from the charity stripe for 60 per cent. The Silver Knights were 17 of 47 from the floor for 36 per cent and hit 10 of 18 from the free throw line for 56 per cent.

Ready won the battle of the boards, 26-20. Wright and Bensonhaver were strong for the Tigers while Statmiller was the big man for the Knights.

In the turnover department, Ready

had 24 while Circleville misplayed the ball 21 times.

"The most important factor in the outcome of the game was our defense," Circleville coach Jim Bailey commented. "Roy Huffer shut off their quarterback and held him to one point while Merrill, Bensonhaver and Wright kept their big men from getting inside. Tom Taylor played a key role as he handled the ball well with only one turnover while shooting 50 per cent from the field.

"Our kids played well in the clutch with Wright and Bensonhaver getting key baskets for us. We didn't handle the ball as well as we would have liked to and this kept them in the ball game. "We really appreciate our fans support and they certainly helped us with their enthusiasm when things got tight," Bailey stated.

The Tigers hit three buckets and four fouls in the first period to lead 10-6 at the buzzer.

Circleville pulled out to a 13 point lead in the second quarter but Ready countered with a basket and a pair of fouls to cut the gap to 24-17 at halftime.

The Silver Knights battled back in the third period to pull within one point, 26-25, but Wright hit three straight baskets for the Tigers to enable them to pull away and they held a 36-30 lead at the third period buzzer.

Bishop Ready began to nip at the Tigers heels in the final canto and it was 42-40 for the Tigers with 4:57 left in the game.

But, Taylor and Wright hit buckets and Bensonhaver connected on a pair from the floor and two foul shots and the game was out of the reach of Ready.

Circleville is now 12-6 for the season and will battle London 8 p.m. in the Sectional finals Friday at Teays Valley with the winner moving into District play at Ohio Wesleyan 7 p.m. Tuesday against the winner of the Upper Westerville bracket.

The Tigers will also complete regular season play when they host Wilmington Saturday night at Mill St. gym. The doors will open at 6 p.m. with the reserve game getting underway at 6:30 p.m.

SUMMARY

CIRCLEVILLE — Huffer, 1-5-7; Taylor, 3-0-6; Merrill, 3-1-7; Pontious, 2-0-4; Bensonhaver, 4-4-12; Wright, 7-2-16. Totals, 20-12-52.

Impressive Pitcher Not Joining Reds

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Paul Moskau carries an impressive set of credentials into spring training with the Cincinnati Reds.

Not only has he been a league leader in earned run average during the two years he has been a professional pitcher, but he has also been more than average swinging a bat.

Last season at Three Rivers, he hit .280. The year before, at Eugene, Ore., it was .320, with three homers.

"Hitting," he says, "is easier than pitching."

That is not to say that he has just been getting by on his work at the plate. He had a 1.50 ERA at Eugene with a 10-1 record and was 13-6 with a 1.55 ERA at Three Rivers.

Moskau probably will not be around when the Reds start north to begin the regular season. He is however one of several young pitchers that manager Sparky Anderson is watching to replace Woodie Fryman, 36 years old, and Jack Billingham, 34, some time in the future.

Along with Moskau, there is Mike LaCoss, who was 12-10 with a 2.94

ERA at Three Rivers.

The Reds manager also wants to find out what happened last year to Larry Payne and Tom Hume, who were both considered top prospects, but floundered at Indianapolis.

Payne was 9-9 with a 4.86 ERA, while Hume was 9-12 with a 4.10 ERA.

"I want to know why those kids had those problems," admitted Anderson. Moskau was originally drafted by the Cleveland Indians, but he decided to go to college instead.

At Arizona State University, he was used exclusively as a first baseman, but he left after a short time.

After sitting out a year, Moskau enrolled at Azusa Community College in California where he played first base and pitched until the Reds drafted him.

At 6-foot-2 and 210 pounds, many observers say he reminds them physically of Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Andy Messersmith.

"Everything he does is like Messersmith, except he doesn't throw as hard," Anderson said.

Tiger Girls Gain Finals In Tourney

Circleville's girl cagers stopped Madison Plains, 62-40, to gain the finals of the Miami Trace Invitational Tournament 8 p.m. Thursday.

The Tigers dominated the game as they led all the way, 23-8, 35-21, 49-28 and 62-40.

"We played extremely well and it was a great turnabout from our last outing," Circleville coach Joy O'Brien commented. "Our girls have played well under pressure and seem to get tough in key situations. This is one of the reasons that we have a 12 straight win streak — It's just a great bunch to work with," Joy O'Brien stated.

Natalie Martin led the scoring with 19 points, Sue Radcliff added 14, Sue Stevenson and Sue Frericks each looped eight, Kathy Fanale tallied six, Mary Wyatt netted four and Brenna Lintner had three. All the Tigers saw action in the contest.

Circleville was 27 of 53 from the floor for 51 per cent and hit eight of 13 at the foul line for 61 per cent.

Madison Plains was 18 of 57 from the field and converted four of eight from the charity stripe.

Circleville won the battle of the boards, 41-18, with Sue Stevenson, Sue Frericks and Wanda Boyd getting the job done.

Braves, Mustangs Hit Tourney Trail

Logan Elm and Westfall, the last two Pickaway County teams to get their feet wet in sectional play, plunge headlong into tournament action tonight at Teays Valley High School.

Butch Kobel sends his Braves onto the court first. They will line up against the number one seed in the Teays Valley sectional, the Hamilton Twp. Rangers.

Some would be quick to write off the Braves against a team like the Rangers. But Kobel's charges pack a lightning offensive punch themselves, and they have the added advantage of having scrimmaged their foes twice this season. Says Kobel, "Our first scrimmage was a pre-season affair which was pretty even. Our second scrimmage took place right after we lost Randy Pontius with his shoulder injury, and we were kind of down and offensively sluggish. They handled us in the first quarter, and then it was pretty even after that."

The first-year Logan Elm coach feels that the Hamilton five will be the top offensive ball club that the Braves will go against this year.

The Rangers like to change defenses in the middle of their opponents' offensive plays. Kovel says the Braves will have to stay alert to take advantage of any breaks that may develop. Tom Motika and Zack Scott are the two Rangers to watch. The Braves' game is set for 7 p.m.

The gym will be cleared after the Logan Elm-Hamilton Twp. contest. Anyone desiring to watch the second game of the evening will have to purchase another ticket.

The 9:15 nightcap will send Mike Eckle's Mustangs against the Golden Eagles from Madison Plains.

"They are a tough ball club. I've seen them play twice this year and they are a lot better than their record indicates," said Eckle when commenting on the opposition for tonight's contest. Eckle feels that the Golden Eagles will run a zone defense against the Mustangs, and that they will match up somewhat with Westfall.

"They are big and they go to the boards well," said Eckle. They run a two guard front and can shoot well from outside, but reports are that they try to get inside to the big men whenever possible.

"We have to be more patient offensively and wait for an opportunity," stated the Mustangs' boss. "We have been throwing the ball away too much. If our kids play well we'll stay with them and it will be a good game."

The winners of tonight's games will play each other Saturday at 8 p.m. in the sectional finals at Teays Valley. The winner of that game will gain a berth in district play at Newark, with action there slated for Tuesday at 9:15 p.m. against the winner of the Newark lower bracket.

Teays Valley Keeps Metro Lead Despite Scare By Falcons

ANOTHER REBOUND — Perri Martin, the heroine in Teays Valley's 32-30 win over Franklin Heights last night, pulls down another key rebound in the final minutes of the contest. Waiting to help out is Shelley Marion (32).

Perri Martin's short jump shot in the final three seconds was the deciding basket as Teays Valley escaped Franklin Heights 32-30 Tuesday night to retain its share of the Metro League lead.

The Falcons battled back from a six-point deficit to knot the score 30-30 with a minute and a half remaining in the contest.

Both teams failed to convert important free throws in the final seconds before Rita Slone hauled down a missed FH shot, dribbled to half court and hurled a pass to Martin, who was posted under the basket.

Martin had trouble handling the ball, but went up in the foul lane with a short jumper to win the contest.

The win locks Teays Valley in a tie for first place in the Metro League with Hamilton Twp. The Rangers knocked off West Jefferson Tuesday night, 38-32.

Fight Mars NBA Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Larry O'Brien is not getting his message across. Or maybe it just takes a while to sink in.

Just one day after the National Basketball Association commissioner issued a ringing edict to coaches and players against outbreaks of violence on the court, Sidney Wicks of the Boston Celtics knocked down Golden State's Rick Barry with a looping right and players from both benches joined in the fracas at the Hartford, Conn. Civic Center, where the Warriors beat Boston 101-94 Tuesday night.

The fight broke out with 3:54 to go in the fourth period of the intensely played game.

In more peaceful NBA games Tuesday night, the Portland Trail Blazers nipped the Philadelphia 76ers 108-107, the Denver Nuggets defeated the Detroit Pistons 110-94, the New York Nets beat the Buffalo Braves 104-95, the San Antonio Spurs outscored the New York Knicks 132-127, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Atlanta Hawks 92-90, the Chicago Bulls topped the Indiana Pacers 102-85, and the Kansas City Kings beat the New Orleans Jazz 126-104.

Saginaw Defeats Dayton Gems, 6-4

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Rick Chinnick scored a hat trick to lead Saginaw to a 6-4 triumph over Dayton in Tuesday night's lone International Hockey League game.

Saginaw, locked in a first place tie with Kalamazoo in the Northern Division, is 31-23-10. The loss dropped Dayton, in second place in the Southern Division, to 29-31-4.

The New York Yankees open their 1977 American League baseball season at home against the Milwaukee Brewers on April 7.

The Vikes can clinch a share of the title Thursday when they host Dublin in the season ender. TV won the first meeting of the teams 79-23 on Feb. 15.

The game was an uphill climb for the Vikings as Franklin Heights opened in a four-corner offense that turned into a stall when the Vikes refused to move out of their 2-3 zone defense. The Falcons took a 4-2 lead into the second period.

Coach Angie Rinehart switched her team to a man-to-man in the second period, but the Falcons countered to up the score to 19-8 at the half.

TV erupted for 18 points in the third quarter to grab a 26-23 as Martin hit for eight points, P.J. Stiles scored six, and Debbie Baxter contributed four.

Martin finished the game with 12 points, 12 rebounds, three steals and two assists. Baxter had 10 points, six rebounds, four steals and three assists. Stiles, who was limited to two quarters of varsity play because of a stint on the reserve team, had eight points with seven rebounds, a steal, and an assist. And Patty Maciejewski rounded out the scoring with two points and three rebounds.

Rita Slone had nine rebounds, six assists, and four steals; Shelley Marion had five rebounds and a steal; and Carla Reichelderfer had two rebounds and a steal.

Suzi Jones, out of action last week with an injury, returned late in the third period to claim four rebounds, three steals, and an assist. The Vikes played without Florie Mesner, who was ill.

The Vikings had little trouble in the reserve game, rolling to a 23-4 decision. TV held leads of 6-0 after the first period, 15-0 at the half, and 18-2 after three periods.

Erika Stewart paced the win with 11 points, four steals, and two rebounds. P.J. Stiles scored six with eight rebounds and four steals.

Kelly Martin scored two points, had an assist, a steal and 12 rebounds; Chris Adkinson scored two with five rebounds, five steals, and an assist; Lorraine Hill scored two with four rebounds and a steal; and Nancy Kraft had seven rebounds and two steals.

LE Girls Stopped By LU Lions

Logan Elm's girls dropped a 55-4 decision to visiting Liberty Union Tuesday night.

The scoreboard read 12-12, 30-29 and 41-41 with the visitors showing the way, except for the first period.

Annette Roof and Debbie Larson each had 13 to lead the Braves, Dian Martin and Patty Larson both tallied eight, Krista Gifford netted three, Diane Weaver added two and Beth Bel had one.

Logan Elm was 34 per cent from the field and 42 per cent from the foul line while Liberty Union was 29 per cent from the floor and 59 per cent at the charity stripe.

Logan Elm is now 2-6 overall and will be at Fisher Catholic 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Loyola Upsets Detroit, 79-71

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Although Detroit stubbed its toe on the final hurdle, Coach Dick Vitale still is hoping for a telephone call from the National Collegiate Athletic Association and a post-season basketball bid.

"I pray the selection committee will judge us on 27 games, not on one night," Vitale said Tuesday after his 19th-ranked Titans were upset by Loyola of Chicago 79-71.

The loss was only Detroit's third against 24 victories. And Vitale has an easy explanation for the defeat.

"They shot it and we didn't," he said.

Detroit, which had been shooting at a 51 per cent clip during the season while averaging 91.7 points per game, hit only 32 per cent of its field goal attempts against Loyola.

"We executed well but we didn't shoot well, and all year that's been our best thing," Vitale said.

Houston Lloyd paced Loyola with 23 points, while Andre Wakefield scored 20. High for Detroit was Terry Tyler with 25 points — 19 in the first half.

"I feel confident that they (the NCAA selection committee) will evaluate us in a fair way," Vitale said about his team's chances for a post-season bid.

In the only other game involving an Associated Press Top 20 team, fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, playing at home, crushed Hawaii 124-84. Eddie Owens had 25 points as six players for the victorious Rebels scored in double figures. Hawaii has not won a road game in two years.

Anthony Roberts, the nation's second leading scorer from Oral Roberts, tallied 50 points in a losing effort. Senior guard Carlton Byrd scored 30 points in his final home game, leading Florida State past Oral Roberts 91-87. Harry Davis and David

Thompson had 24 and 21 points, respectively, for the victorious Seminoles.

Appalachian State, behind Mel Hubbard and Tony Searcy, upset Furman 70-64, while Virginia Military stopped East Carolina 88-77 in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tournament.

Searcy scored 18 points, while Hubbard, who finished with 13, converted a three-point play with 2:47 left, breaking a tie and giving Appalachian the victory. Ron Carter finished with 22 points and Will Bynum 19 for VMI.

Rich Laurel's 35 points led Hofstra over Lehigh 81-72 and Donn Wilber scored 27 points as La Salle stopped Delaware 84-77 in East Coast Conference playoff games, and Tony Hanson's 37 points lifted Connecticut past Fairfield 87-75 and into the ECAC New England playoffs.

No Gum Card For Jackson

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson, who said they'd name a candy bar after him if he ever played in New York, can't even get his picture on a bubble gum card for the time being.

While Jackson quietly reported to the New York Yankees' camp Tuesday for his first workout in pinstripes, Sy Berger, the bubble gum man, was kicked out of the New York Mets' clubhouse.

In fact, the colorful, bombastic Jackson was upstaged in his own clubhouse by center fielder Mickey Rivers, who had angry words for Manager Billy Martin, and in the Pittsburgh Pirates' locker room, where pitcher Larry Demery and utilityman Ed Kirkpatrick came to blows.

Berger, who annually tours the spring training camps signing up players for bubble gum cards, was requested by Mets' General Manager Joe McDonald to vacate the premises when he entered the team's clubhouse.

"It was very embarrassing to Joe, who is a long-time friend of mine," said Berger, "but he was acting on a directive issued by the Major League Promotion Corp."

The promotions group is seeking greater royalties from Berger's outfit — Topps Chewing Gum Co. of Brooklyn, N.Y. — for use of the pictures. Pending the outcome of contract negotiations, Berger is persona non grata in major league clubhouses.

Rivers, however, wasn't barred. The Yankees' speedy center fielder just didn't bother to show up on time.

"I didn't feel like coming out here that early," he griped. "They're giving me a hassle already. I don't need that hassle. They're hassling me on every little thing. If they don't want me, they can trade me."

When Rivers finally appeared, more than an hour in arrears, he found a note from Martin.

"I tore it up," Rivers said. "I really didn't read it, but I think it said I'm going to be fined."

"He's not going to run spring training," Martin said. "Him or nobody else."

Meanwhile, the media largely ignored Jackson, who had to try on three pair of pants before he found one that fit, popped a button off his uniform shirt, couldn't find a batting helmet his size and finally was plunked in the back by a batting practice serve from Ken Holtzman, his former Oakland and Baltimore teammate.

In the Pirates' camp, tempers flared during some horseplay between Demery and Kirkpatrick. They pushed and shoved each other and threw a few punches before being separated by teammates.

On the signing front, the Philadelphia Phillies reported "definite progress" in talks with third baseman Mike Schmidt, the major league home run champ, while the Mets said there was "some movement, but nothing appreciable" in their efforts to sign slugger Dave Kingman.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants signed shortstop Chris Speier for one year at a reported $90,000 while outfielder Jerry Morales told the Chicago Cubs he wasn't interested in becoming the successor to traded third baseman Bill Madlock.

"I'm an outfielder, not an infielder," he said.

Ted Williams Top MAC Player

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ted Williams, forward from Toledo, was named Mid-American Conference basketball player of the week today after his performance in Rocket victories over Central Michigan and Northern Illinois last week.

Williams, a 6-foot-5, 191-pound junior from Mount Vernon, Ohio, scored 50 points in two starts against the league's co-leaders. He also was cited by Toledo Coach Bob Nichols for his part in the league-leading team defense.

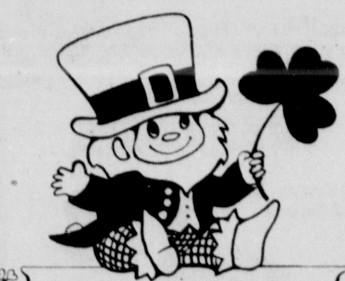

He scored 30 points against Central Michigan and 20 against Northern Illinois and is seventh leading scorer in the MAC with a 17.1 average.

Chip Myers Traded By Cincy Bengals For Draft Choice

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals have traded veteran wide receiver Chip Myers to the San Diego Chargers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

The 32-year-old Myers had been with the Bengals for eight years.

"Chip has been a credit to our organization and has played well for us," said Paul Brown, Bengals Vice President and General Manager. "However, we feel that at this time we will go with our young, green and growing receivers and that his future here is limited."

"He has been traded to a team where there appears to be a real need for his services," Brown added.

The 6-foot-6, 205-pound Myers has totaled 220 receptions in his career so far for 3,092 yards and 12 touchdowns. Before joining the Bengals in 1969, Myers played one season with San Francisco.

"I hate to leave my friends, my teammates and the fans in Cincinnati but I'm glad for the change," said Myers, unhappy about the Bengals use of him last season.

"He caught 17 passes for 267 yards and one touchdown but 12 of the receptions came in the first four games."

"I played a lot in the first three or four games, and I felt good, then all of a sudden, I wasn't playing at all. I started only two games, both against the Pittsburgh Steelers, the best defense in pro football. I don't know what they expected of me."

Myers will join another former Bengals receiver, Charlie Joiner. They caught 73 passes between them for Cincinnati in 1975, sharing the same wide receiving position.

"That's what the Bengals need," said Myers, "a guy who can catch 50-60 passes. A guy who can catch those third-down passes. Charlie and I almost caught 80 passes on that side two years ago. That's why we had such a big year, offensively."

"That was part of our problem this year. We didn't throw enough to the weak side of the zone enough. We tried to throw to Isaac Curtis all the time. As great as Isaac is, it's impossible to catch the ball with two or three guys hanging on him," Myers said.

Joiner bubbled at the thought of Myers coming to the Chargers.

Sloppy Canadiens Trip Islanders, 5-4

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens knew they were not going to fool anybody by saying their 5-4 victory over the New York Islanders was the result of 60 hard-working minutes of hockey.

Quite the opposite. Ken Dryden, the National Hockey League's leading goalie, said, "We played well for about 15 minutes over-all and were kind of sloppy the rest of the time. It was the kind of night we were very glad we got a win."

In the other NHL games Tuesday night, the Boston Bruins bombed the Detroit Red Wings 8-3, the Los Angeles Kings trimmed the Washington Capitals 3-2 and the Philadelphia Flyers topped the Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

Howsam Urges New Balance In Baseball

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds President Bob Howsam has released an open letter to "our fans and all people interested in baseball" urging a balance be established that takes in the needs of players, ownership and the fans.

"We will continue to pay our players excellent salaries, as befits their talent and success," Howsam said in the letter released Tuesday. "But our ability to keep baseball as the prime family sports entertainment bargain depends on operating the club with fiscal responsibility."

"We will not sacrifice this responsibility or our beliefs about the proper way to operate the ballclub."

The Reds president said he was concerned about how current trends in baseball will affect the fans and said that players must show some responsibility in this area.

"We do not believe that spending huge sums of money to sign players who play out their option is the way to success in baseball in the future," Howsam continued. "We have taken a public stand against this. We have already seen some of the jealousies and problems that have surfaced on other teams that were involved in the wild bidding for major league free agents."

Howsam said he believed a successful farm system was necessary for the Reds to enjoy continued prosperity. He cited the fact that the team has expanded its farm system from five to six teams this year.

"At the same time, let me reiterate, we are going to make every effort to sign our major league players to contracts and keep this great team intact," Howsam said. "We must all act in a responsible manner, players and those of us operating the team alike, to be able to accomplish this goal."

The Reds have still not signed pitchers Gary Nolan, Rawly Eastwick and Pat Darcy, while shortstop Dave Concepcion also has not agreed to terms with the Reds.

Strip-Mine Control Hearings Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Henry M. Jackson of the Senate Interior Committee warned coal operators Tuesday that their long opposition to strip mine legislation is futile because "we're not playing any more veto games."

The Washington state Democrat predicted passage this year of a strong strip-mine control bill. He noted that President Carter has already vowed to sign such legislation. Former President Gerald R. Ford twice vetoed the bill.

Jackson commented as an Interior subcommittee took testimony from coal mine operators opposed to the bill. Similar hearings are also underway in the House.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., a subcommittee member, disclosed that he plans to try to attach to the bill legislation that would authorize a coal slurry pipeline.

Such a pipeline would carry ground-up coal, mixed with water, from mine sites in the west to distribution points in the East and Southeast. One major proposed route would run from Wyoming to Arkansas.

Environmentalists have opposed the concept, claiming it would require vast quantities of scarce western water.

But Johnston said that coal production is now hampered by the nation's poor coal-distribution system. He said his slurry pipeline proposal would help rectify this.

Some industry officials conceded defeat in their five-year effort to block strip-mine legislation. "It is abundantly clear such legislation will be enacted by the 95th Congress," said Charles F. Schwab, a spokesman for the Kentucky Independent Coal Producers Association.

J. L. Jackson, president of the Falcon Coal Co. of Lexington, Ky., said his company mines on the steep slopes of eastern Kentucky. He said the bill creates unrealistic conditions for mountaintop mining — where operators lop off the entire top of a mountain to get at the underlying coal, leaving a relatively flat surface where once a mountaintop existed.

"Flat land is extremely valuable and desperately needed in many areas of Appalachia," he argued.

Solon Pushes For Recovery Of Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, introduced an emergency bill Monday night that could help in the recovery of about $1 million from a bankrupt money order firm.

Butts said the firm, Universal Money Order Co., apparently sold money orders in Cleveland and other major Ohio cities to about 10,000 Ohioans at an average of $100 apiece.

This bill would empower the attorney general to represent Universal customers whose money orders were not honored when presented for payment.

Universal filed bankruptcy proceedings in federal court in New York last January.

The Cleveland lawmaker said he hopes to move his bill quickly through the legislature so the attorney general can begin to receive claims of the Ohioans who lost funds.

Universal's bonding firm, Aetna Life and Casualty, already has filed an action in U.S. District Court, Southern Ohio division, seeking to recover $200,000 it posted with the state on behalf of the bankrupt firm.

In a news release earlier, the attorney general advised Universal customers to "remember that it all takes time, but our office will work as quickly as possible with Aetna to bring about a prompt settlement."

In other action Monday night as the Senate returned from weekend recess a day ahead of the House, Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, introduced a sweeping measure designed to provide statewide voter registration and make other reforms in Ohio's election laws.

Freshman Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16 Columbus, offered a bill that would require Ohio's utilities to make loans to their customers for home insulation projects, repayable on the installment plan.

Ohio Ending State Meat Inspections

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio will terminate its state-controlled meat and poultry inspection program at the end of the month, opting to save money by switching to federal inspection of processing plants.

Agriculture Director John Stackhouse Monday said the state program will be dropped March 31 in an effort to save an estimated $4 million over the next two years.

Consumers won't notice any difference when federal inspectors assume the regulatory duties April 1, since the present state inspection adheres to federal guidelines, said Walter Jones, agriculture department spokesman.

He also said meat and poultry packers will see no significant change in the federal inspection, which oversees quality, health and sanitary conditions. Meat and poultry inspection was mandated by the federal Wholesome Meat Inspection Act of 1967.

"Cost cutting is the biggest factor" in switching to federal control, Jones said. Packing plants won't notice any change, he added, because they had to meet federal specifications all along.

However, the federal program will permit shipment of meat and poultry products packed or stored in Ohio to out-of-state points. Under the present program, the state inspections were valid only within Ohio.

That change is a potential benefit to supermarket and fast food chains which will be able to ship interstate after a single federal inspection, streamlining shipments to and from Ohio for warehouses and food store outlets.

Young Gets Hot Spot U.N. Role

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Young became president of the United Nations Security Council for March today, and his fellow blacks from Africa were preparing a test for him and the Carter administration.

Young, after a month as the new chief American delegate to the United Nations, succeeded James Murray of the United Kingdom in the monthly alphabetical rotation of the council presidency among the 15 member nations.

The Africans are planning to seek a council debate starting March 21 or soon after in which they will introduce a resolution calling for a mandatory embargo on arms shipments to South Africa to discourage its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

The United States joined France and Britain in 1975 and in 1976 in vetoing resolutions calling for a binding arms embargo although for years it has observed a council resolution calling for a voluntary ban on arms shipments to South Africa.

Young told a reporter recently that he would recommend that the United States support a mandatory arms embargo. But he said he did not know whether his government would follow his recommendation.

Voter Registration Promoted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Alarmed by the closeness of the presidential election, state lawmakers are making another attempt to require all Ohio counties to conduct voter registration.

Twenty-two of the state's 88 counties have no voter registration procedures and four others have only partial registration, according to Secretary of State Ted W. Brown. Most are in rural areas.

"When you have two elections in Ohio where a governor and a President lose by less than ¾ vote (statewide) a precinct, every vote is important," said House Elections Committee Chairman Don S. Maddux, D-90 Lancaster.

Supporters of statewide voter registration say the popular notion that registration is not necessary in sparsely populated areas because of the familiarity of residents is a myth.

Instead, they say the absence of registration leaves the door open for fraud.

In fact, the state was sued in federal court here after the November election by the American Civil Liberties Union, which claimed the lack of uniform voting procedures discriminated against some Ohioans. The state won that one.

Brown has agreed to an amendment

Foreign Trade Offices Combined

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Brussels and Dusseldorf foreign trade offices will be combined into one European office effective July 1, James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development said Tuesday.

Duerk said due to anticipated budget restrictions, the European office will be located in Brussels. He said the consolidation will reduce the European staff from seven to four persons. Ohio's international development activities in West Germany will be handled by an employee assigned to that country out of the Brussels office.

Chamber's Safety Council Sponsoring Awards Banquet

The Safety Council of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce will sponsor its first awards banquet March 23, it was announced at the chamber's monthly directors meeting.

Ed Bohenko said presentations will be made to area businesses and industries for outstanding safety practices. The dinner, which will start at 6:30 p.m. at the Colony House, is open to all chamber members. Reservations may be made at the chamber office.

Also during Tuesday's meeting, it was noted by Bill Bennett that several firms have joined the chamber during 1977. The most recent members are Wright Lumber Company and the Citizen's Bank of Ashville. During January, Washington's Corner, Dumond-Sifford and Associates, Pickaway Gardens, Rozetti's Pizza, King's Department Store, and Linn Communications joined the local chamber.

Tom Tootle, chairman of the Legislative Committee, said the reception Monday with Attorney General William Brown was interesting and educational. Future legislative activities include a meeting with the county commissioners concerning snow removal and street repairs.

Bohenko also reported from the Safety Committee that Red Cross training classes are being scheduled, according to John Leist, county disaster coordinator.

The Federal Register was discussed at length by chamber directors and President Steve Stevenson. During February's meeting, the directors heard a talk by David Simmons and David Brook. They discussed their

VA Guarantees Loans For Mobile Homes

With the passage of Public Law 93-524, new interest seems to be shown by lending institutions in guaranteeing mobile home loans under the G.I. Bill, according to Pickaway County Service Officer Jim Shea.

"All veterans on Active duty since September 16, 1940 are eligible," Shea said. "World War II or the Korean Conflict veterans must have had at least 90 days service, while all others must have served at least 181 days. This includes those currently on active duty." There is no terminal date, the County Service Officer stated, for use of G.I. loan eligibility.

All veterans must have full loan guaranty entitlement of $17,500 available. The VA is authorized to guarantee loans for used mobile homes or to purchase a lot on which to place a mobile home the veteran already owns. The interest rate is 12 per cent for the mobile home and eight per cent for the lot. The amount of guarantee by the VA is 50 per cent of the unpaid balance.

For information concerning the securing of a Certificate of Eligibility for a Loan, and the names of banks who will lend money contact James P. Shea, County Service Officer, at 219 S. Court Street, or phone 474-3650.

Overtime Bill Sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Spokesmen for Ohio's employers attacked Tuesday night a controversial bill that would permit employees to refuse overtime.

They also deplored other worker protections in the bill by Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, and said generally that the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee should kill it.

The opposition testimony came from members of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio Manufacturers Association, among others. The OMA has 1,500 members who operate about 17,000 plants in Ohio.

Bradley Troxel of Rittman, Ohio, representing the Packaging Corp. of America, said that firm's employees work seven days, or 56 hours, weekly. He said they opted for that schedule after being offered a swing shift arrangement that covered six days.

They receive time and a half for Saturday and double time on Sunday, and average about $340 a week, exclusive of fringe benefits, Troxel said.

Larry Sharp, employee relations manager for Capital City Products Corp., Columbus, said that firm also operates seven days a week and must do so to remain competitive.

He said of the Valiquette proposal "the bottom line says we no longer would be able to schedule and produce goods to compete with companies in surrounding states."
